Tydings Quotes Roosevelt Blast At 'Interference'

As Governor, President Resented Meddling by Washington, He Recalls; Lewis Denies Seeking Md. Talk.

Lewis, Senator Speak

By James D. Secrest.
A Staff Correspondent.

Baltimore, Sept. 9.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, when Governor of New York in 1930, denounced Federal interference in State elections, Senator Tydings charged tonight in a radio address that had been advertised as an "answer" to the President's invasion of Maryland in behalf of Representative Lewis.

A half hour later over the same radio station Representative Lewis declared that he had never invited the Chief Executive into the State, but that he had come of his own volition "as he has a perfect right to do."

Their First Debate

The two radio speeches were the nearest thing to a debate between the two Democratic senatorial candidates that the campaign has produced, although Senator Tydings frequently has taunted Lewis for failing to keep twin engagements at Hagerstown and Frederick.

Tydings made no comment on the President's Labor Day address at Denton regarding liberalism and conservatism, although his campaign headquarters in advertisements had stated that his speech would cover "every vital issue."

Lewis poked fun at the Senator's half-hour talk, which he noted had been hailed as his "most important broadcast," and said it "went all around Robin Hood's barn."

Following the radio blasts the two candidates resumed their speaking tours of Baltimore, where 42 convention votes in six districts are at stake. Tomorrow afternoon Senator Tydings will leave Baltimore long enough to make a final bid for Prince Georges' seven votes with a speech in the Capitol Heights Community Center at 3 p. m.

Quotes President

Four great Presidents, he said, had denounced the practice of Federal officeholders interfering in State or city elections. After quoting the words of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and John Tyler, Tydings said:

"Let me call to the witness chair our present President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who just eight years ago in a public address at a time when the Federal Government attempted to interfere in the elections of his State, New York State, said when the President himself, who was then Governor Roosevelt, had this to say:

"'We in this State, in every city

Hines Denied Dismissal By Pecora

Justice Decides Jury Ought to Hear Case as Public Policy Issue, But Indictment May Be Wrongly Drawn.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 9.—Testimony in defense of James J. Hines, Tammany leader charged with protecting Dutch Schultz's policy racket, was begun in Supreme Court today, after Justice Ferdinand Pecora denied the hard-fought motion by Lloyd Stryker, chief counsel for Hines, to dismiss the indictment.

Justice Pecora said some doubt lingered in his mind as to whether the State had established a prima facie case against Hines on the felony counts in the indictment, but he passed the case along to the jury, and presumably to the higher courts, on the ground of public policy. A possible erroneous conception of the law by a trial judge, he said, should not deprive the people of the right to prove its case before a jury.

As first witness for Hines, J. Howard Haring, a handwriting expert and consultant for the State of New Jersey in the Hauptmann case, cast doubt upon signatures on the check for $500 which the prosecution contends Hines got as part of his numbers game rake-off from Mrs. Rose Wendroff, sister of J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, Schultz's lawyer.

Attacks Wire Tapper

The indorsement of "J. Hines" on that check, he testified, was written over the lower indorsement of "Eddie Holley," which followed it, and therefore was written later.

Haring also talked of the handwritten report by Julius Salke, detective, concerning a telephoned conversation from "Dixie" Davis's apartment, in which Davis is alleged to have told Hines he would send him $500. Salke testified that while listening in on Davis's tapped telephone wire, he reported the conversation he heard verbatim, as it was taking place.

It was Haring's professional opinion that nobody could have written that conversation verbatim, as it was taking place, who used the perpendicular, leftward slanting style of handwriting Salke used, with every letter perfectly formed, and all the proper punctuation marks in place. The writing, he said, was that of someone thinking more about the appearance of a report to someone who would read it, rather than the hasty scrawl of someone dashing to get down a conversation with accuracy.

A. W. Harkness Killed, Wife Hurt in Crash

Special Dispatch to The Post.

South Boston, Va., Sept. 9.—Arthur W. Harkness, chief of the editorial section of the Geological Survey, was killed instantly and his wife critically injured late today when their automobile overturned 12 miles from here on the Richmond highway.

A family friend, who had gone to the tobacco festival with the Harknesses, Mrs. Christine D. Hanback, was seriously hurt. The crash occurred between South Boston and Clover.

Police said the automobile in which the victims were riding careened off the highway and overturned, pinning the occupants beneath it. Physicians at General Hospital here said Harkness was dead on arrival.

His wife, Mrs. Beulah Harkness, about 60, was not expected to live. She suffered a compound fracture

Cardinal Hayes Is Buried In Cathedral He Loved

Photographs on Page 14.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 9.—In a mighty pageant of sorrow and majesty, the Roman Catholic Church gave its last service today to the dead Patrick Cardinal Hayes—the pontifical mass of requiem.

He was buried, then, in a crypt below the high altar of St. Patrick's Cathedral beside the bodies of those other princes of the church who had gone before him here in the wealthiest of all the world's archdioceses, and the red hat of his cardinalate was pulled aloft and suspended high above the sanctuary to remain until it is crumbled by time.

Six thousand men, women and children—and 2,000 priests, monsignori and members of the hierarchy—filled the great cathedral.

Along the streets outside, pressing patiently against the lines of foot and mounted police, stood other silent, uncounted thousands of every creed and faith, some of whom had been among the 300,000 who had filed through the Cathedral in the days since the cardinal's body was brought back here after his death last Sunday in his summer home near Monticello, N. Y.

At the head of the procession that filed into the Cathedral for the mass—the last pleading of the church for the soul of the cardinal—marched the military band of the United States Army's Sixteenth Infantry, playnig the dead march from "Saul." A detachment of soldiers under arms followed, and then blue-jacketed Marines and white-bloused sailors

Britain to Tell Hitler She Will Fight For Czechs, London Hears as Fuehrer Shouts, 'We'll Never Yield!'

Nazi Chief Cancels Talk To Hear Ribbentrop Report on English Attitude; Henderson Denied Audience.

By the Associated Press.

Nuremberg, Germany, Sept. 9.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler sounded an ominous note tonight for the first time in the eight-day Nazi Party congress.

"Our adversaries will find we will never capitulate," he shouted.

[The United Press heard from a high Nazi diplomat that Hitler may be "pushed" to drastic action toward Czechoslovakia by Britain's stiffening attitude and that Hitler's speech Monday night would contain far sharper references to Czechoslovakia than originally intended.—Editor's note.]

Clouds on the horizon, the unwillingness of Germany to accept any compromise, the Fuehrer's invincible faith in the Nazi organization—these were high spots of a 16-minute address to 180,000 political organizers, 100,000 spectators and untold millions of radio listeners.

His speech came at the end of a day in which the issue of Czechoslovakia's Germanic minority overshadowed everything at the congress and compelled the chancellor for the first time in years to cancel a scheduled speech.

Cancels Speech to Women.

Instead of addressing 20,000 members of the Nazi Women's Auxiliary, he conferred with Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop for more than an hour to hear what Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin, had to say in a morning conference with the foreign minister.

Sir Nevile and Von Ribbentrop had met late in the forenoon and British circles close to their embassy said they were convinced the ambassador was charged with stressing that Britain automatically would be drawn into a conflict if France were a party to it.

Shortly before midnight, Henderson canceled a train reservation for Berlin and decided to remain in Nuremberg. A British Embassy spokesman said he "may see Hitler Saturday."

New Demand Rumored

It was understood the British government desires its Ambassador to remain at Nuremberg to urge the gravity of the international situation on the German government.

Some German spokesmen, meanwhile, were even saying that the Sudeten question had gone beyond the autonomy stage and that Hitler would consider no solution short of union of the Sudeten region with Germany. There was no official confirmation for that belief, however.

In his speech tonight, delivered at the Zeppelin field, the chancellor was interrupted time and again by

British Trying Munitions Man In Secrets Leak

London, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Robinson Walker, a former engineer for Vickers-Armstrongs, Ltd., British munitions makers, was brought to trial today under the official secrets act.

Walker was charged with persuading another employe to give him drawings of armament plans and taking them to the Soviet Russian trade delegation.

Witnesses testified in Old Bailey Police Court that Walker represented himself as an agent of "Italy, Germany and Russia."

He has denied selling the secrets, contending he wanted the plans only to improve his own inventions.

President Leaves To Be With Son For Operation

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt departed at midnight for Rochester, Minn., where his son, James will undergo a gastric operation Monday, Elliott Roosevelt, another son, and Harry Hopkins, WPA head, were on the train.

The President is due at Rochester at 9:30 a. m. (C. S. T.) Sunday and will remain several days.

In the course of a Presidential press conference late this afternoon, Marvin McIntyre, Presidential secretary, interrupted to give a last-minute report from the Mayo clinic that James was in good condition and fine spirits.

Night Club Girl Cleared in Death Of Covadonga

Miami, Fla., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—A coroner's jury today absolved Wildred Caydon, 25-year-old night club girl, of blame for the automobile accident in which the Count of Covadonga, former heir to the Spanish throne, suffered fatal injuries Tuesday.

Jack Fleming, the count's secretary, said the dying man told him: "It wasn't Nellie's fault, and for God's sake, Jack, don't let anything happen to her. If I hadn't grabbed the steering wheel the accident never would have happened."

Czech Nazis Attack Police, Injure Five

By the United Press.

Prague (Saturday), Sept. 10.—Fighting between crowds of Sudeten Germans and Czech police near the German border early today jeopardized the newly concluded "truce" which revived the government's negotiations with the Sudeten German minority.

Five government gendarmes were injured in the new clashes.

At Bodenback in the Sudetenland, 3,000 Sudeten Party members were said to have demonstrated outside a Communist meeting and to have been pelted with stones, glasses and chairs. The Sudetens attacked police, injuring two officers.

The crowd was dispersed, but several thousand Sudetens assembled later, singing the forbidden Nazi "Horst Wessel" song and chanting: "One people, one Fuehrer, one Reich."

Other Police Attacked.

At Friedberg, in southern Bohemia, a group of Sudetens was reported to have attacked a group of state gendarmes. Three of the officers were injured, one being sent to a hospital.

Italy Proclaims Readiness to Fight if Need Be

Rome, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Italy stood ready today "for any eventualities" as she watched allied Germany's maneuvers on behalf of the Sudeten German minority in Czechoslovakia.

With the whole Fascist state organized along semimilitary lines, special mobilization is not needed to be prepared for action.

The controlled press displayed prominently in the authoritative Informazione Diplomatica that the Italian "internal mechanism" guaranteed the country's readiness.

At the same time the hope was expressed in Fascist circles that Czechoslovakia would grant autonomy to the Sudeten Germans

Clipper to Bring 3 Mysterious Chinese to U. S.

Special Radio to The Post.

Manila, Sept. 9.—Mystery surrounding the arrival here today, on the Philippine Clipper from Hongkong, of four Chinese whose identity Pan-American Airways refused to divulge led to the belief that they were high Chinese officials on a mission of extreme importance to the United States.

Marines at the Pan-American base at Cavite closely scrutinized visitors and closed in when the passengers landed. As soon as the four Chinese left the Clipper they boarded a launch manned by Marines and were whisked away to an unknown destination.

The Foreign Situation

Italy—already operating on semi-military lines and needing only mobilization for war, proclaimed readiness "for any eventuality" as she watched the Sudeten situation. Italy has expressed sympathy for Germany.

Japan's armies thrust harder against Hankow, declaring a huge victory claimed by the Chinese would not affect the outcome.

Soviet Reported Asking Rumania To Pass Troops

Geneva, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—A consultation between representatives of Soviet Russia and Rumania—authoritatively reported to have dealt with the possibility of moving troops and supplies through Rumania to Czechoslovakia—today overshadowed the opening session of the League of Nations Council.

The council held a private session in late afternoon, but Geneva's attention centered on the talk between Foreign Commissar Litvinoff, of Russia, and Foreign Minister Comnen, o. Rumania.

Soviet Russia is pledged to join France in coming to the aid of Czechoslovakia in case of invasion.

President Denies 'Axis' To Stop Hitler

By the United Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 9.—President Roosevelt indicated at a press conference late today that the United States has not entered into any alignment with European democracies in a "stop-Hitler" movement.

The first question put to him at the conference involved reports from Europe to the effect an impression was growing there that the United States appeared to be normally aligned with the democracies in a stop-Hitler movement.

Notes Bullitt's Denial

This impression, it was pointed out, took root as the result of recent utterances on the part of himself, Ambassador William C. Bullitt in France, Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy in Great Britain and Secretary of State Hull.

In reply, Mr. Roosevelt indicated there was no alignment

He took occasion to recall that a press dispatch of what Bullitt had said had been categorically denied not only by the Ambassador but also by the embassy in Paris.

The dispatch quoted Bullitt as asserting that the United States stands with France "in war as in peace."

The President caustically observed that the interpretations of policies by some editors and columnists in this country was 100 per cent wrong and attributed the interpretations to political attempts to misinterpret facts.

He went on to say that the portion of the American press featuring the political angle of the international situation was behaving rather badly on the whole, adding that it was giving a false impression of the true picture.

Evidence of Stained Shirt Fails to Stir Major Brooke

By the United Press.

Columbus, Ga., Sept. 9.—Federal prosecutors, seeking to convict Maj. John R. Brooke for the murder of his wife, Elizabeth, today produced a bloody shirt which a witness identified as the one he found wadded up near a deserted house on the reservation at Fort Benning.

The shirt, according to testimony by Sergt. Ed Hudson, was found June 12, four days after Mrs. Brooke was found slain in the major's quarters. Hudson said he also found a laundry tag near the shirt.

The trial session ended, however, just as the prosecution prepared to introduce the laundry tag and presumably use it to identify the owner of the blood-stained shirt.

Brooke, stern and husky grandson of a famous Civil War general, showed little emotion as the shirt was shown to the jury. He rose slightly from his chair to see the shirt after the sergeant said he knew it belonged to an officer because of insignia pin holes in the shoulder straps.

As the prosecution continued its presentation of curt, military witnesses, Brooke again was confronted by testimony from Capt. Thomas R. Drake, assistant provost marshal for the post.

"What did you expect him to do, fall down and wallow upon the body of his wife?" Defense Counsel T. Hicks Fort shouted at the witness.

Drake replied that Brooke was "unmoved, except to become loud" in an attempt to have the post medical officer "change his decision as

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 9.—The British admiralty tonight adopted virtual wartime precautions. Four mine-laying destroyers were brought to full commission from a reserve status.

The government decided at midnight, the Daily Mail said, to inform Germany "in precise and formal terms" that Great Britain would not stand aside if Czechoslovakia were attacked.

Sir Nevile Henderson, Ambassador to Berlin, was directed to deliver a diplomatic note to this effect "probably to Adolf Hitler himself" at Nuremberg in the next few hours, the Daily Mail added.

Prime Minister Chamberlain consulted many hours with his "inner cabinet" before the unequivocal warning to Germany was drafted. While the ministers weighed hourly reports from the continent, the admiralty ordered full crew complements aboard the first minesweeper flotilla, composed of seven ships.

War Basis Admitted

Although the 42 ships of the British home fleet are maneuvering in the North Sea off Scotland—ready for action, with powder lockers crammed—tonight's move was the admiralty's first admission that it was acting because of the central European crisis.

Up to now the admiralty has insisted that the maneuvers were routine. So has France, which has her entire Atlantic fleet at Brest, with steam up.

As the "inner cabinet deliberated tonight, British public opinion seemed to be hardening in favor of a blunt warning to Germany.

Meeting with Chamberlain were Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Sir Robert Vansittart, chief diplomatic adviser to the government, and Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent undersecretary of foreign affairs.

The naval vessels affected by the order are all at their home ports, in positions where they could steam quickly to defense of the British isles.

Minesweepers at the Portland naval base to be brought to full complements are the Hebe, Hazard, Sharpshooter, Hussar, Salamander, Speedwell and Niger.

They are of the Halcyon class of small coastal sloops of 815-tons displacement, the full complement of each being 80 men. Each carries one 4-inch gun and one 4-inch anti-aircraft gun. All were built in the past five years.

Mine-laying destroyers affected were the Versatile, Vimy, Vortigern and Walker.

The basis of the decision tonight was the feeling of the government that Germany's foreign minister, Von Ribbentrop, might not be keeping the Fuehrer informed of Britain's strong attitude.

A. F. L. Rejects Earle to Back Davis' Election

Way Is Cleared for Test of Political Strength With C. I. O., Which May Support Governor.

By William V. Nessly.

The American Federation of Labor, in an announcement likely to have a profound effect in the Pennsylvania Senatorial election, yesterday threw its strength behind Senator Davis (Republican), who is opposed by Gov. Earle, Democratic nominee.

The A. F. L. also cleared the way, apparently, for another important test of political strength with John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chieftain whose forces generally are expected to back Earle, though to date efforts by the Earle ticket to obtain C. I. O. support have brought n opublic announcement of an agreement.

Federation backing for Senator Davis was announced by William Green, president, in a letter to Leo Abernathy, president of the Central Labor Council at Pittsburgh. Declaring that "Senator Davis has proved himself to be a real friend of labor," Green appealed to all members of the federation "and their friends" to "render all assistance possible in brniging about his re-election * * * by a most decisive majority."

Backed Both In Primaries

The federation claims up to 600,000 members in Pennsylvania, and counts on votes of wives and relatives of members to swell its political force.

At federation headquarters here yesterday it was pointed out that while the A. F. of L. had indorsed Davis for the Republican nomination and Earle for the Democratic selection, since both had won it became the duty of the organization to back the incumbent whose support of federation measures had been consistently maintained with actual votes in the Senate. This, with "other considerations," was said to have brought the A. F. of L. indorsement of the Republican nominee.

The "other considerations" were taken to mean likelihood that Earle and the Democratic ticket will be backed by Lewis, bitter rival for leadership of American labor.

Supported A. F. L. Bills

Green said in his letter:

"I am writing to advise you that our records show Senator J. J. Davis voted for all measures sponsored and approved by the American Federation of Labor during the period he has served as United States Senator from Pennsylvania. His record is 100 per cent. For this reason the federation most heartily indorses the candidacy of Senator Davis for re-election.

"It has been the policy of the federation to support its friends and oppose its enemies regardless of political affiliation. In pursuing such a nonpartisan political policy we have ever kept in mind that no member of Congress can do more to merit the political support of labor than to vote for its legislative program and to co-operate fully in making it effective."

The bitter factional split in the Democratic Party in this year's primary campaign has not been entirely repaired, a fact that has encouraged Republicans to predict their return to control of the State government. That control was broken for the firs time since the Civil War when Earle was elected Governor in 1934.

Guppy Made Peace

Rival tickets in the Democratic primary carried on such heated cannonading at each other that President Roosevelt, asked for comment, advised his questioners to read Dante's Inferno.

Earle and Charles Alvin Jones, for Senator and Governor, respectively, were opposed by Mayor S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia, and Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy. Lewis and the C. I. O., and Senator Joseph F. Guffey supported the latter ticket. On the eve of the primary Postmaster eneral Farley, as Democratic national committeeman, proposed a compromise slate of Earle for Senator and Kennedy for Governor. Both sides were enraged at the suggestion.

The Earle-Jones ticket was successful and it was not long before Senator Guffey had made peace with them and was made campaign manager for the slate.

But Lewis, who was denounced by Earle in the primary campaign as attempting to get control of the State government through election of Kennedy, an official in Lewis' United Mine Workers, has never publicly given the successful candidates his assistance.

Senator Davis was one of the few Republican Senator who overcame the Democratic landslide of 1932 that sent Franklin D. Roosevelt to the White House. With a vote of 1,375,489, he had a majority of 174,729 over Laurence H. Rupp, the Democratic nominee.

Two years later, however, the Democratic tide hit Pennsylvania, also, and Guffey was elected to the Senate over David I. Reed, Republican incumbent. Guffey captured 1,494,010 votes, which was 127,138 more than were given Reed.

Earle, one of the first and most consistent advocates of a Roosevelt third term, has been having difficulties in his efforts, through a special session of the Legislature, to head off a grand jury investigation into charges against him and others in his official family, and additional cause for Republican optimism over the State's election in November.

Margiotti Grilled On Earle Records

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 9 (U.P.).—The special legislative committee "airing" graft charges against Gov. Earle's Democratic State administration late today grilled the chief accuser, former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, on disposition of records pertinent to the inquiry.

Margiotti, whom Earle dismissed last April 27 for refusing to turn over evidence in support of his primary campaign charges that administration leaders "sold" legislation and "maced" State employes and architects for political purposes, admitted that original copies of State Authority construction contracts were turned over by his authorization to a Pittsburgh engineering firm, Hunt & Co., for comparison of materials with specifications.

The House committee chairman, Representative Herbert B. Cohen, questioned the legality of the transfer of the contracts.

'The Man' Bilbo Asseverates Neither He Nor Roosevelt Is a Politician!

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Senator Bilbo (Democrat), of Mississippi, who wages colorful political campaigns, was asked after a conference with President Roosevelt today whether politics had been discussed.

BILBO.

Bilbo said the President is agreeable to increasing old-age pensions if new tax money is provided to meet the cost.

"My main fight in the next session of Congress will be to double the present old-age pension rate of 30 a month," he told reporters. "The old folks should have $60 a month—half from the Federal Government and half from the States."

Sheridan Downey, who pledged a 30 weekly pension for the aged, defeated Senator McAdoo, the President's choice, in the California Senatorial primary.

Bilbo said his proposal was "not an answer to Downey," but was based on "the needs of the old folks."

Later at his press conference, the President said he had asked Bilbo one question—how was he going to raise the money?

Mr. Roosevelt added he would be glad if all the reporters present could receive $25,000 a year—if a sound method of financing such salaries could be found.

San Francisco, Sept. 9.—Belated returns in the close race for Republican nomination for United States Senator from California whittled ultra-conservative Phillip Bancroft's lead over Ray Riley to 2,469 votes today.

With all but 86 of the State's 12,438 precincts reported, unofficial returns gave Bancroft 287,769 votes and Riley, a veteran State official, 285,300. Of the 86 unreported precincts, 83 were in counties which favored Riley. Most of them were in counties that had favored Riley by better than a 3 to 2 vote.

Senator Adams, of Colorado, reported to the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee expenditures of $680 in his Democratic primary campaign for renomination. He said he had received no contributions.

Senator Gibson (Republican), of Vermont, listed expenditures of $29 in his campaign for renomination. Gibson previously had reported $96 expended. He listed no contributions.

Lillian Symes Clements, Los Gatos, Calif., Socialist candidate for Senator, reported contributions of $304 and expenditures of $234.

Two senatorial aspirants listed no expenditures or contributions. They were Burt H. Clingan, Phoenix, Ariz., a Republican, and A. R. Lamb, Enid, Okla., Prohibitionist.

Representative Clark, Idaho Democratic senatorial nominee, arrived yesterday to see department officials about Idaho matters.

He said he would spend several days in Washington discussing CCC, reclamation and farm problems. He said he was particularly anxious to obtain Administration approval of a new purchase program to remove surplus potatoes from the Idaho market.

The American Liberty League reported yesterday that loans of $17,650 from Pierre S. and Irenee duPont had financed its national headquarters for part of this year.

This information came to the clerk of the House in a report on political organizations. Each duPont made loans of $8,825. The league listed total contributions since January 1 of $48,797 and expenditures of $48,292, with a balance of $628 on hand at start of this month.

Hoover Sees 'Bedlam' in New Deal

Ex-President Heads East For Study of Roosevelt Proposal to Organize Liberal Party.

By the Associated Press.

Ogden, Utah., Sept. 9.—America may find the New Deal "more bedlamite than liberal," Herbert Hoover declared in an interview today.

En route East to deliver two of three campaign speeches, the former President said, "Mr. Roosevelt has proposed that the New Deal be converted into a major political party.

"He states that it is to be liberal. I propose to explore this idea in a series of speeches.

"We may find this new party more bedlamite than liberal. We will find that like all other political parties it has some good objectives. Fortunately for the American people they do not have to take his new party on trust. After six years of experience with it, we can soberly apply the test given us by the Greatest Teacher of Mankind.

"I shall not omit the other part of that lesson, which mentions false prophets in sheep's clothing.

"The first address, at Kansas City, September 28, will discuss the moral foundations of this new party. The second, at Hartford, Conn., October 17, will debate its bearings on representative government. The third, at Spokane, Wash., probably on November 4 or 5, will explore its economic consequences to workers and farmers, and in all three I will suggest alternative action to meet the changing times."

Hoover said he does not plan to speak in behalf of any particular candidate and that his three addresses will be under auspices of the Republican State committees in the various States.

Between now and his first speech, Hoover said he would attend meetings of educational and scientific foundations to which he belongs at Chicago and New York.

Labor Act Change Isn't Needed, Says C.I.O. Paper

The C. I. O. said yesterday that President Roosevelt's recent study of Great Britain's labor conditions had developed nothing to justify changes in the Wagner labor act.

The C. I. O., in an editorial in its weekly publication, said principles of the act had been in existence in Britain for a long time and added that there is no disposition to revoke them.

In another statement, the C. I. O. announced a majority of locals in the United Automobile Workers' Union had approved the proposals of John L. Lewis, chairman, for settlement of the union's internal strife.

The U. W. A. executive board expelled four officers and suspended a fifth. Lewis proposed that the officers be reinstated and that opposing factions declare a truce until the organization's convention next August.

Narcotics Suspect Held for Grand Jury

United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday ordered Percy B. Azerovitz, 23, 506 Fifth street northwest, held for grand jury action on a charge of violating the Jones-Miller narcotic act. Bond was fixed at $1,000.

Azerovitz was arrested by Detective Sergt. R. S. Bryant, of the police narcotic squad, and Treasury agents. Commissioner Turnage was told the arrest was made after Azerovitz had sold heroin to an officer.

Would Shun Politics on Job, O'Conor Says

Appointment of men and women on the basis of efficiency alone was pledged last night by Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, candidate for nomination as Governor of Maryland, in a speech to an Independent Democratic rally in the KeKnsington National Guard Armory. The address folowed a torchlight parade, which started at Ashton and wound through suburban areas of Montgomery County.

The time has come, O'Conor said, "to insist on representatives in office who will devote themselves to official tasks, rather than keep one eye always on the formation of a machine. The Governor should exercise the important power of appointment to place in office men and women——" he paused. "I assure you," he continued, "women will be appointed not as a mere gesture on my part, but because I believe it will be an important step toward good government and elimination of graft."

He said it was impossible for a Governor to serve both as Governor and political boss of a State and "exercise the proper judgment in appointing officials." Such double service, he said, inevitably brings the political machine into conflict with the best interests of the State.

"The City of Baltimore," he said, "is $4,000,000 in the red and this deficit is thrown on Baltimore County and on the whole State. Mayor Jackson (Mayor Howard W. Jackson, an opponent) sees things from the standpoint of Baltimore City; I see them from tha tof the entire State of Maryland."

Approximately 1,000 persons heard O'Conor and other candidates on the Independent ticket. Among these were John B. Gontrum, of Baltimore County, condidate for attorney general; Joseph A. Cantrel, candidate for Congress, and Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee, candidate for clerk of the Court of Appeals.

WPA Investigates Ohio 'Chiselers'

By the Associated Press.

The Works Progress Administration directed Howard O. Hunter, regional director at Chicago, yesterday to decide whether "chiselers" were carried on the Ohio rolls.

State Relief Director William O. Dixon asked Hopkins for $100,000 to clear WPA rolls of those ineligible for employment. He contended if these persons were removed from the rolls the State would be saved nearly $1,000,000 monthly and the relief problem would be "practically solved."

Hopkins Holds WPA Blameless In Kentucky

Works Progress Administrator Hopkins yesterday defended WPA conduct in the Kentucky primaries, as the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee turned its spotlight on dismissal of RFC and NEC officials supporting Senator George in Georgia.

The Senate committee asked the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to explain the removal of Edgar B. Dunlap, Georgia RFC attorney connected with George's campaign.

Ask NEC to Explain

It also asked the National Emergency Council why Earl Cocke, also a George supporter, was dismissed. Chairman Sheppard said the committee had heard reports of investigators on both incidents and is now taking up the matter "with the authorities responsible for their dismissals."

The committee will meet on both cases today. It was said that no formal complaint had been made to the committee on reports that Shackleford Miller, manager of Senator Barkley's Kentucky campaign, was allowed to continue his firm's contract connections with the RFC.

Hopkins' reply to the committee followed letters written to both the WPA Administrator and Chairman Altmeyer, of the Social Security Board, transmitting investigator's reports of political activities by their Kentucky employes in the Barkley-Chandler primaries. The committee had expressed "disappointment" at Hopkins' failure to respond to an earlier letter.

The committee charged "flagrant violations" by local WPA officials of the laws against political activity by Government workers.

Hopkins said he saw "no cause or reason for disciplinary action" on his part against WPA employes who checked registration lists in Russell and Pulaski counties, Ky.

Check Called Impartial

The question of voters' preferences for either Barkley or his unsuccessful opponent, Gov. Chandler, was "never raised" in the WPA check, Hopkins wrote.

The check, Hopkins said, was made on a complaint by "one of the parties in the primary" that preponderant number of persons being certified were Republicans and that Democrats were being discriminated against. He said the information was forwarded to the WPA State office by the WPA director of District No. 2, and in turn given to the complainant.

"There is no evidence of any other use of this material and I see no cause or reason for disciplinary action on my part for those who gathered this information," Hopkins said.

His letter said disciplinary action has been taken against E. T. Rich, WPA foreman, charged with promising a WPA worker better employment with the State if he would support one of the candidates, and against Cleve Keeney, another WPA foreman, accused of saying WPA workers would have to support "one of the Senatorial candidates or lose their jobs."

The WPA administrator said he had ordered a further investigation of the committee's findings of a comprehensive canvass of 18,000 WPA employes in 32 western counties of Kentucky.

He said a WPA timekeeper involved in other evidence submitted by the committee denied under oath that he solicited or obtained signatures of workers on a project.

Meanwhile the committee's findings of Government worker activity for Barkley were attacked by Senator Logan (Democrat), of Kentucky, who supported Barkley's candidacy.

Logan said he "didn't believe it, unless they have taken the exception andtried to make that the rule."

Calls Examiners "Wild"

"In my judgment," said Logan, "they sent some of these wild examiners down there and they have made a report, as they always do, attempting to condemn someone without evidence."

The day passed without any further committee developments on charges and counter charges hurled by Senator Tydings and Representative Lewis in the Maryland primaries. A meeting will be called either today or tomorrow to act on the final findings of Maryland investigators.

Other actions by the committee yesterday:

Ordered further investigation of charges by E. S. Fuller, of Savannah, or irregularities in registration of voters in some Georgia counties.

Uphold Senator Sheppard's contention that the Workers Alliance, a WPA union, cannot legally collect funds from Government employes for political use.

Promised to investigate charges of political contributions of Federal employes in the South Dakota campaign and Gov. Langer's charges of intimidation of WPA workers in the North Dakota primary.

63-Cent Loan On Corn Likely; Heat Cuts Crop

Four Per Cent Reduction in August Estimates Is Result of Pests and Lack of Rain.

By Robert C. Albright.

A corn loan of approximately 63 cents a bushel appeared in prospect last night despite a 112,000,000-bushel drop in corn estimates which cut the crop below the level fixed for mandatory loans in the Farm act.

Hot weather, lack of rainfall and pests trimmed the bumper corn prospect of August to 2,454,526,000 bushels, or 4 per cent below last month's expectations, the crop reporting board said.

Slight reductions narrowed other harassing farm surpluses, but above-average yields still are expected in all important field crops with the single exception of winter wheat.

Basic Situation Unchanged

"The National crop situation does not appear to have been fundamentally changed," the board said.

On the basis of prior reports, AAA officials had planned a 57-cent corn loan under farm law provisions making a 70 per cent of parity loan mandatory if when supplies dropped just below a normal year's domestic consumption and exports.

Yesterday's estimates fell below that level, but AAA experts pointed to a price provision of the law apparently assuring farmers an even larger loan.

The act provides for a 75 per cent of parity loan (63 cents) if November 15 prices are less than 75 per cent of parity.

Price Rise "Remote"

One AAA corn economist said supplies and the present price situation made a corn loan of 63 cents virtually certain after November 15. He said the only thing that would prevent it would be a good rise in prices, "and that is a very remote contingency."

Government loans on wheat and cotton already have ben ordered as a result of over supplies. In addition, the department has provided a 57-cent loan on corn produced prior to 1938 for farmers who complied with the 1937 farm program. A report by the Commodity Credit Corporation yesterday showed 46,789,320 bushels of corn already are held under the 1937 50-cent corn loan.

The 2,454,526,000-bushel corn crop estimated yesterday, although 112,000,000 bushels under the yield forecast a month ago, still was 148,000,000 bushels above the ten-year (1927-36) average. Added to it will be a 320,000,000-bushel carryover, estimated as of October 1.

Plains Hardest Hit

The Crop Reporting Board attributed much of the August decline to dry weather, hot winds and grasshopper infestation in South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas, and to lack of rain in Missouri. Nebraska corn estimates alone dropped 90,000,000 bushels and in the whole corn belt 100,000,000 bushels. Corn in the east north Central States improved.

Cuts in other crops forecast in yesterday's estimates included a 16,000,000-bushel decrease in spring wheat production, a decrease of 17,000,000 bushels in grain sorgums and smaller reductions of 3 per cent or less in oats, cotton, buckwheat, flaxseed, potatoes, tobacco, wild hay, sugar beets and apples. Small increases were shown for barley, rice, tame hap and grapes.

An estimated total wheat crop of 939,972,000 bushels fell 16,017,000 bushels under the August estimate, with variations in the spring wheat and durum estimates. The all-wheat crop estimate still is about 8 per cent above last year's production and 25 per cent above the 10-year average. The total will be only about 7 per cent smaller than the record crop of 1915.

Crops Seriously Hurt

A day earlier the department had forecast an 11,825,000-bale cotton crop. A surplus of 13,400,000 bales already was on hand from prior years' on halt of which the Government has made loans. The cotton estimate was 7,121,000 bales under last year, but with the present world surplus of American cotton would provide a supply 330,000 larger than that of last year.

While the new estimates did not materially change crop volumes for the country as a whole, droughts have severely hit farmers in a number of areas.

President Urges Repeal Of Poll Taxes

Says Virginia Denies Vote To Third of Qualified White Citizens; Backs Arkansas Change.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 9.—President Roosevelt late today expressed emphatic opposition to State poll taxes, saying they disenfranchised large portions of the population.

The President said his views did not pertain particularly to any one States. In some States, he added, a good many citizens still are denied the right to vote because they cannot pay poll taxes, though many States have been getting away from that tax.

He said that Virginia, for instance, has a high poll tax which disqualifies one-third of the qualified white voters of the State.

Backs Arkansas Change

The President told his press conference, in response to questions, that State poll taxes apparently were the outgrowth of requirements in the post-Revolutionary War period that citizens own property before they could vote.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed he previously had written to Brooks Hays, Arkansas national Democratic committeeman, indorsing a proposed Arkansas constitutional amendment to abolish the State poll tax.

The President, aske dabout his recent conference with Gov. Elmer Benson of Minnesota, said only that the farm problem had been discussed.

No "Peep" Fro mMaryland

He said he talked about numerous topics with Attorney General Cummings, who called at the Summer White House yesterday.

Asked whether it could be inferred from the talk that the Administration would make no new efforts to defeat anti-Administration candidates, the President said such a conclusion was not justified.

Questioned about the Maryland political situation, where he has urged nomination of Representative Lewis over Senator Tydings, the President said he had not heard a peep from Maryland.

The President said the question of poll taxes has nothing to do with the question of colored persons voting. The latter, he asserted, should be considered separately.

Hits New Jersey "Ladies"

The imposition of poll taxes, the President said, is in the same category as amovement he sadi had been launched by ladies in New Jersey to keep people on relief rolls from voting. The President told reporters they could put the word "ladies" in quotation marks.

If carried to its logical conclusion, the Chief Executive continued, the poll tax requirement might be changed to require a person to have a college degree before voting.

Earlier in the day, the President cruised on the Hudson River aboard his yahct Potomac. Accompanying the President on his cruise were Gerard Swope, of the General Electric Co.; Theodore Dreiser, writer, and Elliott Roosevelt, the Shief Executive's son.

Jury Indicts Mayor Wilson In Vice Probe

By the United Press.

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—Mayor S. Davis Wilson, four police officials and the reputed "kingpin" of Philadelphia gambling were indicted late today by the August grand jury.

Twenty-one true bills were returned against the mayor, one containing four counts charging failure to suppress gambling, and the others alleging interference with witnesses before the State legislative committee investigating criminal justice, "unlawful" removal and demotion of police and fire bureau officials and "other misbehaviors in office."

Nate Schaeffer, described by police as the city's "gambling czar;" Police Inspector James E. Clegg and Capts. Robert Callahan, Ernest Holmes and George Kronbar also were named. The jury handed down 147 indictments. Other true bills were impounded while State police started a round-up of the principals.

Mayor Wilson labeled the indictments "persecution," promising that "at the proper time I shall at last have my day in court when a full revelation will be made of all that is back of the present persecution."

Judge Curtis Bok, who received the indictments, set $10,000 bail for Wilson "because of the seriousness of the charges." Wilson was permitted to sign a bail bond at his home. The police officials were to appear for bail tomorrow. Schaeffer is listed as a fugitive from State police, who seek to subpena him to appear before the special grand jury and testify.

Schaeffer was accused specifically of "conspiring with other persons not named to set up and maintain gambling establishments."

Paris Heaps Sand to Stop Air Bombs

Mighty War Forces Wait; Britain Asked to Halt Hitler With Assurance She Will Fight.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Paris, Sept. 9 (AP).—The French government turned anxious attention today to civilian defense measures, now that French fighting forces—army, air force and navy—are prepared for any emergency that might arise from the Czechoslovak-German crisis.

Distribution of gas masks to civilians was planned.

Tons of sand were trucked into Paris to bulwark shelters and public buildings in the capital against bombs. A certain amount of nervousness was evident among Paris civilians.

Diplomatic circles reported that Charles Corbin, French Ambassador to London, had been told to ask the British government to make a public proclamation that it would defend Czechoslovakia from aggression. A high foreign office official said he could neither "confirm nor deny" the report.

British Stand Asked

Some sources said the envoy also had been instructed to ask Britain to take "defensive security measures"—like those of France in putting 1,200,000 men under arms and cancellation of leaves for officers and sailors of the Atlantic fleet with preparations for 60 days at sea.

It was widely believed that so long as Reichsfuehrer Hitler holds the impression he could hope for new British pressure in Czechoslovakia on behalf of the Sudeten German minority, he would demand more and more concessions.

Communist Deputy Gabriel Peri wrote to the Socialist Party asking support for a proposal to convene the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies.

France is pledged to defend Czechoslovakia; Britain has declined to imply more than a we-might-fight attitude if Hitler were to take forceful means to "protect" Czechoslovakia's Germanic minority.

Concurrently with Paris' nervousness, French and international stocks and bonds went far below yesterday's closing prices and were continuing downward when the day's session of the Bourse ended.

Frontier Traffic Interrupted.

Huningue, French-German Frontier, Sept. 9 (AP).—French military authorities, prepared for action on a war-time basis, intermittently blocked traffic today on a pontoon bridge across the Rhine into Germany.

The entire region guarding the Burgundian gateway into France from Germany was alive with soldiers. Machine-gun emplacements on the French side of the Rhine have been occupied by troops.

French military planes droned over the banks of the Rhine, keeping in touch with ground forces and observing the movements on the German side of the frontier.

Hitler Held Undecided

Special Cable to The Post.

Paris, Sept. 9.—Paris hears that Hitler is still undecided as to the line he will take toward Czechoslovakia in his speech at Nuremberg Monday and is hesitating as usual between two schools of opinion.

The Nazi radicals, including Foreign Minister Ribbentrop, Gen. Paul Josef Goebbels and the "Gestapo" Chief Heinrich Himmler advocate force, arguing England does not want to intervene and France cannot fight singlehanded.

The moderates, who comprise most of the generals, notably Keitle, Von Fritsch, Goering and Von Neurath, the former foreign minister, are reported to favor a settlement by negotiations, taking the stand that Germany cannot be sure of the war being localized and if it should develop into a general conflict the Reich would be almost certain to lose, not being equipped now for a protracted struggle.

War Fever Prevails in Paris as Conscripts Entrain for Military Service demonstrations and shouts of "We thank our Fuehrer" and "Heil."

"At a time when there are clouds on the horizon," Hitler said deliberately, "I see about me those millions of unflinching, nay fanatical, national Socialists, whose leadership you constitute and for whose leadership you are responsible.

"Just as I could rely blindly upon you in the days of our struggle, so today again Germany and I can depend upon you.

"You have been tried and hardened in those long years. You have experienced for yourself what power there is inherent in the community spirit and how indissolubly you are bound together by that spirit—a spirit which is determined to capitulate before nobody.

"You Make It Easy"

"You make it easy for me to be your leader.

"Those who these 15 years counted upon the collapse or dissolution of our movement were mistaken. Those who believed in or count upon weakness of Germany today will find themselves exactly as mistaken.

"If I look to you thus I do not see 180,000 political leaders before me—I see in my mind's eye the entire German nation.

"A people isn't more than its leadership, neither is a people less than its leadership.

"The leadership shall be a good one—that we will promise.

"With this pledge you shall return again to your tasks, with unshatterable faith in greater Germany."

The Fuehrer welcomed the participation in the congress for the first time of Austrian Nazis, "now and forever part of us."

Henderson Leaves

After his conference with Von Ribbentrop, Sir Nevile arranged to leave Nuremberg, which meant that he would not converse with Hitler personally.

"It is not customary for the fuehrer to receive diplomats in special audience during convention week," a high foreign office official said, "as he is extremely busy.

"If Sir Nevile wanted to see Hitler it could have been only on the basis of instructions received since he returned from London. When he returned from London (on August 31) he had only a general message."

Plebiscite Predicted

High Nazis predicted earlier that Hitler would demand—and get—a plebiscite for the Sudeten German minority in Czechoslovakia which they said would give the British the opportunity to "save face" upon the "failure" of Viscount Runciman's mediation commission because "the plebiscite is a democratic idea."

Hitler in the morning listened to addresses before the party convention on Nazi agriculture by Minister of Agriculture Walther Darre and on the labor service by Maj. Gen. Konstantin Hierl, commissioner for the compulsory labor service.

Darre, in his annual report, cited figures to back the statement in Hitler's proclamation last Tuesday that Germany had sufficient food stored to last for years.

Grain for Two Years

"We have sufficient bread grain stored," he said, "to meet the needs of the German people for two years.

"Furthermore, compared with July, 1936, the storage of frozen meats and meat conserves has risen from 5,000 tons to 62,500 tons. The storage of meat fats has doubled within the same period.

"Still better are the reserves in the once very difficult field of vegetable fats, which at the end of July, 1938, were so large they could meet needs for seven and one-half months.

20,000 Girls Drafted

Maj. Gen. Hierl announced the addition of between 20,000 and 25,000 girls to the labor service, bringing the total to 50,000.

The cancellation of Hitler's scheduled speech before the women's auxiliary allowed Gertrud Scholtz-Klink, women's leader, to hold forth alone.

She told her audience that "we know that what our fuehrer does is always right, so we send him our greetings and pledge of loyalty."

Czech

the breaking of the deadlock in negotiations was one of deep relief, a grave view was taken of the new reports of Sudeten-Czech violence.

Sudeten leaders had already warned against any undue optimism regarding the restored negotiations on the basis of the government's "last and ultimate" plan published yesterday. The plan offers to establish a system of autonomous cantons but it fails to satisfy Konrad Henlein's full autonomy program as outlined by him in a speech at Carlsbad last April 24.

Wants Nazi Control.

The new plan does not, as Henlein demanded, provide for a unified Sudeten state administered entirely by German officials.

"Thus, according to Henlein's spokesmen, the Sudeten party in its own districts would be required to tolerate sub-minorities and opposing parties such as the anti-Nazi German Social Democrats, Communists and Jewish groups.

"This is incompatible with the totalitarian home-rule principle to which Henlein has pledged the party," one Sudeten leader said.

It was announced that the government is prepared to grant 700,000,000 Kroner ($24,185,000) in credit to the Sudeten areas under a plan to be launched this year to aid their development. Economic oppression has been one of the chief Sudeten complaints.

Government Firm

"Immediate solution of the chief question at issue must be achieved in order to secure a lasting and effective understanding regarding the minorities question," the government comunique stressed. However, the government answered Nazi agitation for a plebiscite in the Sudeten German areas with the statement that the "full sovereignty and unity of the state" will be defended above all minority considerations.

The announcement, revealing a stiffened Czech attitude toward the 3,500,000 Sudetens, was believed to have been dictated by President Benes.

Benes Speaks Tonight

This insistence upon establishing national unity before deciding upon solution of minority grievances is expected to be expanded when Benes makes a radio appeal, first in Czech and then in German, at 5:30 p. m. (11:30 p. m. E. S. T.) Saturday.

Benes' warning against any efforts to split up the state, or create a "state within the state," resulted from reassuring support by Prague's military allies, France and Soviet Russia, during the past 24 hours, it was learned on high authority.

France and Russia were said to have informed Benes, through their diplomatic agents here, to place his new plan before the Sudetens on a "take-it-or-leave-it" basis.

Russia was said to have informed the Czechs that she is ready to support them with several millions of Red Army troops, if necessary, but only on condition that there are no further concessions to Hitler. This information was said to have come from Russian Minister M. I. Alexandrovsky.

Somewhat similar assurances were said to have been received from Paris.

At Jaezendorf yesterday a crowd of 5,000 Sudetens massed in front of the police station blocked official plans for the private burial of Alfred Knoll, 20-year-old Sudeten killed when he leaped from a train to escape police after his conviction on military espionage charges.

Knoll, an army reservist, had been sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment.

Police had ordered private burial but were unable to carry out their plans because of the demonstration. A Sudeten deputy intervened with local Czech officials who finally agreed to a public funeral.

The death of Knoll "under mysterious circumstances" was partially responsible for the last breakdown in negotiations.

Sudeten Deputy Ernst Kundt, chief negotiator for Henlein, agreed to "complete liquodation" of the Maehrisch-Astrau incident after he was informed that the police director of the town and several police officials had been discharged and arrested.

Premier Hodza informed Kundt that the policemen, including one accused of beating a Sudeten deputy with a riding whip, would be punished.

As result of these assurances, it was announced in Sudeten and government communiques, the Sudetens agreed to resume negotiations at 11 a. m. (5 a. m. Eastern Standard time) Saturday.

Hitler and Henlein, who are together at the Nazi party congress in Nuremberg across the border, were understood to have pressed for a speedy settlement of the Maehrisch-Ostrau incident.

Falls Church Reverses Stand, Accepts Highway

The row of stately maples along West Broad street in Falls Church, Va., was sentenced to death last night by the town council when it voted unanimously to grant the State highway commission a 40-foot right of way along the street from Lee highway to the town line. At a public hearing before the vote, a petition for the right of way, containing 600 names, was presented.

Since May, the question of whether to have the trees or the highway has been one of bitterness in Falls Church. The highway commission then asked for the right of way and immediately tree lovers protested. In August the old council held hearings on the matter, then voted to grant the commission's request. The new council, upon taking office September 1, promptly rescinded the old body's action. Last night it reversed itself.

The new highway will be about 7,000 feet long and will cost approximately $70,000.

head of the Labor Party, Maj. Clement Atlee, tomorrow morning. The government is also sounding out the heads of other currents of public opinion.

Winston Churchill, an advocate of extreme firmness with Hitler, was called in last week. Today, Anthony Eden—who resigned as foreign secretary last February because he could not get Chamberlain to be "tough" with Premier Mussolini—spent half an hour with Lord Halifax at the foreign office.

Chamberlain and the "inner cabinet" later discussed a report from Maj. Sutton Pratt, British observer in Prague, who visited the scene of the incident at Marovaska-Ostdava and informed Whitehall that Czech-Sudeten clash had been "very much exaggerated."

Every report reaching the foreign office and Downing street from Germany indicates that Hitler and Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop think the British were bluffing when they warned that a conflict would almost inevitably involve them.

Britain Calls Reserves in U. S.

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—The New York World-Telegram says that while official denials were offered, it was learned on good authority that secret orders have gone out from the British war office to technical reserve officers in the United States to place their affairs in order and prepare for mobilization.

Such orders have not been issued since the late summer days of 1914 and those orders were followed promptly by the official mobilization order of Great Britain for the subjects of the empire to come home at once, ready for war.

G-Men Study U. S. Recruiting For Spain War

By the Associated Press.

Government prosecutors announced yesterday they were investigating the recruiting of Americans for the Spanish war.

Brien McMahon, Assistant Attorney General, informed the House committee investigating "un-American" activities that Justice Department agents had been ordered to look into testimony before the committee by two Americans who served in Spain.

Abraham Sobel and Alvin I. Halpern, Boston youths who returned to this country after serving with the Spanish government forces, told the Congressional committee they were induced to enlist by communistic groups in this country and that their passports and transportation to Spain were paid for by agents of these groups.

Informed persons said a joint committee representing the Justice, State and Labor Departments had been quietly investigating statutes involved in foreign enlistment for several months.

Miance Killed, Bride Injured In Auto Crash

Beaver Falls, Pa., Sept. 9 (AP).—A few hours after they had applied today for a marriage license, Frank Myers was killed and his prospective bride was injured in an automobile accident.

Myers, 27, of Darlington, Pa., and Mrs. Rose Schmit, 25, a widow, crashed into a truck on their way home.

Paris Rejected Reich Peace Plan in 1922

By the Associated Press.

The State Department has just disclosed how France rejected a German proposal, made in 1922, that European powers agree to take a popular vote before going to war.

The scheme would have operated for 30 years.

Although failure of the proposal was announced at the time, its details are contained in hitherto secret documents being published in the regular 15-year reports of the State Department.

Germany proposed that the United States initiate conversations about such an agreement. Under it, France, Great Britain, Italy and Germany would promise Washington not to resort to war against each other without a plebiscite.

France Queried First

Charles Evans Hughes, then Secretary of State, decided to submit the idea first to the French. He considered it unwise to approach other governments unless France treated the proposal seriously.

The formal French objection was that her constitution gave to Parliament the duty of making war, and acceptance of the German proposal would require a constitutional change.

But Ambassador Jusserand, carrying his instructions from Paris in hand, told Secretary Hughes the Germans couldn't be relied upon, that if they wanted to make war they could easily get a vote to that effect, and that they were looking for revenge against the French.

Hughes argued there was great power in "auto-suggestion" and if a nation determined to set itself toward peace and not war, that would be helpful. Furthermore, he said, the world was war-weary and the time was ripe to oppose war.

Jusserand resubmitted the proposal to Premier Poincaire of France, but the answer again was "no." The premier contended that "with the hatred which they (the Germans) were instilling in the youth by instruction in their schools, they could easily provide for a plebiscite whenever they wanted it."

Japanese Hurl Fresh Troops At Hankow

Deny Chinese Claims of 'Greatest Victory Since Taierhchwang,' Vision Speedy Capture.

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Saturday), Sept. 10.—Japan threw 40,000 fresh troops into the drive on Hankow today and said that the provisional Chinese national capital will be taken by the end of this month.

Meantime, however, the Chinese claimed the "greatest victory since Taierhchwang" in a great battle near Kwangtsi, on the north bank of the Yangtze River below Hankow, in which thousands of Japanese were killed and 30 heavy guns and other military supplies captured.

Japanese denied the claim and foreign military attaches said that even if it is true it will have little effect on the final outcome of the great battle for Hankow in which the Chinese are being outmaneuvered.

The Japanese estimated Chinese dead in a week of fighting around Kwangtsi, "in which 19 Chinese divisions were routed," at 15,500, and said they took 1,200 prisoners and many munitions.

As the Japanese pressed forward along a dozen routes it was apparent that, in every battle, their superiority in the air, in long-range artillery and in tactics were such that the Chinese could hope only to inflict maximum casualties on them before abandoning the Hankow tricity area—traditional military heart of China.

The Japanese rapidly were completing plans for a new Chinese national government to be composed of the present provisional regimes in Peiping and Nanking and additional new sectional governments in Hankow and in Canton, if that great south China metropolis finally is taken.

Japan Assures Germany of 'Moral Support'

Tokyo, Sept. 9, (AP).—Without any solicitation from her anti-communist ally, Japan has assured Germany of "moral support" in the German-Czech dispute, an informed source said today.

The German ambassador, Maj. Gen. Eugene Ott, saw Kensuke Horinouchi, vice minister of foreign affairs, today but did not ask for such assurances, the foreign office spokesman said.

He added "I do not think so" when asked whether Japan previously had assured Germany of support, but other informants said moral sympathy had been extended in return for similar expressions from Germany during Japan's dispute with Soviet Russia over the Siberian border.

Franco Throws All His Strength Into Ebro Line

Hendaye, France, Sept. 9 (AP).—Gen. Franco today hurled his available planes, ttanks and reinforcements into the Ebro River battle in an attempt to drive the loyalists back across the river to Catalolnia Province.

Both sides reported heavy losses in the six-day insurgent drive.

More than 100 insurgent planes constantly bombarded the loyalist lines, some 8 miles from the river, throughout the day.

Prince Georges, Lewis County, Held 'Close'

Sen. Tydings, Cheered by Reports, to Invade It Toda; yVictory Seen In Montgomer.

By Edward T. Folliard

The two Maryland counties bordering on the Capital—Montgomery and Prince Georges—offer an amazingly different political climate three days in davance of the Democratic senatorial primary.

Montgomery, according to Democratic politicians who rarely have been wrong in the past, will give an overwhelming vote to Senator Tydings.

Prince Georges has been expected all along to vote for Representative Lewis, the Roosevelt choice for Tydings' seat. The Tydings people long ago put it in Lewis' column, regarding it as hopeless territory. Now, however, something has happened. Tydings supporters say it is going to be "close," and Lewis' workers don't challenge the prediction very vehemently, although they do insist Lewis has the edge.

At any rate, Senator Tydings was so cheered by reports from Prince Georges that he selected it for the last outdoor speech of his campaign. He will address a rally today at 3 p. m. in the Capitol Heights Community Park.

The contrasting situations in Montgomery and Prince Georges emphasize a ponit that puts Maryland in a class by itself where the Administration's purge is concerned. Elsewhere, a purge may be able to fall back on a party organization. In Mrayland neither Tydings nor Lewis can lay claim to any State-wide organization.

The leaders of the Democratic organization ni Montgomery—those of the "Independent" faction as well as those of the "United" faction—are, for the most part, in favor of Tydings' nomination for a third term and are working for him.

Contrarily, Democratic leaders in Prince Georges are seeking to put over Lewis, although the organization itself has never openly indorsed him.

Tydings probably would have run a good race in Montgomery without organization support. The county, named after Gen. Richard Montgomery, is one of the most prosperous in the State. The prediminant voting group, located in Bethesda, Chevy Chase, Silver Spring and Takoma Park, is a middle-class, home-owning element that is inclined to be conservative.

Many Federal employes who live in this area are particularly grateful to Tydings for voting against the Administration's bill to reorganize the Government departments and establishments.

New Dealers in this Federal group will vote aginst Tydings because of that bit of recalcitrancy, among others.

The farm vote ouside of Montgomery's suburban area is expected to be split between Tydings and Lewis, and so is the so-called labor vote nearer the city.

Tydings' workers report widespread resentment over President Roosevelt's participation in the campaign on behalf of "Little Davey" Lewis.

The County Congress of the Democratic organization in Montgomery, made up of delegates from all voting districts, met in Rockville last February and indorsed Tydings and Lewis—Tydings for a third term in the Senate, Lewis for another term in the House. Montgomery is in the Sixth Congressional District, which Lewis has represented in the House, on and off, since 1910. It is the only county in that district which the Tydings' people claim with any confidence.

Having indorsed Tydings for the Senate and Lewis for the House, the County Congress never rescinded its action. Most of the delegates, the Tydings' people say, feel a showdown on the Neaw Deal should have been put off to 1940.

Mrs. Raymond Clapper, wife of the well-known newspaper commentator, and cochairman of the Lewis-for-Senator Club in Montgomery County, thinks that those who are predicting a Tydings' victory in the county simply do not know what is going on.

"Developments in the last 24 hours," Mrs. Clapper told The Post last night, "including desertions from the united Democratic organization to the Lewis ranks have turned the tide.

"Montgomery County safely can be put in the Lewis column. I feel that the attack by Senator Tydings on Postmistress Maude Toulson, of Salisbury, has aroused resentment among women voters. I feel that the Eastern Shore also will be found in the Lewis column."

In Prince Georges County, the "big three" of the Democratic organization are M. Hampton Magruder, of Upper Marlboro, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Maryland district; T. Howard Duckett, of Hyattsville, president of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, and Lansdale G. Sasscer, of Upper Marlboro, president of the State Senate and candidate for Governor.

Magruder, after reports of New Deal pressure, came out for Lewis. Duckett also is out for Lewis. Sasscer, like three other candidates for Governor, has proclaimed a neutral position in the Senatorial race.

The Tydings people think it significant that there should be any doubt about Prince Georges going for Lewis—that there should be any talk about a "close" race. Here is one county that really ought to be nailed down for "Little Davey." The Democratic organization is one of the most compact in the State, and in the past it has been all-powerful. Not only that, but Prince Georges is the home county of Kent R. Mullikin, of Laurel, campaign manager for Lewis, and of Dr. H. C. "Curly" Byrd, of College Park, president of the University of Maryland, who is one of the big guns in the Lewis camp.

Nebertheless, there is persistent talk of a "revolt" against the organization and of a swing toward Tyrings. All that tmay be bunk, but Tydings hemself thinks enough of it to come to Capitol Heights today for a speech.

Robert McCullough, of Landover, campaign manager for Tydings in Prince Georges, declined last night to make any victory claims. He did however, say that there had been a "trend" toward Tydings in the last 10 days.

This McCullough said, was due largely to resentment over the action of Magruder, a Federal official, making war on Tydings.

In the post-primary convention, where the actual nomination will be made, Prince Georges will have seven votes, Montgomery six.

Faces Loss of Second Leg

Still smiling after being bedridden 11 years, Martha Geesling is awaiting the surgeon's knife. Injured in a landslide when she was nine years old, one leg had to be removed and now surgeons find it necessary to amputate the other. Unafraid of losing her diseased limbs, she told reporters she felt she would be able to get along with artificial ones. "They won't be like real ones," said the girl, "but I will be able to get around with them."

Pecora Denies Hines Dismissal, Uncertain About Indictment

fices of Joseph Shalleck, of defense counsel. It was in these offices, according to the testimony of George Weinberg, Schultz gangster, that he met Hines and paid him, and was introduced by him to Dodge.

Weinberg testified he believed Dodge was standing by a window. The rental agent provided a map to show there is no window in the waiting room of Mr. Shalleck, where the meeting is said to have taken place. The map was shown to the jury.

The delivery of Justice Pecora's opinion silenced a courtroom that was jammed to the straining point. Through it all, the defendant showed no sign of nervousness, but he bolted from the courtroom with unusual speed when the day's hearing ended. Mrs. Hines sat with eyes closed beside her three daughters-in-law, and as the Justice's voice intoned its rounded periods, her lips moved occasionally.

25 Witnesses to Testify

Shortly after the defense began to put in its testimony, Stryker let it be known that he would use about 25 witnesses, and expected his side of the case to take about two weeks. Former District Attorney William C. Dodge, accused by implication of being under Hines's influence in the protection of the policy racket, will be a witness and so will Magistrate Hulon Capshaw, also implicatde in the charges and now under suspension. Stryker said Hines was "ready and anxious" to take the stand.

In denying Stryker's motion for a dismissal, Justice Pecora commented upon his remarks of Thursday, during the argument of the motion, that it would have been better if Dewey had written a count into the indictment charging conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Those remarks should not be taken, he said, as criticism of the persons who drew a skilfully executed offense of conspiracy cannot be merged in greater offenses of felonies. Therefore, he said, he would have to sonsider the motion to strike out the conspiracy count apart from the other counts in the indictment.

Disputes Claim

Justice Pecora disputed Stryker's claim that this count should be dismissed because there is no evidence now before the court to show that the alleged conspiracy lasted u to May 24, 1936, or the required two years before Hines was accused of the crime. There is some evidence which, standing by itself, might justify the conclusion the conspiracy lasted past that date, he said. While some of the evidence seemed to him contradictory and inconsistent, nevertheless record had been built up, he said, which ought to be presented to the jury as judges of fact.

If the jury finds the evidence insufficient to show beyond a reasonable doubt that the conspiracy lasted after May 24, 1936, he said, it will be the jury's duty to acquit the defendant on that count.

As to Stryker's claim that the conspiracy alleged against Hines was not one to run a lottery, but was to bribe or intimidate judicial officers in furtherance of an extortion racket, Justice Pecora took note at two paragraphs in the indictment, setting forth that the minor conspiracy, as alleged to exist between Hines, Schultz, weinberg and others, was indeed to obstruct justice, and that this minor conspiracy was to aid in a larger one..

The argument of the defense that since Hines was not a principal in the lotteries racket, he could not be indicted on the felony counts was disputed by Justice Pecora as contrary to section 2 of the State penal law. This section sals that "a person concerned in the commission of a crime, whether he directly commits the act constituting the offense or aids and abets in its commission, and whether present or absent, and a person who directly counsels, commands, induces or procures another to commit a crime is the principal."

After Justice Pecora had disposed of the legal aspects of the case in favor of the prosecution and had directed the defense to bring on its case, Stryker produced several witnesses who proceeded to testify that Hines' signature on the check which Davis' sister said she got from Milton Bernard, accountant for the policy combination, to turn over to the Tammany leader, had been written in after the name of the third indorser of the document, Eddie Holly, described by the district attorney as a racetract tout for Hines.

Frequent Witnesses

The testimony of the witnesses also indicated that the transcript of the wire-tapping evidence purporting to show that Hines telephoned Davis for $500 could not have been written down accurately in the space of time offered by the Federal agent who took down the conversation.

It was 3:38 p. m. when the first defense witness took the stand. He was Haring, and he said that, in conjunction with his father, he had appeared in some 25 court cases. He had not been on the stand five minutes before he was superseded by Aubrey J. Drummond, a photographer.

When the witness had identified photographs of the check and of the wire-tapping transcript he had taken for the defense exhibits, of which there were 11, one for every two members of the jury and a single copy for the court and for the prosecution, paraphernalia was brought out.

That included a projection machine to show the $500 check in the form in which it came to the Continental Bank & Trust Co. Although the photostatic film did not disclase the back of the check, its depiction of the front revealed that the printed number 1590 had been supplanted by the penned number 4925.

The jurors filed past the machine, each one peeping in to see the display of the enlargement from the roll of film. Justice Pecora arose as if to come down and look, but must have decided against it. The prosecution inspected the instrument with obvious disdain.

Tydings Quotes President Blast At Interference

Tydings

and on every farm, know the high impropriety of interference by the Federal Government in the purely local affairs of any State, and we are full conscious of the effective manner in which the people of this great State will at the polls show their resentment against such conduct.

"'Before we look into the soundness of the instructions given to the people of this State by these representatives at Washington, we have a right to demand that they show their credentials.'"

Following this quotation, Senator Tydings said:

"Now mark you, Mr. Lewis, I am quoting the very words used on a similar occasion by the very man whom you asked to come to Denton from outside to aid you in this e lection.

"I have quoted his exact words when the Federal Government attempted to invate and interfere in the elections of his home State of New York to show you, Mr. Lewis, that he is on my side and not your as to the rights of the people to decide their elections without interference."

To this Lewis retorted:

"Mr. Tydings, the President of the United States, who came to Maryland, not at my solicitation but of his own volition, has the right, when conditions warrant, to decide the difference between a conservative and a liberal, and in your heart you know he does.

"Mr. Tydings, the President of the United States is not an outsider to the people of Maryland. He is one of us . . ."

Repeats Slush Charges.

Lewis asked Tydings why he did not mention "the amount of outside cash that is flowing into your campaign coffers—the carpet bag money from the vested interests in New York and Delaware, Pennsylvania, and elsewhere."

The New Deal candidate attacked Tydings' statement that he had supported the "bone and sinew" of the New Deal legislative program. Five bills which the Senator listed, Lewis said, were passed in the Hoover administration. Editorial Research Reports, an impartial agency, he added, listed Tydings' voting record as 29 per cent for the New Deal.

Lewis quoted a lengthy statement from one Oscar L. Sprague, of Maryland, who claimed to have been on the Tydings pay roll early in the campaign.

Tells of "Fake" Telegram

Sprague recounted the circumstances that had preceded the Tydings newspaper advertisements seeking to link Lewis with communism and the C. I. O. It all began, he said, with a fake telegram which Earl Browder, secretary of the Communist Party, was alleged to have sent to William Green, president of the Federation of Labor, indorsing Lewis.

"The Browder-Green fake telegram climaxed my relations with the Tydings campaign," Sprague said.

"By this time it was plain to me that no one genuinely interested in the welfare of labor could conscientiously continue for the senator."

Lewis also called attention to anonymous letters that he said were mailed in plain envelopes from a Baltimore substation. The letters urged Tydings' re-election, he said, and assailed the New Deal. One read:

"Americans, you'll never have any real prosperity in the United States until the New Deal is thrown into the ash can and carted to the dump."

Senator Tydings said that Lewis had stated to the press on June 16 that he would not call for outside assistance in his primary contest but had violated his pledge when he invited Roosevelt to enter the State.

Charges Lewis Evades Issues

Reviewing what he labeled the "major issues" of the campaign, Tydings taunted Lewis for his refusal to discuss them. The issues, the Senator said, are the NRA, the Supreme Court reform bill and the Government reorganization measure.

Tydings defended his negative vote on each of the New Deal legislative proposals and touched briefly on the fair trade practices act.

The fair trade practices law, which was tacked on the 1938 District revenue act, prevented monopolies, Tydings asserted, whereas the NRA encouraged them.

The Democratic platform, he said, was oposed to all three New Deal measures that he voted against and Lewis voted for, and in the case of the NRA the Supreme Court upheld his view and even President Roosevelt said that the act had gone too far.

Says Lewis Evades Issues

Tydings asserted that Lewis had "refused to discuss the three great issues that should have been discussed in this campaign.

"Now, Mr. Lewis, you have created for yourself even a greater issue than these and I wish to ask you to tell the people of Maryland in the face of the four statements from the four Presidents which I have read, one of which statement is from President Roosevelt, how you can justify your invitation to have outside interference come into Maryland as proper thing in a Maryland primary election. . . .

"These are the real issues, my fellow-Marylanders, and I am confident upon them you will act decisively next Monday, Defenders Day. You will thunderously speak out to all America telling all our fellow-citizens in other States that the Maryland Free State is still free and well capable of choosing those who shall speak for her in the councils of the Nation."

Both Tydings and Lewis were in a whirlwind finish in their fight for Democratic nomination as the priary neared.

Record Vote Expected

Lewis, who has spoken on the radio almost daily for the last ten days, will speak again over Station WBAL at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night and again Sunday night.

Tydings, who has spoken over the air only four times during the campaign, will make another major radio address Sunday night and conclude Monday morning with a final radio appeal.

Meanwhile, both candidates and their aides agreed that there will be a record vote in the primary contest in all parts of the State. The participation of President Roosevelt in the Senatorial tug of war, both camps agreed, will probably bring voters to the polls as never before.

The 1934 balloting was 52.7 per cent of the Democratic registration of 461,992. The present registration is believed to be more than 500,000.

While Tydings and Lewis were battling for Baltimore votes, their aides were speaking in their behalf in the city and elsewhere in Maryland.

Mrs. Raymond Clapper, of Chevy Chase, Md., spoke over the air from Baltimore in defense of Mrs. Maude Toulson, Salisbury postmistress, who was charged by the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, with improperly aiding Lewis.

Cardinal Hayes Laid to Rest In Cathedral

Hayes

Sixty-ninth, "The Fighting Irish," now the 165th Regiment, moved up next, booming out the measured heartbreak of Chopin's funeral march.

Then came row upon row of white-surpliced altar boys and priests, brown-hassocked, black-cassocked, some bearded—Franciscans, Augustinians, Dominicans, Capuchins, Jesuits, Redemptorists, Passionists, Carmelites—their biretas atop their heads glistening in the pale September sun.

Next followed the purple-robed monsignori, the abbots, bishops, archbishops, the apostolic delegate, cardinals, ministers of the mass, Knights of Columbus, plumed and in field gray, and then the celebrant of the mass, George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, his great scarlet robe held in train behind him.

Called Ambassador of Christ

The organ broke a hush that was like a sob in the half-dark of the cathedral as Cardinal Mundelein rose from his red-covered throne and prayed at the foot of the altar.

In the stillness of the consecration and communion an army bugle twice was lifted in the muted blasts of "Taps" in salute to a dead chaplain-general. The soldiers standing guard over the catafalque, which lay in the light of candles in the center aisle, crossed bayonets and stood at attention, and the bishops intoned an antiphon and a prayer:

"'. . . I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me although he be dead shall live. . . .'"

The Most Rev. Joseph Francis Rummel, Archbishop of New Orleans, delivering the sermon, spoke of the cardinal as "the Ambassador of Christ, reverent and pious without pretense or ostentation, dignified and gracious without affectation or pride, gentle and courteous without compromise of principle or firmness."

'Too Much Smoke' Costs Driver $150 Or 60-Day Term

Gaham Greene, colored, 23, 317 Virginia avenue southeast, received proof of the adage "where there's smoke there must be fire" when he appeared in Police Court yesterday.

Greene plead not guilty to charges of driving on a suspended permit and failing to turn in his permit to the office of vehicles and traffic. These charges were placed against him after he was arrested on another count—permitting excessive smoke from the exhaust.

Judge Walter Casey ordered Greene to pay $100 or serve 30 days for driving without a permit and $50 or 30 days for failure to turn in his permit.

U.M.W. Nominates Lewis as Chief

The United Mine Workers have renominated John L. Lewis to serve as their president for another two-year term beginning next April.

The union, affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization, said Lewis, Philip Murray, vice president, and Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer, were renominated without opposition. The election will be held December 13.

Thief Bamboozles Motormen in 2 More Holdups

It's an old trick, but evidently it still works.

Although he used the gag several times last week—and got away with it—a petty thief last night robbed two more conductors of 90 tokens and change.

The colored men first boarded a U street trolley at Seventh steret, handed the conductor, William E. Lewis, of 223 Twentieth street northeast, a badly written address, and asked the direction. While the conductor tried to make out the scribbling, the thief sliched 42 tokens.

The thief also bamboozled the conductor of a Florida avenue car at Seventh street. The victim was Cecil Torrence, of 510 E street northeast.

to how long Mrs. Brooke had been dead."

Drake said the major was asked if he had killed his wife with a golf club. "I didn't kill her with a golf club," Drake quoted the major as replying.

No Flat Denial Made

On cross-examination by the defense, Drake said he had not heard Brooke make a flat denial of the slaying.

Earlier, Prosecutor Hoyt Davis presented a series of witnesses in an effort to show that on the morning of the killing, Brooke drove rapidly along little-used roads.

After further presentation of physical evidence directly connected with the murder, the prosecution was expected to present witnesses to substantiate claims that Brooke was an habitual gambler and killed his wife for her insurance to cover gambling debts.

The defense, however, had intimated it would attack the Government case with allegations that Brooke had been the object of persecution by military authorities since the start of the case.

Year-Round Traffic Safety Drive Urged

Commissioners' Advisory Committee Advocates Long-Range Policy to Halt Aut oFatalities.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A continuing, year-round traffic safety campaign, laying particular stress on highway dangers just prior to the opening and closing of schools, was advocated yesterday by the Commissioners' advisory committee as it adopted final "long-range" plans for accident prevention.

Submitted to the Commissioners as a recommended solution to current and future traffic problems, the committee's report touched on all phases of safety—enforcement, education, engineering and playground improvements.

Ceaseless efforts to arouse public sentiment against highway carelessness and a permanent program to educate children and adults in safe and courteous habits was the committee's major proposal to curb traffic casualties.

The Commissioners were urged to seek establishment of a drivers' training school, sponsored by the Public School Board or other public organization, with adequate space and facilities to properly instruct both novice and experienced drivers in the rudiments of safety.

Seeks More Police

As part of a continuing educational program, the committee recommended contests of various kinds and the use of posters, radio and newspapers to spread safety propaganda. It called also upon all community agencies—civic and commercial—to aid in disseminating information.

Suggesting scientific methods of accident investigation and traffic control for the Police Department, the advisory group recommended special training for policemen and supported the efforts of Maj. Ernest W. Brown to secure additional officers.

The committee reserved definite recommendations as to the number of men to be added to the force, but said the subject would be given further study.

Although refraining also from including definite proposals for pedestrian control in its report, the committee cited the "large number" of fatalities among pedestrians and reiterated a former recommendation submitted to the Commissioners August 20. That recommendation read:

"That the present traffic and motor vehicle regulations of the District of Columbia relating to the rights and duties of pedestrians be amended so as to state more specifically the right and duties of pedestrians on the streets and highways and that proper penalties be prescribed for the violation of such regulations."

Stresses Fatalities

The committee said it was "unwilling to recommend the adoption of a policy of formal pedestrian control in the absence of an increase in the means for enforcing such a policy," but at the same time cited the following figures:

"That 79 pedestrians were killed in 1937 out of a total of 106 fatal accidents (or 75 per cent of the total); that 60 of the 79 pedestrians (or nearly 80 per cent of the total killed) were actually or technically at fault, and that of the total killed, 71 (or 67 per cent) were not children, but persons over the age of 14 and that 48 (or 46 per cent) kere over the age of 50."

At the suggestion of Maj. Brown, the committee included in its report a provision calling for the licensing of bicycles the same as motor vehicles. Striking at the negligent operation of bicycles by both children and adults, the committee contended that cycle riders should be governed by regulations.

More rigid methods of keeping a check on licensed motorists also was proposed by the group.

"Your committee," read the report, "recommends that re-examination of drivers be prescribed for cause such as involvement in serious accidents in which the driver was at fault, or where the driver is convicted of a major violation of the traffic regulations."

Larger Staff Urged

It was further voted to urge the Commissioners to seek an enlarged staff at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic for this work.

Under a separate heading of engineering, the report recommended:

Restriction of parking on streets adjacent to playgrounds "each day in the year, including Sundays and holidays."

A system of one-way traffic for all streets less than 28 feet wide.

That the hours for turning on and off street lights be made to conform with the regulations governing auto headlights—one-half hour before sunrise and one-half hour after sunset.

That a uniform system of streamlined street car loading platforms be adopted.

To afford greater protection to children, the committee advocated an improved and extended playground system and methods of establishing play yards on private property during summer vacation months.

Newspapers of the city were lauded by the safety group as "primarily responsible for any success that may have been accomplished by this committee."

Following adoption of the final report, Brig. Gen. Albert Cox, chairman, adjourned the committee until further notice.

The District again passed another day free from serious accidents, although a Chevy Chase (Md.) man was arrested in connection with an alleged hit-and-run accident near Cumberland and Wisconsin avenues in Maryland.

Harry J. Pirie, vice president and treasurer of the Washington Granite Monumental Co., was charged with reckless driving and failing to stop after his auto reportedly struck John Keegan, 56, of Bethesda.

Kegan was reported in a serious condition at Georgetown Hospital last night. Pirie was quoted as saying he felt a "bump" as he drove along, but didn't know he had struck anyone. He will appear before Justice A. B. Jennings at a hearing scheduled for October 5.

In Washington, 3-year-old Edna May Smith, colored, of 474 K street southwest, was struck near her home. She received only slight injuries.

Tar Injures Worker

A rolling 50-gallon drum of tar yesterday fractured the foot of WPA Worker Benjamin F. Kelly, 23, colored, of 709 Second street northeast, while he was working at Bolling Field. He was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Two Die in Wisconsin Railroad Wreck Caused by Washout

A culvert washout two miles east of Hudson, Wis., hurtled this passenger train of the Northwestern lines into a ditch. Two persons were killed and 10 injured. Those fatally injured were the engineer and a news agent who was riding in the first coach.

Real Wound Spoils Drama of The Old West

Louis Sparks, 30, 4448 Reservoir road northwest, escaped with a slight wound yesterday when he was shot in the shoulder with a .45-caliber bullet.

Police said the bullet was fired accidentally by Christopher Hopwood, 59, 5186 Fulton street northwest, who was explaining how to shoot by fanning the pistol's hammer, in a filling station at 3601 M street northwest.

Sparks was treated at Georgetwon Hospital. Police released Hopwood after witnesses said the shooting was accidental.

Colored Man Is Held On Lottery Charge

Maryland William Banks, colored, 46, 1314 Ninth street northwest, was held for the grand jury yesterday by U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, on charges of possessing numbers slips and operating a lottery.

Coroner Clears Doctors in Death Of Crash Victim

Lafayette Vandiver, colored, 22, of 1732 Seventh street northwest, who died after being discharged from Casualty Hospital September 1, following an automobile accident, died of his own negligence, Acting Coroner Barry I. Anderson decided after a hearing yesterday at Upper Marlboro, Md. Officer Thomas Ferrell, of State police, said Vandiver died soon after two hospital physicians had declared him "just drunk."

Drs. James I. Boyd and James G. Sasscer, who performed an autopsy, said the man died of a punctured right lung, caused by two broken ribs. Ferrell said he found Vandiver unconscious beside the Brandywine road at Aquasco, Md., and took him to a physician, who advised the injured man be taken to a hospital.

He testified Casualty physicians said Vandiver was only drunk, but the man died on the way to the Marlboro Jail. He said the Casualty physicians told him it would be all right to lock Vandiver up.

Thief Gets Violin And Jewelry

Miss Mathilde Rochon, 5543 Twenty-ninth street northwest, reported to police her home had been entered by way of a downstairs screened window and approximately $250 in valuables was taken.

Included in the loot, besides the violin were a platinum brooch and two pearl rings. Much more valuable jewelry was left on a dresser in the home.

Missing The Point

Due to threats of prosecution voiced by Senator Sheppard of the Campaign Expenditures Committee, the Workers Alliance has relinquished its plan to raise a $50,000 campaign fund by soliciting contributions from WPA workers. David Lasser, head of the organization, nevertheless bitterly criticizes the committee for its interference. Apparently he cannot understand why an organization of Federal employes should not finance a political campaign as readily as any private group.

Evidently it does not occur to Mr. Lasser that in the WPA are workers whose opinions may diverge widely from those he holds, who may not test "progressives" by his arbitrary standards, who may hold political views not governed solely by considerations of self-interest. Certainly there is no evidence that Mr. Lasser realizes the social menace of an organization of Government relief workers whose major purpose would be to support representatives who promise them ever-increasing benefits from the Treasury.

As individuals the unemployed and WPA workers have full liberty to express their views and, under the protection of a secret ballot, to vote for the candidate of their personal choice. If they were treated as a regimented group, marshaled in the interest of a cause which they might not approve and assessed to further a program imposed upon them, they would cease to be free agents and become victims of the worst kind of political exploitation.

Mr. Lasser deceives himself if he believes that his policies help to protect the unemployed in the exercise of their rights of citizenship. Senator Sheppard has done infinitely more than the head of the Workers Alliance to safeguard the rights of the underprivileged, by protecting them from the financial pressure which Mr. Lasser proposed to exert through political assessments of the Nazi type. As the Nation shrewdly observes in its current issue, "not cool reason but a warm heart made the president of the Workers Alliance what he is."

Gold Flows Here Again

Once more the dollar is held in high esteem and gold is flowing in great volume toward this country. For a good many months, domestic business reverses, coupled with unfounded rumors of further devaluation of the dollar, led to the loss of large amounts of foreign capital. But since early July anxiety over political disturbances in Europe has brought back much of the capital that had been withdrawn.

Added to these factors, making for a rise in the exchange value of the dollar in relation to the pound sterling, is the large current excess of exports from this country. Indeed, the heavy merchandise trade balance in our favor is cited by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York in its September review as the principal cause of large accessions of gold during the past year. Between September, 1937, and July, 1938, for instance, our merchandise exports exceeded imports by more than $1,000,000,000, more than offsetting the effect of foreign withdrawals of capital during part of this time.

Now that frightened capital is being sent here again for safekeeping, the large volume of gold imports has once more become a topic for discussion. Since the end of July about $145,000,000 of gold has been received or is on its way from London alone. And Japan, of course, has for months been sending large sums in gold to pay for necessary imports.

These accessions are giving rise to renewed speculation regarding the possibility that gold imports may eventually have to be sterilized once more. Moreover, they have the unfortunate effect of accentuating the existing maldistribution of gold and creating fresh disorders in world currencies and world trade.

Unfortunately, since a large part of the trouble is caused by political disorders, there is nothing that can be done to establish healthier and more normal trading relations until a return of political sanity re-establishes the conditions that make possible stable currencies and orderly financial relationships among nations.

The Grip Tightens

There is a distinct darkening of the shadows over Czechoslovakia this week-end. The internal difficulties of the little republic are intensified by the formation of a united front, under Sudeten leadership, among the various minority groups. The external pressure becomes stronger with Italy's semiofficial warning to Prague, urging that government to back down.

Of these two developments the former seems the more serious. At a moment when internal unity is absolutely essential from the Czech viewpoint the representatives of Magyar, Polish and even Slovak parties are meeting together under the slogan of "all folk groups united against Prague." The development can scarcely fail to weaken the resistance with which President Benes and Premier Hodza, the one a Czech, the other a Slovak, have heretofore resolutely faced the tremendous German pressure.

Co-operation between the minority groups at this stage indicates that their leaders are willing to assist in a breakdown of the integrity of Czechoslovakia as heretofore constituted. But, from the viewpoint of Prague, the movement has still more serious aspects. Neither the large Magyar minority nor the much smaller Polish group would be joining with the Sudeten Germans unless both the Budapest and Warsaw governments were willing to see such action taken. So there is clear indication that both Hungary and Poland accept the disruptive tactics of Berlin, if they are not actually favorable to them.

On top of what the Germans can regard as the benevolent neutrality of these two nations comes the outspoken support given to Berlin from Rome. Informazione Diplomatica, a mouthpiece of the Italian Foreign Office, forecasts "a great crisis" if the Czechs fail to accept Henlein's sweeping Karlsbad demands to which Italy for the first time now gives formal approval. Simulaneously inspired editorials blame the Czechs for their continued struggle against the ruthless German grip.

Confronted with this concentration of pressure the Czech leaders must now inevitably review their assets. They have, in the event of war, their alliance with France and Russia, and rather less reliable assurance of support from Yugoslavia and Rumania. They have also a strong degree of British sympathy, but as yet no definite assurance of aid from this quarter. Without some British guarantee it is increasingly doubtful that the Czech leaders will counsel the desperate gamble of military resistance, particularly since Rumania is the only friendly country with territory contiguous to their own.

The problem is the more disheartening for Prague because it is so clear that if disaster comes its first symptom will be in the form of civil war. An open minorities revolt, in which prompt German intervention could be taken for granted, would be the sign that Hitler had finally made up his mind to strike. Such a revolt would superficially obscure the existence of German aggression, and could easily be an excuse for any uncertain ally of Czechoslovakia to delay or withhold aid.

The pressures for capitulation in Prague are thus seen to be enormous. And it is clearly Hitler's technique to maintain those pressures, at the highest possible tension, in the hope and expectation that the harassed Czechs will cave in before them.

History shows no parallel to this protracted threat of war employed for the calculated coercion of a little nation whose crime consists in its devotion to the democratic ideal. Nor is the irony of the picture lessened by the fact that it occurs in a world where, just a decade ago, all the great powers solemnly covenanted together to renounce war as an instrument of national policy.

The President's Son

It would be unpleasant to think that there could be, among the many political critics of Mr. Roosevelt, any so bitter or vengeful as to deny him the utmost sympathy as he hastens to the bedside of his eldest son.

To say this is not, of course, to put any alarming interpretation on the rather vague and scanty information which has been made public concerning the illness of James Roosevelt. Recourse to surgery in such cases, although perhaps less common now than formerly, is by no means rare. The fact that the surgeons will permit several days to elapse between the decision to operate and the actual operation would seem to be an encouraging sign.

Nevertheless, the President, at a time of great international tension and at the height of a primary campaign in which his policies are deeply involved, has determined to make the long journey to Minnesota. The fact testifies to the depth of his concern.

No American President has ever found his job an easy one and Mr. Roosevelt's burdens have been in some ways more grievous than those of any of his predecessors. Certainly he has found them none the lighter recently for having lost temporarily the help of a devoted son who is also his efficient confidential secretary.

Every decent citizen, of whatever political persuasion, will unite in wishing for the Roosevelt family a speedy relief from their anxiety and for James Roosevelt himself a rapid and permanent recovery from his illness.

Relief And Elections

At the end of August the number of WPA relief workers reached a record figure of 3,066,953 persons—a slight increase over the preceding week and over the previous high point of February, 1936. The size of this large army of relief workers seems all the greater in view of the fact that total outlays reached a peak of nearly $259,000,000 in July. Moreover, these figures do not include unemployment insurance payments.

Nothing illustrates more strikingly the erratic and seemingly planless policy followed by the Federal and associated relief organizations than their failure to make allowance for seasonal factors and fluctuations in business activity. Undoubtedly conditions are still bad and the total volume of unemployment is appallingly large. Nevertheless, it seems strange that the numbers dependent upon public relief should be steadily rising while business is growing better. In its latest report the Federal Reserve Board states that industrial activity increased in July and rose somewhat further in the first three weeks of August. Other and later reports from private sources likewise present a much brighter picture of the business outlook.

The discrepancy between the trend of the relief roll and the movement of trade and production indices is, however, an old story. Last year between June and October the estimated drop in the number of those benefiting directly or as dependents of beneficiaries from relief outlays and emergency employment amounted to 2,648,000. Yet during this period a sharp decline occurred in the Reserve Board's index of industrial production, and by November a severe industrial recession was admitted to be under way.

On the other hand, in the summer of 1936, when business was on the upgrade, and optimism regarding the future strong, the roll of relief recipients and dependents rose from a low point for the year of 17,900,000 in July to over 19,000,000 in October.

Mr. Hopkins probably thinking of the millions of idle whom he desires to help, has been quite consistent in his pleas for more money, however planless his subsequent spending activities may seem. It is likewise true that other Federal and local agencies could find worthy causes upon which to expend enlarged appropriations. Spending plans, however, have to be adapted to a nation's spending capacity, for the sake of the destitute as well as for the general welfare.

For that reason it is imperative that retrenchment in relief outlays should be attempted when improved conditions make it possible to effect savings with least suffering. So far, attempts at retrenchment have not been related to changes in business activity. Instead outlays have shown a tendency to fluctuate in accordance with the political fortunes and necessities of the Administration.

The minority members of the House Committee on Appropriations pointed out last spring that over a period of five years the number of persons in relief households had risen during the summer months in elections years while normal seasonal declines in these months occurred only in non-election years. Evidence to support this charge is taken from estimates furnished the committee by Mr. Hopkins himself. Such evidence naturally aroused the suspicions of political opponents of the Administration. If Mr. Hopkins or any other responsible spokesman has a satisfactory explanation to offer for the consistent summer bulge in relief rolls during election years, now is the time to come forward with it.

Manager Mortality

From the Hartford Courant.

The average person, accustomed to think of a man's work as having a certain amount of security, is generally surprised by the turnover among those holding important athletic positions. Players are, of course, mercurial performers, since their ability depends upon physical condition, which is by no means constant. Consequently it does not seem unreasonable that players should be frequently dropping from the scene as new ones appear. There seems to be less reason, however, for the frequent replacement of coaches and managers, who are often the first to be dropped when the team is not doing as well as is desired.

Owners of baseball teams are, of course, out to pack the customers in, and, since attendance varies noticeably with the performance of the team, they are willing to take any step needed to keep a team at its best. Furthermore, there are often special circumstances that cause the dismissal of managers. Yet when managerships become as insecure as the position of football coaches, so that every manager must have a weather eye out for another job when he is released, the quality of their work is bound to decrease. Furthermore, it would seem that frequent changes in the leadership of a team would lower morale. Perhaps the owners err when they believe that the fans want to see a few scalps sacrificed when a team begins to fail.

Then there's the sad case of the man who spent the summer in a trailer and came home and got lost in the living room.

A Tokyo historian says all Japanese are of divine descent. The descent has been long and rapid.

The Ragweed Nuisance

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Cannot something be done to remove the obnoxious ragweed from our roadsides, city and Federal property? These weeds have attained a height of 6 and 7 feet, causing thousands of District residents and taxpayers to weep and moan from hay fever, 90 per cent of which is caused by this same weed.

I have called the Public Health doctor and he says no money is available for that; I have called the City and the Park Commission and they pass the buck to each other.

Could not the PWA and those drawing relief be put to work to improve this condition? If you will drive out Foxhall road from Conduit to Reservoir road, and out Reservoir road to Conduit, you will see and feel the pollen from this weed.

If this distressing condition could be brought to the attention of the proper authority by your paper, I feel everyone would be a better boosters for The Washington Post.

Railroads and Wages

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter from A. F. Whitney, of the Railroad Brotherhoods, to Roger Babson is so preposterous I can't help commenting on it. This document outshines the best or worst, of Administration blasters. Extended to diplomacy it would afford a flagrant example of how wars get started.

"We are supporting the President's program," says Whitney. He hardly needs to say so. His utterances indicate he thinks exactly about the railroads as Roosevelt about the utilities, with results that hold equal promise—of inflating the debt and greasing the hole until hopes of getting out of it become a bizarre pipe dream.

With new financing dormant for years Whitney seems to be scaring up bogies. About banker and Wall Street control of railroads. Who'd want 'em?

The writer once did well as a switchman on the Santa Fe when wages were much lower. He's an advocate of high wages—both when drawing and paying them, and believes in them. But they must be adjusted to conditions. Failure to recognize this is not liberalism or advancement, but bad backsliding.

Mr. Whitney may not know it but there is opposition to his policies within his own ranks; I know that from letters received from old pals. I also believe the highest paid labor represents the most intelligent, but if Whitney's utterances were taken as representative a revision of this opinion would be necessary.

'Back to Normalcy'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: September 15 is the date when the great staff of the Interior Department goes off its self-imposed daylight saving time and goes back to normalcy. Will The Post kindly announce this date as our "coming out," after which we will be "at home" to the rest of Washington, socially speaking, and keep popular hours.

Also, many employes wish to express thanks that 7 months out of 12 they are on regular schedule and do as those around them do. Aside from this, everything is fine.

The Political Pot

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Capt. John Francis Farrell, in The Post of September 6, asks how Senator Tydings voted on certain bills. The vital question is not how he voted, but if he voted as his conscience dictated?

As a matter of fact, both Senator Tydings and his opponent, Lewis, voted aginst the bonus bill, and the President vetoed it. Capt. John also says, "Tydings is no bargain."

How we differ in our opinions! Now, judging from the fact that Senator Tydings is not a "yes man" nor a "rubber stamp," but evidently has a mind and a conscience of his own, it seems to me that he really is a bargain and a credit to the Free State. CAPT. CHAS. H. COE.

Washington, Sept. 6.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Linn A. E. Gale can find more bugaboos in a vacuum than a New Deal spellbinder running for office on a promise of "everything for everybody—except the royalists."

Poor old organized wealth, with its tools, bludgeons and snapped fingers! The forgers of our fetters! These toothless emasculated forces come in for a crack on their injured snout from the stout iron rod. Allusions to mandates always give me a laugh anyhow—made by what Mr. Roosevelt in his saltier speeches dubs "persons of intelligence," called by others the "great bulk of dumb voters."

Well, we've been treated to a touch or two of what America would be like dominated by the New Deal. I allude to the ten million (average) unemployed under the great dispensation. This is with the moneyed interests under thumb—suppressed, not active.

The Deal, having tried everything else, and failed, I suggest the "betrayers" be "driven out" 100 per cent; the New Deal substituted 100 per cent in place. Here's the process: Just take over a capitalist's plant; kick him and coterie into the outer darkness. Erect a Government building nearby. Leave room for vast expansion, of course. Then let bureaucracy run everything from that vantage point, with tips from the Executive now and then. Why center all the bureaucracy in Washington? Is that democratic?

Then, as the plant shrinks, bureaucracy will grow. The loss will be "absorbed." There you have the end of unemployment. It's a wonder no one ever thought of this system of bigger and better deficits.

The Reds would like it—and vote New Deal just like they did last time. The handouts now being doled, you see, are not driving us toward ruin fast enough. D. K. M.

Mount Rainier, Md., Aug. 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Lindley comes within one short step of defining the issue injected by the Administration's purge tactics. Shall any one man, however wise and good, have the sole power to decide in considerable detail the policies of the Democratic Party?

This sort of issue has been frequently popping up, in one form or another, during the past six years. Mr. Roosevelt has frequently attempted to conceal it by asserting that the objectors are opposing his social objectives. Similarly, opponents of New Deal objectives have hidden their opposition beneath attacks on this desire for one-man control. Mr. Roosevelt has been far more adept in these tactics than his opponents.

The voter is confronted with having to choose between desirable social objectives, accompanied by concentration of power, and refusal to delegate such power at a real risk of delay, even surrender, of the social objectives of the New Deal.

A THINKING MAN.

It Is to Shrug

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Well drummed into reading the article of Westbrook Pegler of yesterday, "The Pegler Policy," I venture to give here the "European" feeling about America and Americans.

Has it ever occurred to Mr. Pegler to wonder whether this country is at fault for alienating the friendship of European countries? Since he is crude enough to write, "Hell With Them," I will be frank enough to tell him that his article prompted the well-known shrug of shoulders.

You Americans know nothing or very little of moral values. Don't fool yourself. You proved to be a rotten friend of European nations after the war when you withdrew from them, from the Treaty of Peace and from the League of Nations in order to keep your hand free to make commercial bargains later on. Your trade agreements have no other aim but to open the road for financial profits in case of conflicts, placing you and your hated gold as No. 1 provider for those that you have set against each other by your withdrawal.

You failed to take the honorable role of balancing moral power in the affairs of the world and you are surprised at the result. Unless you change your policy, you will have the same end as all materialists—decay, and in the meantime no friends. A EUROPEAN.

Cleveland's G. H. A.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having read the many articles and editorials in your paper regarding the G. H. A. and its fight with the District Academy and the A. M. A., it is evident that you have a keen insight into the situation. Your editorial comments were most timely and convincing that the G. H. A. idea is the solution of the medical problem for the people in the lower income bracket.

You might be interested in putting before your readers a similar case of injustice on the part of the Cleveland Academy of Medicine and the A. M. A. that occurred in 1937.

There is an association here organized in February, 1935, called the National Health Service Association, a non-profit Ohio Corporation, that is furnishing both medical care and hospitalization to those in the lower income bracket for $1 per month per person and which has done a remarkable work.

The formation of the organization was a philanthropic gesture on the part of Mr. George B. Durell, financier and chairman of the board of the American Fork & Hoe Co., primarily as an experiment. It has proven a successful work and its membership has grown by its record of performance.

At its inception it employed A. M. A. doctors, and as long as the membership was small, the Cleveland Academy of Medicine paid no attention to its activities. But as the membership increased, they took notice resulting in threatened explusion of its doctors from the District Academy and the A. M. A. unless they withdrew from serving the association. Naturally, the doctors acquiesced to their demands, withdrawing in favor of the academy on June 1, 1937.

This placed the association in the same position as that of the G. H. A. of your city. The association is still carrying on and the membership is increasing in spite of the M. D.s' opposition.

The recent developments in Washington have helped clarify the situation with its Nation-wide publicity. J. D. STRAWN.

Ex. Secretary, the National Health Service Association.

Mother Buys A Hat

MOTHER'S face assumes a stern and rockbound expression when she purchases a hat. I defy anyone to give the reason. Usually her visage is a fairly comfortable possession, a pleasant sort of eight-day clock variety, frank and open-faced, showing the passage of time, but dependable, except upon unusual occasions, such as trying to fit it to a new hat, when it goes on a strike!

When shopping for a hat a strict line of procedure is followed. Mother first does the main drag, that is, goes up one side of the shopping street, then down the other, until in a window she spots a hat that intrigues her interest. Then with an entire lack of her usual shopping aplomb she hesitatingly enters the store.

Indifferently, but inquiringly, a haughty and majestic creature approaches, and Mother stammers, "I'd like to look——"

Her request is interrupted.

"If Moddom will sit here."

Mother hates to be "Moddomed" in that synthetic French accent. Worse than "Honey," or "Dearie," it's almost as bad as "Lady" from a too ingratiating salesman, uttered in a tone that causes such reaction in Mother's mind as to make her have slight doubts as to the fitness of the title.

"Moddom, this little creation——"

"No". Moddom does not care for this "creation".

"No—nor that—nor that—."

"Too wide—too flat—".

"Too—too—".

Oh, too, too utterly, too too!

Wearily, Mother gazes at the reflection in the mirror. It is the face of a stranger. The eyes have the hunted look of a trapped dweller of the wilds. The hair is in disarray. Unplucked eyebrows are fiercely cocked. A shiny nose needs repowdering. The mouth is set in harsh, hard lines. This is worse than an ordeal at the dentist's. Almost as bad as a session at the photographer's.

Ah! Mother remembers a bit of advice given by an artist in desperate attempt to coax an almost human expression from a subject. "Moisten the lips and smile."

Mother tries. A sickly grin is the result. She makes another effort. Succeeds in drawing dry lips back over bared teeth!

Interrupting her patiently condescending keeper—or keeper she will become if Mother stays longer in this place where she feels madness descending upon her—Mother waves away a "superb little creation" that is about to land upon her defenseless head! This one is to have a slenderizing effect. It will make Moddom look tall, and "so youthful." To the purring attendant, height and youth are obviously highly desirable.

"No! No! NO!" Mother's voice rises in increasing crescendo. "I won't decide now—not just now. Thank you—no more——"

Safely outside the shop Mother draws a deep, contemplative breath, advances a few steps down the street to enter another hat shop and repeats the entire process, and so traverses the entire long length of the street again, both sides of it, adding even a few furtive scurries onto side streets.

Finally, coming once more to her starting point, she sees, still displayed in its vantage point in the window, the hat that had first caught her fancy.

Resolutely she marches into the shop.

Avoiding, all preliminaries, "I want to look at a hat in the window—no, not that one. That one."

Possibly because of the fire that must be flashing from a pair of determined eyes, an awed handmaiden brings forth the hat. Mother literally snatches it and, without even one quick side glance in a mirror, plants it firmly on her head. Nothing short of a hurricane could dislodge it.

For benefit of the speechless clerk she vouchsafes, "I'll take it." Waiting no longer than it takes for her old one to be wrapped, resplendent in the glory of a new hat, Mother walks out into the openair, brisk, stately, alert, uninhibited. She has the pleasant consciousness of a stupendous task well done!

Her natural self!

A free woman!

Until the next time!

HARRIET SIDNEY.

"Decent Average."

The careers of 46 Americans in Oxford University in 1911 now have been catalogued by Frank Russell, secretary of the class. Nine are listed in Who's Who, the rest have remained in the obscure ranks that never make that roster of the famous.

Two of the class are journalists, one sold machinery in England for making ice cream. One ran a fox farm, but quit. Three became clergymen and of these one wrote detective stories and a volume on how to reduce; 11 became lawyers, 24 have at some time engaged in teaching. The rest have gone to clerking or selling or running adding machines. They have achieved no special distinction, have come to no shameful ends.

They turned out rather decent average citizens.

Poor Racket

By Westbrook Pegler

Bursting A Bubble

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Whatever the outcome of the Jimmy Hines trial there will be a deflation of the tablecloth estimates of the amount of money involved in the nickel and dime policy racket. It takes a hundred one-cent plays, 20 nickel plays or ten dime plays to make a dollar's worth of business, and still the turnover in New York City alone was reckoned at $100,000,000 and even as high as $500,000,000 a year.

The testimony, however, has dealt with mere hundreds and thousands, and in the first serious presentation of actual evidence on a mysterious subject there has been no confirmation of the fantastic guesses which in the past were repeated so often that the public weakly half accepted them as truth.

IT IS WEL that this glimpse of reality has been afforded, because the people, encouraged by a few careless or gullible writers and politicians, had come to believe that such business, if diverted to a public lottery, would be the answer to the taxpayer's prayer. The late Representative Edward A. Kenney, of New Jersey, made a political specialty of the advocacy of a Federal lottery. He was glib with large, resounding figures, but size and not accuracy was his forte. He used to estimate that the annual take of sweepstakes, lotteries, pools and policy rackets in this country was from $3,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000. This dream figure was very tempting but it had no relation to the known facts.

THE IRISH Hospitals sweeps, the most attractive foreign lottery operating here, sells only $21,000,000 worth of tickets a year in the United States, and the total amount gambled on the grounds at all the horse and dog tracks in all the States where race betting is openly permitted is only a little more than a quarter of a billion dollars a year.

In the Hines trial, dealing with the operations of a policy racket which has been touted as the greatest in the land, there is no mention of large amounts. Payments of $500 for political protection have even mentioned, and the scale of operations, even if the figures of the prosecution be accepted, was paltry by comparison with all previous thoughts on the subject.

IN FACT, there is no subject to which romantic writers address themselves in this country that has been embellished with such silly exaggerations. I find among my souvenirs a magazine article, ostensibly based on careful inquiry, in which a writer seriously credits the estimate of Dixie Davis that the policy racket of Dutch Schultz in New York handled $500,000,000 a year. It is true that Davis did toss off this figure, but he has recently admitted that he was just kidding. The figure itself far less amazing than the ready credulity of any writer or reader who would accept it.

The press and public also permit themselves to be misled by reports of features of lottery tickets, counterfeit or authentic, of vast face value. If tickets with a face value of $800,000 or $2,000,000 are seized, the figure is meaningless. There is no indication that any such amount would have been sold.

THE SAME may be said of a statement by an official of the Postoffice Department that in one two-year period postal agents prevented the sending abroad of $1,000,000,000 for lottery tickets. He might as truthfully have said that the postoffice prevented the sending abroad of the entire wealth of the United States. The statement is meaningless, because there was no indication that Americans intended to pay that much money for foreign lottery tickets which were trapped in transit.

The policy game is absolutely legal in Great Britain and operates 36 weeks a year, stimulated by newspaper advertisements of the most enticing kind. Like the American policy racket, which operates under cover—a great handicap—it is a penny-ante business. With all its freedom the British policy gamble, dealing in such small stakes, handles much less than the American race tracks. The Glasgow Herald, after a careful inquiry, estimated the total British policy turnover at from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 in a season of 36 weeks.

Salvation Army Advances Baldwin

Adjutant Albert E. Baldwin, superintendent of the Salvation Army's Industrial Home for Men for the past two years, has been promoted to supervision over all such institutions in the Southern States, Maj. Charles Dodd, divisional commander of the Salvation Army in the District, announced yesterday.

His new title will be territorial men's social service secretary and his headquarters will be in Atlanta. There will be 21 institutions under his administration.

English by birth, Adjutant Baldwin went to Canada in his youth. He served as bandmaster in the Canadian army in the World War. He entered service of the Salvation Army shortly after the war and had served in Somerville, Mass., Providence, R. I., and Baltimore. While here he organized and directed the Divisional Band.

Hebrew School Names D. I. Bloom Director

Beth Sholom Talmud Torah yesterday announced appointment of David I. Bloom as new educational director. He will endeavor to establish a revitalized Hebrew school, the announcement said.

Bloom was educated at "Tarbuth" Hebrew schools, of Poland; the Herzlish Teachers Seminary, of New York City, and the College of the City of New York. He has written numerous articles on Jewish education.

Nazis vs. Church

By S. Miles Bouton

The Putsch Against Catholicism

Special Correspondence of The Post.

ANSWERING the pastoral letter of the Catholic bishops of Germany in which the Nazi regime was sharply attacked for persecuting the church, the government declared that the charges were baseless and nonsensical. Actually, it asserted, the government was really being kind to the church and helping it. Two days later it decided to help the church some more by prohibiting all private schools in Austria, which are, with but few exceptions, Catholic schools, conducted either by Jesuits or Benedictines. It goes without saying that to prohibit Catholic schooling of children in their formative years is a severe blow to the church.

The Austrian bishops refused to follow the lead of their German colleagues. They believed, they explained, that they had found a way of reconciling the Catholic faith with Nazism, and would later issue a letter of their own. It has not appeared as this is written, and one wonders whether the Austrian clergy will cling to their naive idea when they become acquainted with the "offizielle Richtlinien," that is, "official guide," issued by the Hitler Youth to govern the instruction of youth in their various groups. With no important exceptions, all German male youths must belong to the Hitler Youth. Only through it can higher schools be attended or any place attained in government employ or office.

The official guide to be used in religious instruction contains 50 articles. Some of these are merely brief statements, such as (No. 23) "Jesus was a Jew," (No. 2) "Christianity is the same thing as Communism," (No. 40) "Ignatius Loyola was of Jewish blood," (No. 47) "Fate is higher than God," together with brief comments in sarcastic quotation marks about "the Virgin Mary," "'immaculate' conception," and so on.

THE GUIDE begins with the declaration that "Christianity is a religion for slaves, for it announces that 'the last shall be first' and 'blessed are the poor in spirit'." It goes on to declare that "the New Testament is a Jewish invention of the four Evangelists, for its teachings were taken literally from an Indian legend dealing with a certain Jishnu Christa. The church works always through force and terrorism. Where does one find in it love of one's neighbor and love of one's enemy? It was not Charlemagne but the Catholic Church, which used him as a tool, that had the Saxons slaughtered."

No. 7 in the list of precepts for the education of the youth declares that "German culture stood on a higher level before Christianity came. While the Romans were still using hoes the Germans were using plows." The Crusades are assailed as "one of the greatest stupidities of popery" The Germans were even ruined by Christianity "for it brought to them a knowledge of things which they did not have before: adultery and theft."

"The Bible is a continuation of the Talmud," asserts Article 10 of the Hitler Youth guide. "It is a Jewish book through and through, especially the Old Testament." Further down one learns that "Joseph II (of Austria) and his successors were murdered by the Catholic Church. Poison was found in their hearts (sic)." "Everything hostile to Christianity is good, even if it comes from a foreign race." (Japan, perhaps?). "Christianity, like everything superfluous, must be rooted out." "There is no such thing as Christian culture."

"Christianity is a substitute for Judaism," declares Article 20. "It was invented by the Jews in cooperation with the Roman central (sic)." "The Fourth Commandment of God is nothing else than a formulation of Jewish trading spirit: Give that you may receive." The Ten Commandments "are nothing but a formulation of the lowest human instincts." "The idea of a Saviour can arise only among a perverse people; a healthy folk needs no Saviour."

NERO PERSECUTED the Christians with right, says Article 28. "He wanted to exterminate the Jewish spirit, that is, Christianity." The papacy is assailed as "a swindle," and it is asserted that "the Popes have always been men addicted to the vices." "Adoration of the saints," says Article 29, "is ridiculous. The saints never helped anybody. When some man lived in filth like a hog, he was finally canonized." It was "obscurantists of the church" who brought about the Peace of Versailles; their object was to destroy Germany.

One of the men who murdered Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria in 1934 was named Planetta. He was convicted and hanged. The Nazis exhumed the body, reburied it with high honors, and Planetta has become a saint in the Nazi hagiology. Article 24 of the Hitler youth guide for religious education reads: "How did Christ die? Moaning on the cross. How did Planetta die? 'Heil Hitler! Long live Germany!'"

"Churchly ceremonies, the Trinity, original sin, etc., are all nonsense," and no more churches are being built. "There is nobody who would do that. It is a visible sign of the decay of Christianity. In their stead one builds sport palaces in Berlin, Nuremberg, etc. The eternal central point is Nuremberg. Rome is destined to fall."

There is more along the same line, but this is probably as much as civilized readers can stand at one time. Quite apart from their assaults on religion, the Hitler youth leaders give repeated evidence of their ignorance of history. One finds a reference to the "jus primae noctis" as the invention of Catholicism. There is no historical evidence whatever to support the existence of such a right at any time. There is in the guide a sneering reference to "Pope Johanna"—another ancient fake, with its corollary about the alleged structure of the papal chair.

THIS GUIDE, while on the whole the most venomous Nazi assault on Christianity, is not only one of many, but it carries on in one respect an idea put forth and propagated by German leaders of thought many decades before Hitler came to power. That is the idea set forth in Article 9 of the guide: "Christianity was always alien and inimical to the German people and battled against its unity."

Paul de Lagarde (1827-91), great Orientalist and also political essayist, wrote that the forms in which religion presented itself were exhausted, and continued:

"Romanism and Catholicism will be overcome in Germany not by an abstract religion, but by a national German religion . . . Ultramontanism and Protestantism must be destroyed . . . by depriving them of all acknowledgment, and, secondly, by offering something positive and new."

IN VIEW of all these things, the credulity of the Austrian bishops is decidely astounding. Some of their number are in a concentration camp. Their schools are prohibited, and the children are not only taken away from them, but are handed over to the teaching set forth in the Hitler Youth official guide. There is no more outlook for "reconciling the Catholic faith with Nazism" than for reconciling it with Shintoism.

Two More Tests

By Mark Sullivan

MUCH HANGS on the two conspicuous primaries the coming week—Maryland on Monday, Georgia on Wednesday. It is difficult to recall any occasion on which so much of national significance has hung on the primaries of two States.

Among individuals, factions and parties that watch the outcome anxiously, the most deeply concerned is that elderly spinster, who, as "Miss Democracy," figures frequently in cartoons as a symbol for the Democratic Party. Just now the cartoonists should find her a lady of infinite variety, easy to adapt to scores of figures of pictorial speech. Is she to remain as she long has been, the personification of the historic traditions of the party? Is she to be "sold down the river"—or would "up the river" be the more appropriate description of the direction where the New Deal lies? Does she stand where the brook and river meet, raising terrified skirts from the rising tide of doctrines very strange to her? Is she facing the fate of desertion or jilting by the President who in two national conventions of the party, by two ceremonies of Presidential nomination, plighted his troth to love and honor, if not to obey, her?

* * * *

IT IS COMMONLY said that if President Roosevelt wins his two attempts at purge next week, he will proceed upon further attempt to make the Democratic Party into something it never was before—continue the process of purging through two years more, control the national convention in 1940, and give the Democratic Presidential nomination to some one, himself or another, who represents ideas alien to the party heretofore.

As a corollary to this it is said that if Mr. Roosevelt loses these attempts at purge, it will mean that the party is securely in possession of the group of leaders who represent the party's traditions.

Certainly, defeat of Mr. Roosevelt in Maryland and Georgia would be a serious setback to his purpose, under ordinary circumstances a fatal setback. Added to it would be the fact that the seven other Democratic Senators who opposed Mr. Roosevelt's Court proposal are already renominated or certain to be. In short, if Mr. Tydings is renominated in Maryland and Mr. George in Georgia, then every one of the 9 Democratic Senators who opposed the President's Court measure (and are up for renomination this year) will have been renominated. That outcome would go a long distance toward demonstrating that the party is not in possession of Mr. Roosevelt.

* * * *

A LONG DISTANCE but not the whole way. It may be that Mr. Roosevelt and his friends will be able, after next Wednesday, to call attention to another group of Democratic Senators. They will call attention to the Democratic "Yes" Senators, the ones who supported Mr. Roosevelt's Court measure.

There were 20 Democratic Senators who supported Mr. Roosevelt's Court measure and whose terms came to an end this year. While their fates in the Democratic primaries have varied, they have, so far, prevailingly won. Two did not try for renomination, Resmes of Oregon and Dieterich of Illinois. Of Mr. Dieterich it was said that his retirement was not wholly voluntary, that he did not run because it was impossible for him to win. In any event, his support of the Court measure was not enough to guarantee him renomination.

Out of the 20 "Yes" Senators on the Court measures, 4 have been defeated, McAdoo in California, Pope in Idaho, Berry in Tennessee, Hitchcock in South Dakota.

* * * *

OF MR. MCADOO in California, it cannot be said that his defeat was due to his support of the Court measure. Mr. McAdoo's misfortune was that he, running as a "100 per cent New Dealer" encountered an opponent who was a 200 per cent New Dealer, one who outdealed the New Deal, a "$30 every Thursday" New Dealer.

Of Mr. Berry in Tennessee and Mr. Hitchcock in South Dakota, it cannot be said that their defeat was due to their support of the President's Court measure.

Of Mr. Pope in Idaho, it can fairly be said that his defeat was due largely to his support of the President's Court measure and his general record as a loyal 100-percenter.

Out of the 20 who were "yes" Senators on the court measure, 7 have been renominated: Barkley, of Kentucky; Pepper, of Florida; Thomas, of Oklahoma; Bulkley, of Ohio; Mrs. Caraway, of Arkansas; Reynolds, of North Carolina; McGill, of Kansas.

* * * *

OUT OF THE 20, 7 are up in primaries or conventions yet to be held. After the returns are all in, it will probably be found that the score runs something like this:

Out of the 20 Democratic Senators who supported the President's Court measure, 2 retired voluntarily, 4 were defeated, but only 1 of the 4 was defeated clearly for the reason that he supported the Court measure; 14—or 1 or 2 less, depending on the remaining primaries—will have been renominated.

To that score—14 renominated out of 20 "yes" Senators on the Court measure—Mr. Roosevelt and his friends will be able to point as an offset to the score of success on the part of Senators who were "no" men on the court measure. They will point to this, and will say they have justification to continue their fight for control of the Democratic Party. Mr. Roosevelt is most unlikely to give up the fight.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Summer's End

The mornings have a snappy bite,
The frogs and mists are few;
An extra blanket is all right,
And soon I'll dig for two;
The porpoises no longer play
Close to the fishing piers . . .
And I've no cob of corn today
To butter up my ears.

II.

That sylphlike blonde has had to go,
So has the cute brunette;
They promised they would let me know
Their address. (Wanna bet?)
The hotel porch is rather bare,
The radio is still;
Gone is the gal who said she'd care
. . . I do not think she will.

III.

The outboard motor roars no more
And I am glad of that!
I hear the cry of "Shut that door!"
When I put out the cat.
The swimming float is high and dry.
I crave no soda-pop,
And from the water comes no cry of "Lemme go!" and "Stop!"

IV.

The rocks at night no longer hold
Those neckers, row on row;
The evenings are a little cold,
Gone is the summer show.
The garden now is full of weeds—
The skiff is in the shed—
Hay fever drifts in from the meads,
My schnozzle's very red.

V.

Now pop is back in clothes that fit,
His torso draped once more;
And mother doesn't seem, to wit:
A nudist at the shore.
The lobster and the clam depart,
The chowder does "an out;"
The world puts lettuce leaves apart
For pork and sauerkraut.

VI.

"September is the finest time
The seaside has in store;
To leave it now is such a crime . . .
You've heard all that before!
"There is no better time of year—"
How often is it said?
So pack my bags and give a cheer
For my town flat instead!

Motor Car Sales Lower for August

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Automobile Manufacturers Association estimated today automobile factory sales in the United States were 91,300 cars and trucks in August compared with 150,444 in July and 405,072 in August, 1937.

For the first eight months of 1938, which included the estimated August sales, factory sales were 1,547,776 cars and trucks, compared with 3,778,850 in the like period a year ago. Figures include principal manufacturers except Ford Motor Co.

Gen. Hartshorn, Staff Executive, To Be Retired

The War Department yesterday published orders authorizing the retirement November 30 of Brig. Gen. Edwin S. Hartshorn, who has been executive in the office of the chief of staff since 1935.

HARTSHORN.

Gen. Hartshorn, who was born in Troy, N. Y., in 1874, served as an officer with volunteer troops during the Spanish - American War and was commissioned in the Infantry of the Regular Army in 1901.

Before the World War he was twice on duty with troops in the Philippines and oncein the Hawaiian Islands. He graduated from the Army School of the line, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., in 1913 and from the General Staff School there the following year.

Detailed to the general staff in October, 1917, Gen. Hartshorn sailed for France the following month for service with the headquarters of the fifty-eighth British division and the First American Army at the front. In 1918 he was stationed here, first as a member of the coordination section of the War Department general staff and later as director of sales in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War.

Gen. Hartshorn graduated from the Army War College in 1923 and then served a four-year tour of duty with the General Staff Corps. After service at various posts he returned to the General Staff Corps for a third time as chief of staff of the Ninth Corps Area with headquarters in San Francisco, Calif.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S anxiety over the accident problem among Federal employes, first expressed in a letter to several department heads on March 19, 1938, will be treated with Tuesday when the Federal Interdepartmental Safety Council, which was created last year on the President's request, holds an all-day session in the Labor Department Auditorium.

Here it should be understood that a comparison of accident frequency rates in the Government with private industries shows that accidental injuries in the Federal service are higher than is warranted by the nature and types of employment involved.

No one has sought to explain the reason for this; but the truth of it can be demonstrated with statistics. Most of the concern over the problem centers on the field agents, where, it is understood, the majority of Federal employe accidents occur.

The call for the meeting, issued by W. T. Cameron, secretary of the council and safety adviser, Division of Labor Statistics, says: "At the direction of the President of the United States, the (council) was formed in 1937 to 'establish close working relationships between agencies of the Federal Government, to act as a clearing house for accident prevention and health conservation information * * * and to eliminate accident and health hazards to Federal employes.'"

THE PROGRAM, opening at 10 a. m., will be: Business meeting; election of officers and committee reports (the reports will concern agricultural safety, automotive and highway safety, construction safety, mining and tunneling, occupational disease hazards and industrial safety); an address, "The Accident Experience of the Federal Government," will be given by Mrs. Jewell Swofford, chairman, Employes' Compensation Commission.

Following a luncheon for the council members, the afternoon session will include: A general safety conference, with Secretary Frances Perkins presiding; a message from the President, and addresses, as follows: "Streets and Highway Safety," by Burton W. Marsh, of the American Automobile Association; "The Whole Job of Safety Engineering," by D. D. Fennell, president, National Safety Council, Chicago, and "Safety Promotion and Employe Education," by Ernest W. Beck, safety director of a nationally known rubber company.

Three movies will be shown, "Dangerous Dusts," "Once Upon a Time" and "Stop Silicosis." A safety exhibit, showing activities toward accident prevention in several Government departments, will be in the lobby and main auditorium. On Wednesday, 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., a special two-hour safety motion picture program will be given in the Labor auditorium, to which all Federal employes are invited.

OFFICERS of the council are F. L. Ahern, chief, safety division, National Park Service, chairman; Dr. Roy W. Kelly, chief, division of personnel and training, Soil Conservation Service, Agriculture Department, vice president, and W. T. Cameron, secretary. On the executive committee are Secretary Frances Perkins, W. P. Biggs, safety engineer, Navy Department; F. A. Birgfeld, chief clerk, Treasury Department; Rear Admiral H. E. Lackey, director of the shore establishment, Navy Department; Maj. Elliott Vandevanter, Engineering Corps, War Department, and V. A. Zimmer, director, division of labor standards, Labor Department.

RECENT RETIREMENTS from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing are William R. Brown, 2121 H street northwest, engraved steel plate finisher, 33 years' service; Mrs. Elizabeth J. Havenner, 640 K street northwest, examiner, 26 years' service; Rose T. McGinness, 924 Nineteenth street northwest, forewoman, 46 years' service; James S. Mulvihill, Bethesda, Md., machinist's helper, 17 years' service; Charles J. Ross, Hyattsville, Md., plate printer, 30 years' service; George W. Tate, 2024 S. Britain's Role

By Barnet Nover

London Weighs The Alternatives

From the very beginning, the attitude of the Chamberlain government toward the German-Czechoslovak crisis has largely been guided by two presumptions.

The first presumption is that what happens in Central Europe does not directly involve Great Britain or British security but may, ultimately, do so. The second is that a war between Germany and Czechoslovakia must be averted at almost any cost, for should war break out the possibility of British involvement would be considerable and might prove inescapable.

It is not difficult to discover striking similarities between this policy and the policy the Chamberlain government has pursued on the Spanish problem during the past two years, the policy toward Austria in the years between 1934 and 1938, and, to take a long look back, the policy followed by Great Britain in the critical weeks preceding the outbreak of the World War.

IN 1914 Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, pointed out to Germany that while British public opinion would not sanction going to war on behalf of Serbia, "we may be drawn into it by the development of other issues." This is precisely the thought expressed on the Czechoslovak issue by Premier Chamberlain last March and by Sir John Simon, the chancellor of the exchequer, in his Lanark speech a fortnight ago.

Then, as now, the key to British action rested in Paris. When Russia espoused Serbia's side in the latter's quarrel with Austria-Hungary, France let it be understood in St. Petersburg that should Russia get involved in war with the Central Powers she, France, would live up to her treaty obligations. And while Great Britain was under no treaty commitment to go in on the side of France she had a moral obligation to do so. It was this moral obligation rather than the invasion of Belgium by the Kaiser's troops that finally determined Britain's course.

GREAT BRITAIN today is far more definitely committed to France than she was in 1914. The entente of those days has become a clear-cut alliance. "Our frontier," said Stanley Baldwin, "is now the Rhine."

France, in turn, is committed in support of Czechoslovakia's independence and territorial integrity and repeatedly during recent months French statesmen have declared that the Paris government would not let Prague down. Should France go to the assistance of Czechoslovakia in the event the latter is attacked by the Third Reich the fat would be in the fire so far as Great Britain is concerned.

This British statesmen realize full well. They know, therefore, they are not free agents, no more than were their predecessors of 1914. They know that a general war arising out of the present situation in Central Europe would sooner or later draw in the British kingdom. They know that it was, in no small measure, the apparent indecision of the London government during the critical weeks of July, 1914, that emboldened Germany to risk a war. And they also feel that were Germany convinced that an attack on Czechoslovakia would drag in not only France and Soviet Russia but also Great Britain, the Third Reich would refrain from making war.

KNOWING all that the British government has nonetheless refused to give any direct pledge to Czechoslovakia to come to the latter's assistance or to warn Germany of Britain's certain involvement. Why?

It is said, and with some show of reason, that Great Britain cannot commit herself until all the dominions have been heard from and they have not yet been heard from. But, at the same time, the fact is inescapable that should France be involved in war Great Britain could not stand by with arms folded regardless of what the point of view of Ottawa or Canberra or Capetown might be.

It is also said that Great Britain cannot afford to let the final decision regarding their fate be determined in Prague; hence that, as long as possible, the British government must enjoy a free hand to decide which way to jump. Yet this freedom of choice may prove as much of an illusion in 1938 as it did in 1914.

HOWEVER there is one difference of vast importance between Britain's role then and now. This time, unlike 1914, Great Britain has taken the lead in seeking a settlement of the German - Czechoslovakia dispute over the Sudeten demands for autonomy. This, in turn, has given rise to the belief that Chamberlain may urge Czechoslovakia to sacrifice her independence and territorial integrity on the altar of peace.

But this is clearly oversimplification. Certainly no British interest would be served by the destruction of Czechoslovakia and the extension of German hegemony over the entire Danube valley. On the contrary, it is to Britain's ultimate interest to preserve Czechoslovakia as a barrier to the Drang Nach Osten (the push to the east). But if, even with the partial sacrifice of Czechoslovak independence, peace can be preserved for a while longer, it is likely that Mr. Chamberlain would probably favor that course. That is why, at Britain's behest, the Czech government has extended the scope of the offer it has made to the Sudeten Nazis to the point of antagonizing a large section of Czech public opinion.

EVEN these concessions, however, do not appear to have satisfied Henlein or Hitler. They ask for more. If the threat of drastic action has brought results so far it might bring even better results if continued a while longer. And a section of the Nazis is firmly convinced that no matter what the British may now say, they will not fight. They may be fatally wrong in their contemptuous dismissal of Great Britain from their calculations. But in view of the policy pursued by the Chamberlain government in the past they have some basis for their calculations.

Not the least tragic aspect of the present crisis is that even should Chamberlain now speak out as elements within and without the government are demanding, warning Hitler in no uncertain terms that Britain will fight for Czechoslovakia, it may be too late.

Self-Help Unit Sets Work Mark

In August a record-breaking total of 479 individuals worked 22,373 hours, Hugh H. Cobb, production manager of the Washington Self-Help Exchange, 2529 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, reported yesterday.

Of the 19,405 pieces of scrip redeemed during the month 6,950 were for meals, 3,014 for clothing, 2,156 for furniture, 2,110 for bread and the remainder for other necessities.

Men's and children's clothing and shoes continue to be things most needed at the exchange. The farm proved one of the most important projects conducted. Harvest was 596 bushels of vegetables in addition to 361 dozen ears of corn and 449 bunches of carrots.

As a result of working in the exchange, 154 participants received jobs in private business.

Petroleum Stocks Up 463,000 Barrels

The Bureau of Mines reported yesterday that the July supply of crude and refined petroleum totaled 583,970,000 barrels, an increase of 463,000 over June. This compared with 553,708,000 barrels in July, 1937. Stocks of motor fuel were 84,346,000 barrels, compared with 87,462,000 in June and 77,263,000 in July, a year ago.

Crude oil production increased sharply to a daily average of 3,319,000 barrels, or 177,000 more than in June. Most of the increase, the bureau said, occurred in Texas, where production rose in every major district except Rodessa. The Texas gain was due primarily to abandoning the Saturday shutdown.

Chevy Chase Gets $25,754 PWA Grant

Grants to Chevy Chase and other Maryland communities were included in the announcement yesterday of Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who aproved 61 non-Federal projects with an estimated construction cost of $10,369,850, with PWA loans of $68,000 and grants of $4,686,397.

This, it was explained, brings the total of non-Federal projects to 4,927, with estimated construction cost of $1,180,617,868.

For street improvements, Chevy Chase will receive a grant of $25,754, while the cost of the work will be $57,233. Street improvements in Cheverly, Md., were awarded $45,000 on a total improvement cost of $100,000.

A grant was made for a municipal building at Shadyside, Md., to cost $17,500. The grant amounts to $7,875.

Rackets Film, At Earle, Hits Hard and Well

Bogart and Brent Have It Out in Climax; Vaudeville Also Scores With Morris and Others.

"RACKET BUSTERS." Warner Bros.-Cosmopolitan picturization of original screen play by Robert Rossen and Leonardo Bercovici, featuring Humphrey Bogart, George Brent, Gloria Dickson, Allen Jenkins and Walter Abel. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

Handling of the yarn is realistic, hard-bitten, sometimes sharply dramatic. A neat touch was the casting of Walter Abel, who looks a great deal like Dewey, as the prosecutor. The plot spins around the infiltration of racketeers into restaurant workers' unions and truckers' associations. The criminals put the pressure on workers and business men, terrifying the daylights out of these little folk. In turn, the prosecutor has to put the pressure of threatened perjury charges on his scared and recalcitrant witnesses.

Director Lloyd Bacon has been at some pains to inject heavy thrills. We have the spectacle of George Brent and Allen Jenkins hell-bent down a hill in a brakeless truck. A sturdy old union official is pushed under a subway train. Well-barbered gorillas invade markets with bombs and gasoline and destroy vegetables distressingly. Finally Mr. Brent drives a 10-ton truck right through the front window of the gang's headquarters and drives wicked Humphrey Bogart upstairs and downstairs.

Right here is where an unwarranted insult is handed out to gangdom's markmanship. Bogart empties a pistol at Brent from a distance of about 15 feet—and never hits him once. A kid could do better with a BB rifle. If the gangs weren't so busy trying to keep out of jail, we submit that they ought to sue Hollywood for this one.

Walter Abel is sincere and dignified, but human and hard-hitting, as the prosecutor. The performance is one of his best ones. Another good chore is turned in by George Brent as a truck driver, fast with his fists but slow with his head. It's not exactly an endearing part, in spite of Brent's good work and, we fear, will do his glamor no good.

Just another truckdriver, but funny, is Allen Jenkins. Also he's ambitious and goes into the commission business as a tomato specialist only to have his tomatoes smeared from here to Sunday by the racketeers. But it was a mistake to have Mr. Jenkins step out as a hero and orator in the last few feet of the film. That hero stuff is not Allen's metier. Gloria Dickson plays Brent's wife.

Humphrey Bogart, always a dish of pure poison in criminal parts, does his role to order, although it is not an especially fat one.

But the best acting of the picture appears in a short sequence where Abel interviews a fat restaurant proprietor, played by an unidentified character actor who manages to be a complete incarnation of greed, fear, surliness and craft. A few more intervals of this quality and Director Bacon would have had a really big picture instead of a well-done program number.

There's a tricky cartoon, "Wholly Smoke" and "Campus Cinderella," a short in technicolor, sophomoric but swift.

Chester Morris sets a new high in movie star personal appearances. He's actually gotten himself an act. It's based on the idea of his making a personal appearance in your home or mine. The lines are speedy and New Yorkerish and Chester delivers them with a poise and finesse that argues he'd be even a better stage than movie actor.

Best dance team we've seen for too long is Mario and Florida, who combine an ardent grace with highly difficult steps and spins. Singer Sara Ann McCabe drew heavy applause especially for her swinging of "Caro Nome." Vic Hyde boasts that he is the only "one man band" not corraled by Maj. Bowes. The major has missed a good bet. The Sinclair Sisters, pretty and agile, double as dancers and announcers.

Indian fights, cattle stampedes, prairie fires—you can't ask for any brand of excitement indigenous to the Old West that doesn't pop up in "The Texans." There's even a spot of tomahawking.

Time is the turbulent period right after the Civil War, when the derned Yankee carpetbaggers poured into the South and fixed things up beautifully—for themselves. The action starts when the new tax collector announces that he's going to collect a dollar a head on the 10,000 cattle on the ranch of Joan Bennett. But figuring that no tax can be levied on beeves that can't be found, Joan and her sowhands drive the herd over the Mexican border and then north again to the new railhead.

It is the adventures and perils of this march through unknown country that make the story. Also there's the matter of her love affair with Randolph Scott, again playing one of those strong, silent parts he does so well.

Comedy honors are toted off by May Robson as Joan's grandmother, an unregenerate old Southern lady who likes her toddies, and Raymond Hatton playing an Indian fighter who prefers to pick off his redskins with their own weapons, the tomahawk.

About the Show Shops

'Marie Antoinette,' at the Palace, Is Cinema Art at Its Best

By Gerald G. Gross

Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

If a motion picture provides an interval of amusement, if it succeeds in taking one's mind off one's cares and worries for a spell, then it may be said to have fulfilled its obligation to the ticket purchaser. Nothing more should be asked than that the film under inspection be diverting, whether it achieves that end through heavy drama, comedy, farce, music, dancing or legedermain.

Some pictures are equal to that demand and some, possibly the majority of the complete Hollywood product, are not. Then there are some, though their number is infinitesimal when compared to the aggregate, which don't stop at the divertissement line. They are the non-clock watchers, the all too rare specimens that can make a theater not just a place to go for entertainment but one where a true soul-stirring experience may be had.

Such a picture is "Marie Antoinette," which opened yesterday at Loew's Palace. Throughout the day, from the forenoon until last night's fourth and last screening, there were long lines at the theater's box-office and great crowds in the lobby, testimony to an elaborate advance build-up which, it affords this writer pleasure to say, is more than justified.

The film which the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios have sent out as opening kingpin of Loew's greater movie season and as a prestige product in behalf of the combined $1,000,000 promotion campaign now under way fulfills every expectation, and then some. It is something of which the studio, Producer Hunt Stromberg, Director W. S. Van Dyke, Norma Shearer—in short, of which everyone may be proud, and that includes the consumers who will be fortunate enough to view "Marie Antoinette."

So many hundreds of people were involved in the making of this picture and their various duties were performed to such a high degree of excellence that it seems unfair and presumptuous to single out Miss Shearer as the individual most responsible for "Marie Antoinette's" success, if something so vast and so magnificent can be credited in the main to one person. And yet, since the fate of this picture, whether it shall be an artistic gem or an attenuated bore, hinges upon the quality of the performance given by she who plays the title role, it seems only right that Miss Shearer should receive the lions share of the honors. Conversely, had she muffed the part she should have received the greater part of the blame.

As to the narrative, you are familiar with it: The accession of Marie Antoinette as Queen of France, her fued with Mme. DuBarry, the love affair with Count Axel de Fersen, the Revolution, the guillotine. Once again there come to life King Louis XVI, the villainous Duke d'Orleans and all the others.

Madge Evans In Picture at Metropolitan

'Army Girl' Is Concerened With Experiences of Colonel's Daughter at Cavalry Post.

"ARMY GIRL." Republic picturization of a scenario by Barry Trivers and Samuel Ornitz, based on a story by Charles Clifford, featuring Madge Evans, Preston Foster, James Gleason, H. B. Warner, Ruth Donnelly and others. Directed by George Nicholls, jr. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

For a picture which is dedicated "to the men and mounts of the Cavalry of the United States Army," "Army Girl" is pretty weak tea, having to do with the lassooing of a handsome post philanderer by the colonel's daughter, and this romance all muddled up with the cavalry versus tank theme, which attempts to motivate the whole thing.

Preston Foster is groom to the tank, which is brought to a desert camp to be tried out against horses in the sandy terrain. Of course, the troop hates the squat compact little tank and one of the soldiers tinkers with it and there is a combustion, and so true love triumphs again. Madge Evans is the colonel's daughter, but a regular withal, and so she plays a trick on Foster, and everyone has a merry time, and heavens! how sluggish the conversation.

Studded with once glittering names is the cast: H. B. Warner, Neil Hamilton, Ruth Donnelly, etc, et al, and also embellished by Ralph Byrd who is being Dick Tracy for 15 weeks at the Columbia.

Definitely better than the feature are the shorts, one about Edgar Kennedy's domestic troubles when he tries to bring some of the boys home for a poker game. Another about Daffy, the whoo-whooing duck which is the property of Porky the pig, who stutters through the animated cartoons. Daffy is always good for a high neigh or two. And Kennedy's slow burn invariably incites a feeling of kinship in the male heart.

The newsreel has views of Cardinal Hayes' bier, bathing beauties, jitter-bugs, racing boats, and baseball heroes. SALLY STROUD.

Learns What They Say About Actors

Marie Wilson pulled a characteristic stunt when she conspired with a studio guide to take her around the lot with a party of visitors. Marie sat in the reception room as though she were a stranger to motion picture studios. Then she went into the studio with the party.

She was recognized, however, on the "Angels With Dirty Faces" set, the first they hit, by James Cagney and Pat O'Brien. They asked why she was making a studio tour.

"To learn," said Marie, "what people say about actors."

At the Earle and on the Way

CHESTER MORRIS AND ANN MILLER, who are, respectively, the dashing young actor of stage and screen fame who headlines the current vaudeville program at the Earle, and the winsome starlet who appears in support of Jean Arthur, James Stewart and other stars in "You Can't Take It With You," scheduled to open at the same theater September 30.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Sept. 9.—About every five years something happens to rob us of our complacent contentment and jerks us to our feet with a bang. That's what "Boys' Town" did. Not because it's the greatest picture ever made, but it's the greatest theme. Don't misunderstand me. The picture is fine all the way through, filled with unforgettable performances, given by Spencer Tracy, Leslie Fenton, Henry Hull, Gene Reynolds and Babs Watson, adorable newcomer, who gave such love and begged for it in return. Not Mickey Rooney's best—he overacted. But it was a tough part to do.

HEDDA HOPPER

But its theme, spoken by Father Flanagan, who says, "There's no such thing as a bad boy," runs through it like a melody. Let's go back a bit to see how the picture started.

A year and a half ago Producer John Considine happened across an item in a newspaper about Boys' Town. Sensing drama, he wrote Father Flanagan immediately for more information. They exchanged half a dozen letters. Father Flanagan was not only willing but delighted at the thought of the good which would ensue if they made the picture.

Then the plan was laid before the powers that be. And their consent was granted. First writer sent to Boys' Town was a woman, Eleanore Griffin. Next was Dore Schary, and John Meehan finally wrote the screen play.

Then an unseen force entered. "Northwest Passage" was postponed, which released Spencer Tracy for "Boys' Town." It couldn't have been made without him.

The one-reel picture you'll see in your theater, before "Boys' Town" is released, is a gem, made with the real boys and with the real Father Flanagan. It was made by Frank Whitbeck, head of exploitation, who, to my mind, is one of the rare people of this business. You'll see the actual boys at the chores they do daily. Fields of wheat being cut down, printing presses, wood carving.

Here are some of their stories: Youngest bank robber in the world is there; he robbed a bank and a grocery store in Corpus Christi when he was 7½. Became a problem child of Texas. Officials didn't know what to do with him and were mighty relieved when Father Flanagan asked for him.

When he arrived at Boys' Town, he was asked to spell Corpus Christi—couldn't. Only words he knew were copper and jail. He'd known nothing else—had a drunken father and no mother.

Another boy, coming home from work, finding his father had beaten his mother into unconsciousness, took a gun and killed him. The mother died. The judge asked why he did it. He looked him straight in the eye and said: "What would you have done?"

An orphan boy with a wooden leg hitchhiked from Seattle, Wash. When they took the peg off, the leg was dripping with blood.

Some years ago they had a boy who started burglarizing at 14. Stole for the fun of it. Ran a contest with himself to see how much he could get away with. At Boys' Town they put him to work on the farm until he graduated. Then they found a farm for him which he worked on shares till he made enough money to buy it. He's married now and has two children. Had inventive mind, and what do you suppose he's invented? The best burglar alarm on the market.

When Eddie Ward, who did music for the picture, was back there, he was impressed by the camera work the boys did. Some man had given them 50 cameras. But this particular boy didn't have one. Eddie bought him one, paid $50 for it. When he presented it, the boy said: "Thank you very much, but I don't want it. I'd rather you'd write me a letter once a month."

Eddie said: "I'll do that, too." "If I don't take the camera," the boy replied, "you'll remember—you may forget if I do."

Frank Whitbeck saw a colored boy playing a harmonica and very well, too. He'd borrowed it from a white boy. Frank said: "Wouldn't you like one of your own?"

He said he would love it . . . "but please don't promise unless you mean it."

Frank ordered a taxi, told the driver to go to Omaha and get the kind the boy wanted—if they didn't have one there, to go on to the next town, but not to come back without it. The boy stood for hours in the sun waiting for the return of the cab, terrified for fear the driver had made off with the money. Finally it arrived.

Frank said: "Will you play it for me."

"Sure, but please let me try it alone first," he said. Then in five minutes he came back and gave Frank a concert.

I read a letter from Gale (Snow White) Davenport—that's his name. He wrote to Uncle Frank telling him what all this had meant to him. Read it aloud to Jean Hersholt and Ralph Morgan—got half through, couldn't finish. Jean, Ralph and I stood with tears bathing our eyes.

And for 50 cents a day, for what you spend on a golf ball or highball, you can save some poor little homeless boy who never had a chance. That will feed, clothe and educate him. That's why "Boys' Town" is the greatest theme we've seen on the screen for many years. And who knows—it may arouse our citizens to build more like it. Anyway I hope so.

Boxer Sees Luck In Screen Trunks

"It means good luck, that's what it means."

So said Max Baer when the wardrobe department sent over the white trunks he was to wear in the new Pete Smith Specialty, "Fisticuffs."

"Last time I had these trunks on was when I was in 'Prize-fighter and the Lady,' back in 1933. They've been hanging on a peg in the wardrobe ever since. Remember what I did to Carnera after I was finished in that picture? Well, I've got another championship fight coming up in September. Wow, is this good luck!"

Max was referring to the match with Joe Louis, for which he has been signed.

Harold Lloyd has been assured by the Japanese Olympic committee that he will get ticket number one for the 1940 games in Tokyo, which he ordered six months ago, regardless of the martial situation in the Orient. Oh, Yeah?

Studio Manicurist Makes Film Debut

Dorothy Samsell, manicurist for the past two and a half years in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio barber shop, is making her film debut with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

When she first came to the studio, Miss Samsell bent every effort toward making a success out of her manicure business. Three months ago the manicurist was able to employ a part-time assistant, her business having grown so much. Then she decided to try her luck as an actress, since under a stock company contract she had she had been keeping up her Actors' Guild dues. A part in "Sweethearts," with Miss MacDonald and Eddy, was the result.

In Hollywood.

Jack Whiting, red-haired singing and dancing star of the Broadway and London stage and screen, has returned to Hollywood for a leading role in the new comedy "Give Me a Sailor," with Martha (Glamour Legs) Raye, Bob Hope and Betty Grable.

Satire Makes Laugh Hit of Capitol Film

"HOLD THAT CO-ED." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a script by Karl Tunberg, Don Ettlinger and Jack Yellen, based on a story by Tunberg and Ettlinger, featuring John Barrymore, George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver, Jack Haley and Joan Davis. Directed by George Marshall. Previewed Wednesday, September 7.

Some two or three years ago Twentieth Century-Fox produced a campus musical entitled "Pigskin Parade" which, to the best of my memory, was a crackerjack. Now the same studio has turned out another comedy whose locale is a college—of sorts—and which boasts several hit tunes and the dancing feet of George Murphy.

"Hold That Co-ed," too, is a crackerjack but there the comparison with "Pigskin Parade" must cease. For whereas the earlier gridiron item was strictly for eye and ear, the film tenant that moved into Loew's Capitol yesterday for the first time on any public screen owes its punch to satire on the political scene, though it need not apologize for "Here Am I Doing It," "Limpy Dimp" and the other tuneful interludes.

Starting out rather weakly, "Hold That Co-ed," once it strikes its pace, becomes an hilarious gem of entertainment in which one ribtickling situation tumbles after another in competition for the loudest guffaws. If sheer nonsense the greatest mirth, then the peak comes in the finale football game when Comedienne Joan Davis successfully bucks a wind of hurricane velocity and falls across the goal line to win the game for dear old State U.

To yours truly, however, the cream of the comedy lies in Barrymore's portrayal of that Governor, whose Huey Long-ish attributes are but thinly disguised. That the youngest of the Barrymores is a comedian of the front rank, notwithstanding the heavy dramatic roles he has played on stage and screen, is well known, but he fairly outdoes himself in "Hold That Co-ed." He plays Gov. Gabby Harrigan as though he were enjoying himself immensely.

"Hold That Co-ed" is about a young football hero (George Murphy) who, on graduation from college, accepts a coaching job at State U. only to learn just before starting work that he won't be needed. Gov. Harrigan is abolishing football at State as an economy gesture in his Senatorial campaign.

However, with the aid of Gabby's secretary (Marjorie Weaver), Coach Murphy and the campus cut-up, Joan Wavis, get the Governor not merely to change his mind but to lavish undreamed of luxuries upon hte team, including a stadium as big as Soldier's Field.

Murphy, Weaver, Miss Davis and all the others in support of Barrymore turn in commendable performances but the utter abandon of the latter's characterization probably will make you forget everything else. "Hold That Co-ed" is a funnybone must.

On the Capitol stage are Richard "Red" Skelton, Britt Wood, Earlyne Wallace, Ann Lester, Grace and Ray McDonald and the 16 Rhythm Rockettes, comprising a vaudeville program commensurate with the feature picture.

"Red" Skelton's doughnut dunking number loses nothing in the repetition. In fact, it is funnier than ever before, though unchanged since he committed it on the Capitol stage last year and in the film "Having a Wonderful Time." The fellow simply has what it takes to be a comedian.

The same applies to Britt Wood, who receives a bigger hand than he did before on each appearance to Washington. He is back playing that harmonica, unloosing his drollery and uncorking that same snatch of tap dancing. And the audience at yesterday's first performance ate it up.

The McDonalds, a brother-sister act, do a neat dance turn. Ann Lester sings "Music Maestro Please," "The Butcher Boy," the inevitable "A Tisket a Tasket" and other popular songs. Her voice registers well, but she might be able to get along with fewer gestures. Miss Wallace dances very nicely, indeed, and the same—multiplied by 16—may be said for the Rockettes. G. G. G.

RKO-Keith's.

Good things might well run on forever but "Carefree" must inevitably bow out eventually, if only to make way for "Affairs of Annabel" which is impatiently waiting to make its debut.

This is the third week of the Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers dancical and it can not go on much longer, what with all the other new season's hits which Hardie Meakin, Keith's manager, wants to let out of the bag. So be advised that this delectable bit of celluloid, in which Fred and Ginger do the "Yam" and other novel dance routines and which tells the story of a love-bitten psychiatrist, should not be allowed to slip away from you unseen.

"Carefree" has Irving Berlin's music, rich comedy by the principals, Luella Gear, Jack Carson and others, charming dances. And speaking of good things, that Donald Duck comedy is being held over along with the feature, though the newsreels are right up to the minute.

Small World.

Jane Clayton, Paul Sutton and Glen Strange, portraying important roles in Harry Sherman's "In Old Mexico," twentieth Hopalong production, all were born within a radius of a few miles in New Mexico, but never met until they began portraying their roles in the picture.

New York, Sept. 8.

MARY PICKFORD flew to the Coast yesterday to the bedside of her ailing husband . . . Walter Wanger insists he has a letter from the Franco government asking that he withdraw "Blockade," the pro-loyalist movie . . . The metaphor-slinging Edwin C. Hill dictates his Hines trial stories to a secretary in the courtroom. Reporters insist they've heard Hill start his dictation with: "Take a colorful story."

A FEW DAYS AGO the butler at Jack Whitney's home in Saratoga interrupted a poker game to inform his master that a "Mr. Hughes" was on the phone . . . "Which Mr. Hughes?" Whitney asked . . . The butler returned to the phone, and then informed: "It's Mr. Howard Hughes. He flew around the world" . . . Whitney, who held a good poker hand, was reluctant to leave the game. "Find out what it's about," he directed . . . Two minutes later the butler explained: "Mr. Hughes wants to know if you can put him up for the night. He can't get a room at the Gedeon Putnam Hotel."

THE DISPATCH that Jim Lardner has returned to the front-line trenches in Spain came as a surprise to his family. The last message to them was that the wounded Jim was on his way home . . . United Press employes will start a five-day-week schedule on Sunday . . . The new Hollywood Restaurant will feature celebrities' footprints in the sidewalk, a la Grauman's Chinese Theater . . . Alfred Hitchcock has decided against screening "Titanic" for Dave Selznick. Instead he'll direct the movie version of duMaurier's "Rebecca."

MRS. ELEANOR ROOSEVELT confided to a group of friends last week that mice still infest the White House . . . "Well, do you mind that very much?" the First Lady was asked . . . "No, not that so much," she replied. "But the White House guards amuse themselves at night—by shooting at 'em."

SUN TAN, the horse which once belonged to Dutch Schultz—and which was referred to by Dewey in the Jimmy Hines case—was purchased for $250 by Harry Weinstein, manager of Abe Lyman. As a result of the publicity, Weinstein now wants $500 for the nag . . . Lewis Mumford went to Honolulu to complete his new book . . . The foreman of the new Kings County Grand Jury is named Robert Irwin—the same name as the Gedeon slayer . . . That lone luncher at the Plaza was cracker-and-milk-eater Charles Evans Hughes . . . Clifton Fadiman, who conducts the "Information Please" program, has completed a book—about cheese.

MR. AND MRS. HEYWOOD BROUN will campaign for Vito Marcantonio, the Congressional aspirant in the Italian section of Harlem. Mrs. Broun, who was Connie Fruscela, will make a direct appeal to the Italian voters . . . Last night Mrs. Broun also started a Mrs. Roosevelt-for-Governor-of-New-York campaign . . . Herb Klein, who produced the movie, "Heart of Spain," left Prague last week with material for a new anti-Nazi film about Czechoslovakia . . . Republican committeeman, planning a gubernatorial candidate, have heard that Tom Dewey confided this week: "Nothing in the world can stop me from taking a long vacation, just as soon as this trial is over."

ALTHOUGH UNITED ARTISTS' "Lady and the Cowboy" now is in its seventy-fourth day of shooting, the officials still are unable to agree upon the picture's ending . . . The Queens D. A.'s office has called off its probe into some World's Fair sidelights . . . After one week of working at Filene's, John Roosevelt—at family conferences—now refers to the store as "We" . . . Newspapers here revealed the marriage of Merry Fahrney to Count Oleg Cassini. The N. Y. papers thereby scooped Igor Cassini, the bridegroom's brother—who is a Washington society columnist.

THE OBITUARY COLUMNS reporting the death of Count Covadonga, eldest son of former King Alfonso of Spain, stated that he had renounced all claims to the throne . . . That renunciation was made when he married the daughter of a Cuban merchant—but Covadonga still hoped to return to Madrid as ruler of all Spain . . . Early this year, at La Conga, we discussed the Barcelona bombings. "Yes, it is too bad," Covadonga shrugged, "but Franco must win. And when it is over, and the Germans and Italians have left, the people of Spain will call me back, to rule."

Fairfax Group To Discuss Sanitation

Creation of New District Will Be Theme at Mass Meeting at Groveton Wednesday Night.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. BOX 248, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

The Fairfax County health unit, under direction of Dr. Edward M. Holmes, jr., county health director, will hold a mass meeting at Groveton Elementary School Wednesday at 8 p. m., for citizens of the Belle Haven, Groveton and New Alexandria areas and other sections between Hunting Creek and Groveton, to discuss the creation of one or more sanitary districts in this section.

This section of Fairfax County has expanded rapidly in the past few years and it is felt that in order to more fully protect the health of the citizens, the creation of a sanitary district to provide for complete disposal of sewage ultimately is necessary. All citizens interested in the plan are urged to attend the session.

U. S. Signs Lease

Mayor Russell A. Lynn of Herndon announced yesterday he had been notified by the Postoffice Department that a lease for postiffice space in the new Herndon Municipal Building had been signed for a 10-year period.

The Herndon town council will meet Monday night to open bids for construction of the new $28,000 building. The building will house the postoffice on the first floor, with council rooms and other municipal offices on the second floor. The basement will house the town jail and a large meeting room.

Mayor Lynn said that during the past two years the town has installed a water system, sewage system and natural gas without increasing the municipal tax rate. The new town hall also will be built without resorting to increased taxes, as the postoffice lease will provide interest and principal payments on the $16,000 bond issue voted by the citizens last week. The balance of the cost will be financed by a PWA grant.

Daily Report Filed

The report of Fairfax County Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 1, for the month of August shows there were 21 herds on test with 708 cows, 106 of them being dry. One cow was sold for dairy purposes and 13 sold for beef.

The association average in milk production was 738 pounds, and in butterfat production 29.4 pounds. There were 11 herd averages above and 10 below the association average in milk production, and in butterfat production there were 12 herd averages above and 9 below the association average. There were 197 cows producing over 40 pounds of butterfat and 20 cows producing over 60 pounds.

The five high herds in butterfat production were owned by Dr. F. W. Huddleson, registered Holstein and Guernsey, 1,064 pounds milk, 40.7 pounds butterfat; Mrs. J. D. Thompson, mixed herd, 1,028 pounds milk, 38.44 pounds butterfat; G. M. James, registered and grade Holsteins, 981 pounds milk, 37.9 pounds butterfat; R. T. Harrison, grade Holstein and Guernsey, 951 pounds milk and 37.2 pounds butterfat; S. P. Spalding, mixed herd, 901 pounds milk and 38.3 pounds butterfat.

The highest herd in both milk and butterfact production was owned by Dr. F. W. Huddleson, with 1,064 pounds of milk and 40.7 pounds of butterfat.

The highest cow for the month was a grade Holstein, No. 27, owned by G. M. James, 82.4 pounds milk daily.

Of the 20 cows producing over 60 pounds of butterfat, Kenilworth Farm had 5; Dr. F. W. Huddleson and R. T. Harrison, 4 each; Middleton Brothers and Harrison Brothers, 2 each; Crippen & Riley, Rogers & Rogers and G. M. James, 1 each.

Social Set Tonight

The Vienna-Oakton Epworth League will hold its September business meeting and social tonight at the home of James Harry Roles in Vienna.

Services will be held tomorrow morning for the Vienna and Oakton churches. The Rev. Lowell M. Atkinson will preach on the theme, "On Being Human."

The Annandale Home Demonstration Club, at its meeting Thursday, completed plans for the local exhibit day on October 6, to be held in the Boy Scout Hall, from 5 to 9 p. m., and will consist of handicraft, canning and flower exhibits, a hobby show and a costume play. The prize winning exhibits will be entered in the County Home Demonstration Club Achievement Day, October 8.

Mrs. Morrow, chairman of the club's child study group, announced the group will meet the third Thursday afternoon of each month and will work in co-operation with a similar group in the local P.-T. A.

A committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. George Hurd was appointed to purchase books for the library sponsored by the blub.

Herndon Council, Daughters of America, will hold an ice cream festival in Railroad Park tonight, at 7 o'clock. Mrs. C. C. Dailey, Miss Virginia McFarland, Miss Annie Duke, Mrs. Boyd F. Jackson have charge of the sale.

Representative to State council, Edgar F. Gillette; trustee, H. Arnold Greear. The council will meet the first and third Thursday night each month.

Smithsburg Farmers Hunt Wild Dog Pack

Smithsburg, Md., Sept. 9.—Farmers in this section began a hunt today for a pack of dogs which killed 35 turkeys and 5 guineas being fattened for the Thanksgiving market on the D. M. Ridenour farm near here.

Roving dogs recently killed 15 sheep in two herds near Williamsport.

Quantico Flier Killed

WILLIAM F. REUTHER, aviation cadet attached to the Aircraft Squadron at Quantico, Va., was killed when his plane, lost in a fog, crashed on Fort Mountain near the Rapidan camp of former President Hoover. Reuther was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1936.

Marine Air Cadet Killed Near Rapidan

Found in Survey of Find Smoking Wreck Of Airplane Charred Body; Inquiry Set.

The charged body of Aviation Cadet William F. Reuther, Marine Corps Reserve, was found yesterday in the smoking wreckage of his plane on Fort Mountain, Va., near the Rapidan Camp of former President Hoover.

Cadet Reuther, who left Quantico early Wednesday morning on a local training flight, was believed to have crashed about 1 p. m. the same day while seeking a landing place in a heavy fog. The body and wreckage were found shortly after daylight yesterday by CCC workers from a camp at Big Meadows on Skyline Drive in Shenandoah National Park.

A searching squadron of five planes from Quantico, sent out when Cadet Reuther was reported missing, returned to the Marine Barracks shortly after word of the discovery was received.

A board of officers immediately was named by Marine Corps officials to investigate the crash, and it was said unofficially that Cadet Reuther probably crashed while attempting to land at Big Meadows, where many glider meets have been held in recent years. The body will be returned to Quantico pending the inquiry.

Cadet Reuther, son of Mrs. William F. Reuther, of Louisville, Ky., was 25 years old. A native of Montclair, N. J., he received a degree of bachelor of science from the University of Michigan two years ago, and then took flying instruction at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola. At time of his death he was assigned to the Aircraft Squadron, Fleet Marine Force, with station at Quantico.

Disease Report Published in Arlington

26 Cases of Syphilis Are Listed, Most of Them Found in Survey in Food Handlers.

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Clarendon, Va., Tel. OXford 6599

Dr. Ralph G. Beachley, county health officer, reported one case of diphtheria, one case of infantile paralysis, seven cases of pulmonary tuberculosis, 26 cases of syphilis, one case of pneumonia and three cases of whooping cough during August.

Most of the syphilis cases were found in the survey of food handlers being conducted by the health department. Provision was made for treatment of these cases in the clinic recently organized. Dr. Beachley said the survey is being continued.

Dr. Edward V. Jones, assistant health officer, during the month took 252 Wassermans. He also made 11 home visits, and held 10 conferences with patients in connection with the syphilis clinic. He made several visits to contacts in connection with the case of infantile paralysis, and five home visits were made in connection with the one case of diphtheria reported.

Mrs. M. A. Rudasill, in charge of the well-baby conferences, reports 18 were held during the month with an attendance of 284. Mrs. Rudasill also made 38 home visits in connection with the infant welfare service, and 27 home visits to preschool children.

Mrs. N. R. Davies, public health nurse, reports that six new white cases of tuberculosis were reported during the month, four of which were active, and two arrested. There are at present registered in the health department, 98 active cases, 29 of the childhood type, 167 arrested cases, and 146 suspicious cases.

The first tuberculosis clinic of the fall season will be held October 10, at the Cherrydale Health Center.

Mrs. Davies reports the Arlington Lions Club has agreed to assist with two blind children who are about to enter the Institution for the Blind at Staunton.

Norbert Melnick, chief sanitary inspector, reports that a total of 2177 plumbing permits were issued during the month.

H. S. Omohundro was named chairman in charge of arrangements for the Constitution Day dinner, September 17, at the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria, according to an announcement yesterday by Lawrence Michael, county chairman of the Arlington County Republican Committee.

In addition to the local committee, Mrs. Alice Strauss, of Alexandria, heads the committee representing the Eighth Congressional District. Her aides are Mrs. Marian Hagan and Lawrence Michael, of Arlington County; Otis Thornhill, of Culpeper; Shirley Pickett, of Purcellville; John Barton Phillips, of Alexandria; G. R. Yardley, of Charlottesville; Carol Vernon, of Stanardsville; Henry Goodlow, of Crozet; A. S. Potts, of Weedonsville; G. O. Mac Alexander, of Orange; William Sullivan, of Fredericksburg, and Mrs. Richard Farr and Dr. F. M. Brooks, both of Fairfax.

Carl Brockway will entertain with a magician act during the first part of the evening. There will be music by the Kiwanis Boys' Band.

The Clarendon Unit, Woman's Temperance Union, will conduct a gold medal contest tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the Ballston Methodist Church. The contest will be directed by Mrs. Jesse T. Lasswell.

The Arlington County Young Democratic Club meets Monday at 8 p. m. at the Lee Tavern in Glebe road. A report of the recent State convention held at Richmond will be made by the attending delegates.

Court Allows Elkton To Contract Town Limits

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisburg, Sept. 9.—Judge H. W. Bertram, in Rockingham County Circuit Court, has granted the petition of the town council of Elkton that the town limits be contracted to exclude 47 acres along the Shenandoah River.

The Elkton town council voted to have the area excluded from the corporate limits in order that the State highway commission may obtain the right of way for the approach to the bridge being constructed and to be liable for flood damage. In the past the Zetty field has been badly washed by flood.

Mrs. Glasgow, New Leader Of Auxiliary, Appoints Standing Committee Heads for Year.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Temple 3767
Delivery Service, phone Alex. 1400.

Mrs. W. Milton Glasgow, who was installed as president of the American Legion Auxiliary Thursday night, has announced the appointment of a number of standing committee chairmen for the year. They are:

Mrs. Irene Richardson, membership; Mrs. Cora Sanford, child welfare; Mrs. E. Burnett Ale, rehabilitation; Mrs. F. Clinton Knight, service sale; Mrs. Franklin DeDier, poppy; Mrs. George W. Roop, Americanism and national defense; Mrs. Lydia L. Spofford, FIDAC, Mrs. Robert Zimmerman, legislative; Mrs. Harry Davis, community service; Miss Hazel Crown, publicity; Mrs. C. A. Quinn, entertainment; Mrs. O. W. Cope, penal; Mrs. V. B. Gerald, emblem; Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, memorial; Mrs. W. E. McCullen, junior activities; Mrs. Albert May and Miss Minnie Barnett, refreshments; Mrs. C. L. Ladson, visiting sick; Mrs. A. M. Roland, banquets and suppers.

Mrs. Glasgow appointed a committee composed of Mrs. Irene Richardson, the first vice president, and Mrs. F. Clinton Knight and Mrs. Franklin DeDier, past presidents, to arrange for a tea at Gadsby's Tavern October 4, in honor of the Virginia Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, to be in annual convention in this city at that time.

The Alexandria Chapter of the American Red Cross, Clyde C. Lamond, president, has announced that the Alexandria Soroptimist Club will sponsor the annual roll call from September 26 to October 17. The quota set for Alexandria is 28,000.

The Alexandria Municipal Swimming Pool will close tonight, after operating throughout the day according to the regular schedule. Hours are from 9 to 12 a. m., and 2 to 6, and 7 to 10 p. m.

A feature of the evening hours will be presentation of Red Cross Life Saving cards and emblems to Paul Thomas, Raymond Maxwell, Virginia Taylor, John Shelton, George King and William Taylor, who completed the course under direction of Thomas Ennis.

Members of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Catholic Church will attend Holy Communion at 7 a. m. tomorrow in memory of the late Rev. Henry J. Cutler, for many years pastor of St. Mary's Church.

The society at a meeting last night made plans for attending the State convention of that organization at Richmond September 25.

Past Commander Herbert A. Cady, of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, last night at a meeting of Squadron No. 24, Sons of the American Legion, at Gadsby's Tavern, presented a cup awarded the local junior group at the recent department convention at Charlottesville.

City Manager Carl L. Budwesky announced yesterday that in the next ten days a list of approximately 60 houses will be compiled by the city manager, city engineer and fire chief that are considered fire hazards, and the owners will be required either to raze the buildings or repair them to eliminate danger to adjoining property.

Augusta Teachers Again Elect McClure as Head

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Stunton, Va., Sept. 9.—R. Vance McClure, of Greenville, has been reelected president of the Augusta County Teachers' Association—his third consecutive term. Robert A. McChesney, of Churchville, was named vice president; Mrs. N. H. Moody, of Fisherville, secretary, succeeding Miss Sue Craig, of Craigsville.

Mountaineer's Trial Set In Rum Agent's Slaying

Pulaski, Va., Sept. 9 (AP).—J. D. Spencer, 60, indicted on a charge of murder in the shooting of State ABC Board Inspector T. M. Gravely, will face trial September 16 before Circuit Judge John S. Draper.

The ABC board inspector died of wounds received in a raid on a still last Friday. Officers said Spencer, a mountaineer, admitted he fired on Gravely and Wiley Faw, a deputy sheriff, who also was wounded in the raid.

Cheverly Gets $45,000 PWA Streets Grant

Officials of Cheverly, Md., were notified yesterday the PWA had approved their application for a grant of $45,000, representing 45 per cent of a proposed $100,000 street improvement project.

The project calls for grading and surfacing, construction of curbs and gutters and installation of drainage facilities. The town's share of the cost of the work will be financed by a bond issue.

The Prince Georges County Board of Police Commissioners yesterday questioned Officer Oscar F. Beall in connection with charges that he violated five sections of the police regulations, but deferred action in the case until their regular meeting, September 23.

Beall has been under suspension since he was involved in an accident September 3 while driving a police scout car. He has been on the force since 1927.

William Gray, colored, 22, of Upper Marlboro, struck by a bullet from the pistol of Prince Georges County Policeman Edwin Cissel in a scuffle September 3 outside a beer tavern in Upper Marlboro, was acquitted in Police Court yesterday of drunk and disorderly charges.

Cissel and Officer Charles McGuire answered a call at the beer tavern to quiet a disturbance. They testified that Gray attempted to resist arrest and fought back when they attempted to take him to the hospital after the bullet had grazed his head.

A softball game will be held at Magruder Park, Hyattsville, at 5 p. m. today between the Hyattsville firemen and Prince Georges County police for benefit of the No. 1 unit of the County Police Boys Club.

Students Anxious To Return To Scohol

Who said that students don't like to go back to their three R's? Jay Walz finds that many students in Washington are just waiting for the first bell to ring. Of course, Walz attributes the increased interest in study to the unusual opportunities and resources that exist here in the Capital. But he gives other reasons why the interest in education is increasing here—and he predicts a few changes in education for the very near future. Students as well as teachers will want to read his article in the Special Educational Section of Sunday's Post.

The Shadow of Death Was His Constant Companion

Hemophilia . . . the curse of the Bourbons! For centuries, it has plagued the royal family of Spain. Last week it struck down its latest victim. No matter where he went, Alphonso, Count of Covadonga, could not escape the deadly menace that had haunted him since the day of his birth. He knew that a pin prick or a slight cut while shaving might result in death. Frederic Tuttle, staff writer of the Post, tells you about this romantic figure who was born to rule Spain but who, last week, died in exile, a victim of hemophilia.

Pastors Bring Fall Early to Churches

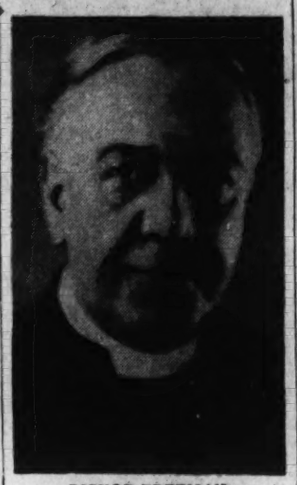
Bishop Freeman Heads Returning Ministers, With the Rev. Messrs. Abernethy, Anderson, Ball, Blackwelder, Bowman, Clarke and Cromer Among Others Starting After Vacations.

In 12 more days, say the astronomers, fall will be officially here, but by tomorrow it will have arrived in the majority of Washington churches.

For the last two weeks Capital clerics have been returning from mountains, sea shores and golf courses all over the Eastern United States, and in a few cases, from Europe.

Heading the returning reverends will be the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal bishop of Washington, who returns from his Sorrento, Me., home, where he has been since June, to preach at both the 11 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. services in the cathodral.

Across the city at Calvary Baptist, the Rev. W. S. Abernethy will be speaking in his old pulpit after a month in New England. "God Is Still at Work" will be his topic in the morning sermon. In the evening he will discuss, "Tomorrow."



BISHOP FREEMAN, who heads returning clerics.

Old Timer Service

Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, of First Congregational, will speak on "The Unique and the Universal" in his first sermon since his vacation, at 11 a. m. Coincidental with his return, this church will also resume its weekly dinners, the first coming at 6 p. m. Thursday. Reminiscences of the church by its old timers will feature this dinner, in preparation for the seventy-third anniversary observance next Sunday.

From Lake Mohonk, N. Y., comes Dr. John C. Ball, Metropolitan Baptist pastor, to begin his thirty-sixth year as pastor with a Lord's Supper sermon on, "A New Vision of Jesus." In the evening he will speak on, "My Father's World."

After a month vacationing in Virginia and North Carolina, Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, will return to his pulpit to discuss, at 11 a. m., "Little Gifts and Large Service." His assistant, the Rev. Ralph W. Loew, will speak on the topic, "Why You and I Are Here" at the 8:30 matin service.

Dr. Warren D. Bowman, of the Church of the Brethern, will speak at both services tomorrow for the first time after his vacation, his subjects, in the morning, "The Way of Life," and at 8 p. m., "Two Builders."

Although he spoke last Sunday at Takoma Baptist, the Rev. Edward O. Clark will be making his first appearance in his own Chevy Chase pulpit in a month, tomorrow, delivering a communion meditation on, most appropriately, "A New Start." A fall program for his church will be planned at a meeting of the executive committee Thursday at 9 p. m.

Fresh from a trip through the Rocky Mountains with his family, the Rev. Horace E. Cromer, of Emory Methodist Church South, will speak on "A New Perspective" in the morning and in the evening will begin a series of sermons on "Convictions of Importance." The schedule of services at his church also goes on the winter schedule, with church school at 9:30 a. m., morning worship at 11, league services at 7 p. m. and evening worship at 8.

"Flowers in Glass"

"The Unseen Guest" will be the topic of the Rev. J. Lowrey Fendrich, jr., at his first sermon at Metropolitan Presbyterian since his vacation, at the 11 a. m. service tomorrow. At the 7:45 p. m. service, Dr. Fendrich will discuss "The Pebble in Your Shoe."

Dr. Hillman Hollister's first fall topic, at Chevy Chase Presbyterian, will be "Flowers in Glass."

At Eldbrooke Methodist, the recently-returned Dr. Walter M. Michael will preach at morning worship on "And Abraham Stood."

Dr. ZeBarney Phillips, rector of Epiphany Episcopal Church and chaplain of the Senate, will preach for the first time, after a summer-long vacation, at morning prayer in his church. Dr. Francis Yarnall, vicar of Epiphany Chapel, will be special speaker at the 8 p. m. service.

Dr. Pruden Returns.

After a vacation including several speaking engagements, Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, of First Baptist, will be back in his pulpit, speaking at morning communion on "The Indispensable Element of Sacrifice," and in the evening on "When Compromise Is Sin."

Dr. Henry W. Snyder, St. Paul's Lutheran pastor, after an absence of four weeks, will return to his pulpit tomorrow to preach on "Sour Grapes."

Back from one of the longest odesseys of all, to England and Norway, Dr. James H. Taylor will preach morning and night at Central Presbyterian. Dr. Taylor supplied the pulpit of Marylehone Church in London for the major part of his time abroad, as he has been doing for the last five summers. Later he visited Norway briefly, returning in time to sail on the Queen Mary for home. Mr. D. Y. Page, who has supplied the Central Church pulpit during Dr. Taylor's absence, is returning to the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond.

Dr. Taylor's only rival is the Rev. Frederic J. Wenchel, of Christ Lutheran, who preaches tomorrow, full of information gained from a two and a half month sojourn in Europe.

The only curate on the list is the Rev. William Curtis White, of St. John's Episcopal Church, who is returning to preach at 11 a. m. on "Divine Providence." The full choir of men and boys under Arthur Howes, will sing.

Covenant-First Again to Hear Dr. McCartney

'The Ministry of Courage' Will Be Presbyterian Pastor's Subject at Morning Service.

Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, will return to his pulpit tomorrow morning, and will have for his subject at the 11 o'clock service, "The Ministry of Courage."

The Sunday school will open at 9:45 a. m. for all departments, with the Rev. Samuel R. Allison, as superintendent.

The Board of Elders of the Church will meet on next Thursday, at 8 p. m. in the pastor's study.

Westminster Church Memorial. The Rev. Harry V. Porter will conduct the morning worship service and preach on "Behold, a Stranger!" At 8 p. m. he will begin a series of six sermons on "What a Christian Believes" with the first, "About God." The summer church school which is now in session will hold its closing exercises on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

Metropolitan. On Wednesday at 12:30 p. m., there will be a picnic luncheon served by the ladies of the Guild Aid and Missionary Society. After this luncheon, there is to be a conference of leaders and chairmen which will be conducted by the pastor, Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich.

Thursday at 7:30 p. m., the mid-week services will be resumed. For the subject, Dr. Fendrich will speak on, "How to Handle Disappointment." Immediately following the service, there will be a joint meeting of all the boards.

New York Avenue. At 11 a. m. Dr. Albert Evans, associate minister, will speak on the topic, "The Miracle of Peace."

Chevy Chase. All departments of the church school except the young people's and Mothers' Class will reopen after a recess of six weeks. Classes will meet at 9:30 a. m. The Clyde Kelly Men's Bible Class did not recess during the summer and will meet at the regular hour, 10 a. m.

Woman's Guild Section Eight, Mrs. John A. Reed, leader, will meet for luncheon Wednesday at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. LeRoy Bagley, 8 Leland court, Chevy Chase, Md. Mrs. Wilbur La Roe, jr., will assist. Woman's Guild Section Six, Mrs. Laurence O. Manley, leader, will meet for luncheon Tuesday at 1 o'clock in the church school building, Mrs. Manley hostess.

Christian Science Topic 'Substance'

"Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Matthew 5:6: "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness; for they shall be filled."

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." (Hebrews 11:1).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay . . . Spirit, the synonym of Mind, Soul, or God, is the only real substance." (Page 468)

Pastor Finds Music Aid To Religion

Rev. Mr. Hauber, Ascension Church Pastor, Feels 'Idealistic Recreation' Is Necessity for Youth.

Appreciation of the cultural values of life, particularly music, makes for a better approach to religion, believes the Rev. Joseph A. Hauber, new rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Silver Spring, who, on September 15, will conduct a unique young people's program in the parish hall, featuring electrophonic reproductions of classical gems.

THE REV. MR. HAUBER.

"Through a deeper appreciation of music," says this graduate of the Munich Conservatory, "one is better able to tie in religion with the daily life, because music tends to create a higher and more wholesome atmosphere."

Most of his musical education has been linked with theological pursuits, for, while serving as assistant pastor in Altoona, Pa., he attended Duquesne University, receiving his B. S. degree in music in 1932. Ordained to the deaconate and later the priesthood, in Chicago, in 1922, where he also acquired his early education, his first assignment was a professorship in Latin, English and music in a preparatory school near Erie, Pa., where he performed various parochial duties from 1922 to 1925.

Convinced that "idealistic recreation" is a necessity today, especially among the younger generation, the new Ascension cleric, appointed September 1, plans to conduct his parishioners of high-school age on tours of museums and other places of educational interest. Later, the young people will do research work based on their experiences, after which they will lead round-table discussions on the topics.

"If their leisure time is not directed in the right channels, the young people simply will go haywire," he commented.

A student of the social sciences, he feels that religion has been divorced too much from the practical side of life and that there has been too much theorizing about solutions to social and economic problems and not enough action.

"We must get away from the profit motive and socialize our problems, not only individualistically, but spread out over the whole community, in order to give sanction to higher ideals," he declared yesterday, sitting in his apartment at the Francis Scott Key, where he and his wife are staying, pending construction of a new parsonage in Silver Spring.

The former Martha Bigley, of Altoona, she and her minister-husband were married in 1932, the year the Rev. Mr. Hauber relinquished his pastoral duties in the Pennsylvania city to study at the University of Pennsylvania, where he was graduated with the degree of master of science in education in 1933.

Deciding to devote himself to the study of social sciences, he matriculated at the Graduate School, American University, and in 1937 entered Virginia Theological Seminary to take a postgraduate course in theology and church history.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, Sept. 9.

NO DOUBT the thump of the pigskin is heard abroad in the land today, though the football season here doesn't open full tilt for another two weeks. And I admit I'm on tiptoe, for there's no happy season of spectator sport like the bright and bracing days of fall, when the whistle blows, and the hair blows, and the home team blows the big game to old Siwash. I love it.

ALICE HUGHES.

Scouting the stores and stylists, I find nothing extraordinarily new for the pretty girls to wear for the next eight or ten Saturdays. There will be gay plaids notable in tweed suits and warm fall coats. By November raccoon coats, horse blankets and running noses will also be high style—and so will the elevated young man who insists on helping the home team in its losing struggle, and is led protesting from the park

• • • •

The spouse and I shan't make our official football debut for '38 until three weeks from today, when our small but gallant gang from Columbia makes its debut against the enormous and ferocious youths of Yale in the New Haven Bowl. Yes, we'll be there—but, oh, how I wish it were this afternoon!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—The Norma Shearer mystery had us all winging, what with the conflicting reports that she was in our Mount Sinai Hospital for a minor operation, and that she was sailing on a yacht at the same time. I hoped at the time that if the hospital yarn was true, Norma was there for a quick operation on those bangs she's been wearing around town. I just don't like 'em, but shucks, who am I to talk?

Hardly a day passes, but what some new wonder of our fast approaching world's fair comes to the top, and now I've just heard that Prince Paal, a photographer, has just secured a camera concession. For 25 cents, in Paal's Salon de Snap, you can have your picture took standing next to a life-sized, life-like figure of your favorite movie star—and then ship it home to show the folks just how well you stand with Gary or Bobby or whoever.

Speaking of movie people, Miss Virginia Pine, the tall and pretty blonde, gave us all a turn the other day. For several years she has been "romantically linked" with George Raft. Yet when we asked her the name of her favorite movie star, she said "Gary Cooper," and we fairly staggered. A good brave girl, Virgie, but maybe just a mite rash. Unless she doesn't care any more. . . .

The reappearance of the waistline in the fall clothes has struck horror to the hearts of the ladies who haven't been watching the good old calories. Practically all the daytime and evening clothes I've seen are narrow at the waist—thus putting a burden on our figures and on perfect jobs of corseting. What good will the fullness of the skirt be if a nice, slim waist doesn't show it off, oh shucks, why mention it now? If we've allowed our figures to expand unduly, it's too late to do much about it now—for fall.

This column appears daily and Sunday.

American Designers Perch Hats Forward

VERY LADY-LIKE and distinguished is the Shako or cuff-brimmed turban of black felt and velours, above, which achieves a flirtatious effect with cascades of chenille-ringed veillame which proceeds to tie it in a more boydenish mood, pierces a shirred felt bowler with a sharp quill to get the masterpiece of flippancy shown at the right.

IN CREATING flattering and practical fall millinery, American designers have devised upswing bonnets that perch in daffy fashion, yet somehow manage to stay put in spite of themselves. The coal-scuttle felt, above, is banded with striped crepe which proceeds to tie it in place. The Victorian toque to the left is made of cushioned-brimmed felt and ostrich tips.

Lower Waistline Fashion Mandate For Coming Season

Paris (U.P.).—A lower waistline is one of the most distinctive features of the new clothes being shown for the coming season. Waists drop anywhere from half an inch to 3 or 4 inches, but the drop is evident everywhere.

Evening dresses take on a low-slung line, often emphasizing hips instead of waist. Sometimes the low line is marked by jeweled belts or crushed girdles encircling the hips. Other designers prefer to mark the new line by a change of material. Thus at Patou's much satin-backed crepe with its dull side is used for ankle-length slim skirt and the shiny side is used for the long bodice.

The ever-lowering waist receives added emphasis when it dips down farther in back than in front, with belts and jackets following the line. To wear or not to wear a belt is not a question, for either way is safe.

There is a middle course even smarter—to mark the low waist by encircling it with a band of flat braid, velvet, ribbon or satin, stitched tight and perhaps emphasized by one of two other bands stitched below it.

Snood for Sleeping.

You can look different and well groomed and still keep your bob long at night, if you will confine your tresses in a snood. These are crocheted by hand of chenille and come in black and colors for day or night.

American Design

Native Couturiers Coming Into Their Own This Fall

By Marshall Adams.

The Post Fashion Editor.

American design will be recognized more enthusiastically this fall than in all the years past during which it has been struggling for its lawful ascendency, for native couturiers already are ushering in their most exciting Autumn inspirations.

This is the opinion of Washington's most reliable style arbiters who have, for some time, been watching America emerge as a powerful influence in fashion dictatorship.

The Washington Post, having faith in both the talent and capabilities of native designers and their themes, and also in the immediate nation-wide impetus for the Buy American Plan, believes that its fashion-conscious readers will welcome a series of consistent fashion notes on what is going on in design work rooms on this side of the Atlantic.

NO MORE exciting fashion impetus has been born this season than hysteria which surrounds the new fall millinery picture. What with up-swept hair styles and pea-sized bonnets absorbing all fashion-wise females, the most discussed question at the moment is hats, hats, and more hats! Two schools of conviction are evident around town. Some very chichi women have been wearing quite a bit or quite a little of the frankly amusing American show-girl miniature bonnet, with varying success. There's no doubt in the observant female mind that the Lilliputian-type of headdress is here to stay this fall, but the more conservative group is hankering to be served millinery that is clever, original and becoming, while neither too amusing, nor too too cute.

A New Ideal

The reply to the average woman's plea to be made beautiful and original, but not as prankish as the Parisian modiste would have her, is found in the newest hat boxes filled with New York and Hollywood designs. Celebrated native fashionists are waxing more and more independent of foreign edicts and resultantly have produced some strictly original millinery modes, many of which have arrived for the Millinery Festival, which local stores will celebrate the coming week. John Fredericks, Marion Vallee, Lydia, Howard Hodge, Sally Victor, Rene Martin and Rilla Marie, along with Orry Kelly, film stylist, have been evolving a style of hat which will be becoming to every face, figure and type of American pulchritude. Paramount in these stylists' minds were the characteristics of the Detroit, or the Baltimore, or the Kansas City or the Washington woman, for they realized that no woman is so easy and yet so discerning to clothe as the American woman.

Day-to-Day Flattery

The millinery theme used to best advantage by these artists is the high and forward technique. Realizing that flattery must be combined with practicability, they have contrived a strapped or tied-on bonnet which can be worn with upswept coiffures and yet remain substantial for office, school and just plain everyday wear. This matter-of-fact appeal to women of more conventional tastes doubtless will prove popular with local women who have found the pygmy hats too droll for day-to-day wear.

For the Short Woman

The swept-up and aft look of both coiffure and millinery may be achieved in several ways. The Shako or Busby is one of the most becoming silhouettes for fall into winter wear. Because this Chechia (as it was called a few years ago) goes high-hat, it is particularly suitable to tiny women wanting to look tall but not top heavy. This style, and practically all the newest toques, hour glass hats, fezzes and peaked turbans are ideal for high-throated coats and for fur wraps later on. That isn't to say that the turbaned mode is the only important influence among new millinery entries. The pinwheels of skunk, fox and mink are lavishly smart for immediate wear with matching neckpieces and suits, and perfect for that worldly-woman look that becomes desirable around winter coat time.

More of a Ziegfeld luxury air is evidenced in plumes and feathers—ostrich and quills. There has not been such a feeling of expansiveness and wealth in years as has been marked in the Gay Nineties and Victorian richness of trimming. Perhaps this craving for nosegays, jeweled hatbands, curls piled high under wee, beribboned pillboxes of velvets, velours or plasteres feathers; perhaps this fall of heart-shaped decolletage, of soft cushioned effects and violets dripping scent will produce a female as provocative as Lily Langtry or the well-known Scarlett, or even Becky Sharp.

Silk Jersey Taking On Increasing Importance

Paris (U.P.).—Silk jersey takes on increasing importance as the weeks roll by. There's really no reason why it should not find favor, for well-knit jersey—such as Paris is turning out—not only keeps its shape but keeps the shape of its wearer as well.

It is effectively combined by Molyneux with wool fabrics in a striking navy blue afternoon suit worn by and much admired on the pretty Countess de Plas. The skirt of the suit is accordion-pleated, while the bodice is made of navy blue silk jersey cut on simple lines. A tailored jacket buttons all the wya down the front and sports four small patch pockets.

Your Figure

Exercises Are Suggested to Reduce That Extra 10 Pounds Which Is in the Wrong Places.

By Ida Jean Kain.

THINGS ARE going to be different this fall. You are going to get your figure down. You are going to lose that 10 pounds. Maybe 10½. And you are going to get it off the right places, too. Let's see . . . one and one-half inches off the waist and two off the hips. And something must be done about your posture. By the time you get through, you'll have a figure like Hedy Lamarr!

That waistline—is it eight inches less than the bust measurement? Is it even six inches less?

You can't have a good figure with over-sized hips, so you are going to slim them down if it's the last thing you do. Here is a good exercise to take those extra pounds off the hips.

Suggested Exercise.

POSITION: Standing with one hand braced against heavy chair or doorway.

MOVEMENT: Swinging rhythmically and freely, swing the leg far out in front and high up in back. You should work up with your leg-swinging exercise until you are doing it for five minutes a day—by the clock. One girl swung four inches off her hipline in just 30 days with this very exercise!

Exercise is the main thing in your scheme of making your figure over. Five minutes of exercise today and tomorrow, and next week 20 minutes . . . and pretty soon things will be different!

Man Able to Get Along With Most of Brain Missing

How Nervous Activity Functions in the Body

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

I have often said that the most marvelous part of the human body is the cerebellum. The cerebellum makes us do 10,000 and 1 little things with precision and assurance and without giving them a thought, from picking up a coffee cup by the handle to running for a street car.

But like all other parts of the higher central nervous system, it depends on the humble processes of digestion, respiration and metabolism, as well as a great many other things that are not chemical.

Man's real function in the world must be to use his brain, but heaven knows that function goes about as wrong as any of the others we mentioned in the earlier articles this week. Men can live, and animals can live, without very much of their upper brain. The decorticate animal walks, sits, crouches and rights itself in fairly normal manner. In the great American crowbar case, where a crowbar was accidentally driven through a man's left frontal cerebral hemisphere, which is supposed to be the center of thought, the victim slept, walked and conversed with his family all right for many years afterward.

So these high centers are not divorced from the rest of the body. In a way it can function without them. At least it is able to take care of its creature needs without them. And they cannot function without the body's chemical help or without the impressions that come in from the outside world.

The functioning even of the logical centers of Kant and Newton and Hume are conditioned on what their eyes brought to them, and their ears and the sensations from their skin. Aloof and magnificent as their conceptions were, they were still born in the phenomena of the earth in which their creators lived.

In studying such a thing as Milton's blindness, it has been pointed out that he was, in youth, probably an albino, because like an albino he saw everything in a blaze of light. His poetry is filled with images of light, of a glorious heaven ablaze, probably because he saw this world in that way. Thus each of us is bound in our thoughts and our opinions by the experiences of our lives.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Working Wife Expected to Share all Expenses, Including Amusements; Is This Fair?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Here is my problem: I'm 21; my husband 24. We've been married almost two years and have had unending financial trouble. I've worked ever since I got married and make the same as my husband. During this time, I have paid half on all expenses, including automobile, land, food, rent, etc. Also, I bought all the furniture out of my own pocket.

• • • •

I have not begrudged giving half toward all expenses, but I do think my husband could give a little in return. For instance, he has flatly refused to spend as much as 5 cents on me, for anything at all, and furthermore, he says if I were to lose my job, I would lose him with it. Now, here is my question: do you think it would be asking too much of him to take me to a movie or for a swim about once a week? He doesn't have to spend a cent on me for clothes, etc.

• • • •

As I have said above, I paid half on the automobile, but I have no keys and am not allowed to drive the car except as a convenience to him. Recently we went to the beach with his parents and when he refused to pay my admission into the pool, I declined to go in with him. His parents sided with him, naturally. What do you think? Please straighten me out. Thanks. WORKING WIFE.

• • • •

Miserly Attitude

DEAR WORKING WIFE: Your husband has the idea, apparently, that he is conferring an inestimable boon upon you in just letting you live with him. His opinions need revising. You ought to educate him. When a man marries, it is tacitly understood by the contracting parties and by society at large, that he is making himself responsible for his wife's maintenance and support; that he is, in other words, able and willing to supply her with the necessities of life, commonly defined as food, shelter and clothing.

• • • •

Yet it appears that your husband is subscribing to no such understanding or arrangement; that he is rather, expecting you to pay for the dubious privilege of living with him—indeed, making it an article of the marital creed that either you pay or out you go. And that, in my opinion, is an attitude of mind on the part of a husband which no self respecting woman could or should tolerate for an instant longer than it would take her to pack her belongings and make with finality for the nearest exit.

• • • •

In order to clarify my mind concerning a wife's rightful claims upon her husband in matters financial, and to ascertain just how much of a demand a husband can make against his wage-earning wife's income, I undertook to discuss your situation with a certain attorney. His reaction was interesting and illuminating. He said this: "When you find a young couple scrapping over small potatoes, as these two are over which shall spend a quarter on who, their strife is not over money only. Something else is radically wrong between them or with them." I am sure he is right, and I believe your quarrel over expenditures is rooted in your husband's general cussedness—in a meanness of spirit that merely comes to flower in money miserliness.

• • • •

Tight-fistedness in money matters, carried to the point of avarice (as in this instance), is scarcely ever an isolated vice or shortcoming. Usually it is sympathetic of scheming selfishness in every aspect of personality and bespeaks a character incapable of adjusting himself to the technique of generous give-and-take so essential to happy marriage or successful partnership. The more this sort of character gets for nothing, the more he wants; concede him an inch and he asks for a mile.

• • • •

Obviously, the only way to checkmate this tendency and obviate its potential ill effects on a partnership is for the party of the second part to refuse to play the game on the spoilsport's terms; to rise up and defend his rights, by defending them and acting within them. Yet when marital discord has reached the point where one person is obliged to employ sharp measures in order to secure even minimum consideration from the other, the marriage has generally arrived at the breaking point. A condition aptly described as "mutual incompatibility" may be said to exist; and nothing short of a miraculous spiritual transformation on the part of the offending party (with concomitant reversal of former attitude) is calculated to invoke adequate and enduring harmony.

• • • •

Sometimes a forceful and telling rebuke, administered as much by actions as by words, effects a chastened reform in the offending party; other times, it merely aggravates his antagonism and strengthens his obstinate determination to have his way. But one thing is sure, the injured party has nothing to gain by meekly or resentfully submitting to patent injustice. As a rule, the best course of action for him to pursue is to assert, with serene finality of behavior, his spiritual and social independence of the other party, by adopting a pattern of conduct that is just in itself, and to which the other may either adjust or not, as he chooses.

• • • •

In other words, and in your case, I would suggest that you inaugurate a new order of things, whereby your husband is required to meet the whole basic expense of the marriage (supplying the necessities of life for both,) while your earnings are apportioned to joint comforts and modest luxuries, to defraying personal expenses incident to your employment, and to family savings, banked under your own name. Pay your own way socially, without further quarrel or question. You might even dramatize the gesture a bit—doing it boldly, promptly and cheerfully.

• • • •

If your husband balks at this arrangement, you may and should construe it as evidence of his essential unmanliness; of his mean unwillingness to support a wife, while enjoying the prerogatives and consolations of marriage; and as a prophetic omen that you are destined, in this union, for unending, unavailing and unappreciated self sacrifice. His reaction to such a showdown will tell whether he has been erstwhile merely thoughtlessly selfish, or whether he is callous and mercenary to the bone. If he shows a shame-faced willingness to meet you half-way, by suggesting yet another compromise arrangement satisfactory to both, shelve your program and co-operate with him toward working out a happier plan for marriage. But if he insists on his way, whole-hog or none, your only alternative to knuckling under is to leave him flat. M. H.

Hobbies Pay Dividends

Her hobby pays double dividends to Helen. She began to make artistic lampshades for pleasure. Now her friends delightedly buy them.

That's the way with many hobbies—and they take much less talent than you'd think.

There's knitting. Lots of people do it. Jackadaisically, but if you make it your hobby—experiment in colorful wools, new patterns—you may turn out creations that exclusive shops will pay money for.

And lovely patchwork quilts! What fun they are to make with their quaint patterns, such as the Variable Star. There's a demand for them, too—now that the early American period is so popular.

Or do you have a feeling you've a special talent—such as creative dancing? A few hours with a dancing class will bring it out, inspire you to invent dances on your own. Soon you may be in demand as an entertainer.

Somehow what you love to do you do well—and rewards just plop in your lap. A man who once made little models of stage sets for his own pleasure now makes models professionally. A woman whose hobby was cats now writes a "cat column" for a big newspaper.

As for the amateur collector, how often you read of him cashing in on a big find—a rare stamp or coin, a print of historic value.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, Fun With a Hobby, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Society Flocks to Hunt Country For 39th Warrenton Show

'Big Names' Turn Out in Force as for 'Second Saratoga,' Although Mrs. Whitney Is Absent; Ladies' Saddle Class Big Event of First Day; Dozens Give Parties.

With opening of the Warrenton Horse Show yesterday, society flocked into the hunt country by the hundreds to attend one of the biggest "horsy" events of the year. The occasion marked the thirty-ninth anniversary of the show, and spelled "finis" to a summer season that now has dawdled to a close.

Clear, brisk weather brought out autumn tweeds and the crowd lingered through the afternoon and into the twilight, before dispersing over hill, dale and dell to attend the dozens of evening functions scheduled to take place in private homes and at the Warrenton Country Club.

Though important Mrs. John Hay Whitney was in Hollywood, many of society's other "big names" turned out in full force, making Warrentotn ilik like a second Saratoga.

Taking the limelight for the first day was the ladies' saddle class, which came at the end of the program, but which aroused more interest than any other event on the card. Wearing brown and blue habits, shiney toppers, white stocks and "just the right kind of gloves" (there had previously been a heated discussion as to what were the right kind of gloves), leading horsewomen galloped past the judges' stand in a blaze of glory.

Society Women Compete in Show

Among those who entered this class were Miss Dorothy Neyhart, Mrs. George Cutting, Mrs. Jacob Weatherall, Miss Ellie Wood Page Keith, Mrs. James Clark, jr., Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, Mrs. Melville Bearns and Miss Julie Shearer.

Fifty per cent of the points checked off in this group were scored on "smart and workmanlike appearance of habit and accoutrements," so that although all of the ladies were dressed alike, there was as much rivalry as to costume-effect as you can meet up with in a whole season of receptions and teas.

Among those who rushed back to Warrenton just to be on hand for the show were Amory Carhart, M. F. H. of the Warrenton Hunt, and Mrs. Carhart; Mr. and Mrs. Clark Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Larrabee, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pool, Mrs. John Hinkley, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McGrath and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haserick.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Gould Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jenkins and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin King.

Many From Middleburg

Hunt country folk from Middleburg also turned out in full force for the big event, which will continue through today. Glimpsed among them were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur White and attractive Miss Bettina Belmont, Miss Mildred McConnell and her sister, Miss Betty McConnell, and Mr. and Mrs. Turner Wiltshrie.

Then all the way from Leesburg came, to mention only a few of the very, very many, William H. Lipscomb and his daughter and son, Miss Helen Lipscomb and Ross Lipscomb; Judge J. R. H. Alexander, Miss Hebe Waters and her sister, Miss Darrah Waters.

Still more glimpsed here and there were Mr. and Mrs. Murray Black, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Day, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Day, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Greene, Mrs. H. C. Groome, Larry Pool and Col. and Mrs. Clark Reynolds.

Capitalites Are on Hand

Washington's quota included Miss Margaret Cotter, Miss Betty Cousens and Miss Anne Hagner, all of whom looked extremely dashing in their riding clothes; Miss Frances Crouse, Miss Peggy Tinker, Mrs. Ruth Lester Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Seal and literally hords of others.

Hardly was the show over yesterday when about 100 of the spectators were entertained at cocktails by genial Host North Fletcher and his mother, Mrs. Victor Froment, who were among the many holding open house. Earlier in the day Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winmill had entertained a large group at luncheon.

Then last evening Harcour Lees feted the younger set at a large and lavish dinner party.

Sooner or later almost every one in Washington's neck of the woods turned up at the Country Club for the big dance, the first of two wich will be held there during the show wek-end. The second will take place this evening.

Valley Disciples Select Strasburg For Next Session

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 9.—The eighty-ninth annual convention of the Valley District, Disciples of Christ, was concluded here today after the convention selected Strasburg, Va., as the scene of the next session.

Fred D. Maphis, of Strasburg, was re-elected president. Other officers named were the Rev. C. H. Funk, Winchester, vice president; L. D. Pifer, Winchester, secretary-treasurer; K. L. Saum, Edinburg, member of the evangelizing board; H. F. Boyer, member of State State board; the Rev. Meredith Norment, Woodstock, member of nominating committee, Virginia Christian Missionary Society; Joseph E. Childress, Luray, member advisory board of religious education.

Resolutions adopted today decried the use of alcohol as a beverage, denounced war and called upon all churches to co-operate in a program of personal veangelism.

Mrs. Page Heads Va. Mothers Club

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 9.—The Mothers Club, at its first meeting of the fall season, held last night in the social room of the Christian Church, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Charlie Page; vice president, Mrs. A. M. Jarman; recording secretary, Mrs. H. L. Bing; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. G. Clarke; treasurer, Mrs. I. C. Tuthill.

Quota Sugar Imports Under Last Year

The Agrcultural Adjustment Administration reported yesterday that 3,576,000 short tons of sugar were delivered to the American market under import quotas for the January to August period, compared with 4,032,157 for the corresponding period last year.

The amount delivered by continental sugar cane areas under the sugar control act, totaled 164,184 short tons while the amount delivered by the continental sugar beet area amounted to 607,900 short tons during the first seven months of this year.

Railway Employment Gains in August

Railway employment increased 1.05 per cent in August as compared with July, the Interstate Comerce Commission reported yesterday.

Class one carriers had 930,268 employes last month as compared with 929,477 in July, 1938, and 1,162,797 in August, 1937. The ICC's index of eployment stood at 51.3 in August as compared with 50.7 in July and 50.1 in both April and May. The highest point on the index this year was 56 in January.

Rail Rate Plea To Be Heard Oct. 17

The railroad's plea for continuance of temporary increases in freight rates on bituminous coal will be heard October 17 by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission, announcing the date yesterday, assigned Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison to preside. Oral arguments will begin October 24 before the full commission, if testimony has been completed by that time.

Bedtime Stories

By Thornton W. Burgess

The Old Slough.

Who seeks to keep an open mind
To truth is very seldom blind.
—Jerry Muskrat.

Jerry Muskrat came up for air. He had been under water a long time. You would be surprised to know how long he had been under water. I suspect that if I should tell you, you would doubt that any one can go so long without fresh air. When Jerry came up he was amid strange surroundings. He was in the middle of a long, narrow pond bordered by marshy ground where coarse grasses grew in clumps and where in places there were rushes and sedges and in other places low bushes that like wet feet. At one end was a great bed of cattails, a far larger bed than ever had grown at the Smiling Pool.

Just after Jerry had poked his head out of water Mrs. Jerry had come up beside him. "Well, my dear, what do you think of it?" said she.

"I'll know better when I have seen it," replied Jerry shortly, for he had come over to the old slough under protest. "You see I was right about Reddy Fox," he added.

"Quite right, my dear, quite right," replied Mrs. Jerry good-naturedly. "But he didn't catch either of us and here we are where he can't catch us. Do you see all those cattails down at that end?"

Jerry admitted that he saw them.

"Well, my dear, what do you think of it?" said she.

He would have had to be blind not to have seen them. "Come on over there and we'll get a bite to eat; I'm hungry," said she, and started to swim that way.

Jerry was hungry himself, so he followed. They soon reached the cattails. As they did so Longlegs, the Great Blue Heron, flapped upward on his great, broad wings, his long legs trailing straight out behind him and his long neck bent back on his shoulders so that as he lazily flew toward the Big River he looked as if he had no neck at all.

There were no tender shoots on those cattails now as there had been in the spring and early summer, but there was another part almost as good, the tender sweet heart down at the base of each plant, and Jerry and Mrs. Jerry knew just how to get it.

After they had eaten their fill, Mrs. Jerry suggested that they explore the slough and this Jerry was quite willing to do. He hadn't wanted to come here, but now that he was here he wanted to see it thoroughly. He wouldn't admit it to Mrs. Jerry, not yet anyway, that he was already delighted with the place. If the rest of it was as good as this end where the cattails grew it was all that any Muskrat could ask as a place in which to live. So it was with an open mind that Jerry followed Mrs. Jerry.

First they swam all over the pond and Jerry had to admit that it couldn't be better. In the middle it was deep enough so that there was no danger that in winter it would freeze to the bottom. The rest was shallow, but still deep enough for good swimming in most places. Every now and then Jerry dived and examined the bottom and each time he came up with a satisfied look that he tried to keep Mrs. Jerry from seeing. You see that bottom was just right. It was neither soft mud or sand, neither of which is good for digging canals. It was a sort of black peat that would not cave in when a canal was dug through it.

For quite a little way back from the open water the shore was marshy and there were little channels winding in and out around the tussocks of tall grass and among the sedges and rushes. In one place they found a big bed of a kind of sedge that was even better eating than the cattails. It would be a simple matter to dig canals and cut paths where they might be wanted.

"What I don't understand," said Jerry at last, "is why there are none of our folks here. Muskrats have lived here some time or other, for I have found old signs. But there are no fresh signs. So I guess we will have it pretty much to ourselves."

"Do you mean that we are going to live here?" asked Mrs. Jerry.

"Of course. Why not?" replied Jerry as if he never had had any other idea.

$1,000,000 Company Sold to Employes

Akron, Ohio, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Colonial Salt Co. has become Akron's first employ-owned major industry, President W. F. Ince revealed today. Control of the 37-year-old, $1,000,000 company passed into the hands of a group of old employes on July 1 when they purchased outright the entire common stock of the company, Ince said. The new stockholders, all veterans in the service of the company, elected James Shaw chairman of the board and Ince, president.

One thousand shares of preferred stock were sold to the company's older employes in the sales force, office and factory.

Safeguarding Health in D. C.

1 Field Bacteriologist Louis Litman, of the Food Inspection Bureau of the District Health Department, takes a specimen from a glass in a local restaurant. The bacteria on the swab are imprisoned in a jar of sterile water and taken to the health department laboratories where . . .

2 . . . Dr. J. D. Holland pulls a sample of the bacteria-laden water out of the jar for transposition to a "petri plate," on which it will be mixed with a jelly-like substance which holds the microbes in "colonies" so they may be counted.

3 In the next step the "petri plate" is placed in the incubator, which is kept at body temperature. Here, after 24 hours, the bacteria will begin to form in colonies and prepare for the next test, shown below. Dr. Holland is squinting through the lens of the counting machine, counting the bacteria on each plate. From the results authorities can determine whether the bacteria on restaurant utensils are above the 500 allowed by the health department.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

With a certain nostalgia for the good old frugal days, Republicans tell a story about Cal Coolidge's lavish hospitality. Some people were dropping in, and one came sooner than the others. He was given a highball. He had finished his drink when the others arrived and were given highballs, too.

"How about Mr. X?" inquired Mrs. Coolidge. "He hasn't a drink."

Quentin Roosevelt . . . remembered

* * * *

Some of the Capital's masterminds think it's illegal for a candidate to promise to give voters money if he's elected. They think the $30-every-Thursday sort of promises are a kind of election bribery, forbidden by statute in some States, and that the courts might throw out such an election.

* * * *

FOREIGN PIFFLE: It's no novelty for the American Embassy in Moscow to receive a request from an American autograph hound for Stalin's signature . . . And our diplomats in Africa and Asia are often asked for rare stamps by Yankee philatelists . . . (Needless to say, they can't comply.)

"—worship of a war hero"

But the oddest request of all went to an American envoy in a tropical country. An American with a large estate asked for 200 monkeys for his private park. He'd heard they just ran wild down there, anyhow. It sounds like a request from either California or Florida.

* * * *

Since the President's speech in Maryland there's been considerable flippancy about his emphasis on the youthfulness of Davey Lewis, 69-year-old opponent of Senator Tydings . . . G. O. P. wits point out that Lewis is only one year younger than a superannuated Supreme Court Justice . . . But Democrats retort that it's the liberal viewpoint that keeps a man young.

Meanwhile, there's some speculation whether FDR's Ambassador to Belgium, Joe Davies, will send in an absent voter's ballot, and whether it would be marked for his son-in-law, Mr. Tydings, FDR's target.

* * * *

You often find sentimental young women or hero-worshiping small boys gazing at the sepia portraits of the fliers of the Lafayette Escadrille at the National Museum, across the street from the Internal Revenue Bureau.

One portrait that wins the most attention is that of Quentin Roosevelt, whose plane was brought down in France when he was only 20.

He was a son of Teddy Roosevelt, a brother of Alice Longworth, and a fifth cousin of FDR.

* * * *

Near Quentin Roosevelt's picture hangs one of Allan Seeger, who wrote "I Have a Rendesvous With Death," and then kept the rendesvous . . . The wife of the artist, John Elliott, gave the portraits to the Government . . . She was the daughter of Julia Ward Howe, who wrote "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" . . . Quite a few war vets, incidentally, have named sons for Quentin Roosevelt, the only son of an American President ever killed in action.

"—John O'Connor's circus act"

Few Congressional districts offer such a sharp study in contrasts as that of John O'Conner, the Sixteenth New York, whom the President would rather see purged than any three Senators. It's bounded on the north and east by high hat, expensive Sutton place and ritzy Park avenue; on the south and east by old Tammany Hall and the East River slums. He has to sell both J. P. Morgan and the tough longshoremen.

* * * *

It's no wonder that in desperation he's trying to ride both the donkey and the elephant back to an eighth two-year term.

Incidentally, his district borders for 30 blocks of Park avenue cheek by jowl with the infinitely more silk-stocking district of Bruce Barton, the Republican white hope, who represents both the delicatessen aristocracy of Riverside drive and the veddy-veddy people of the East Sixties, where FDR.'s town house is situated.

CAPITAL CAVIAR: American diplomats in Latin-America use thin paper for their letters, so they can send four pages by air mail for one stamp . . . Diplomats who saw the Davis Cup tennis at Germantown were inclined to make an international incident of the poor conditions of the courts . . . And Edgar Hoover should investigate whether it's true that the silly rule against topless bathing suits at Atlantic City is forcing men to wear brassieres on the beach.

Court Action Sped on Md. Bridge Suit

$30,000,000 Program Hinges on Appellate Verdict; Deadline on PWA Aid Looms Three Weeks Away.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Sept 9.—Rapid-fire legal maneuvers, involving an injunction action threatening the State's $30,000,000 bridge construction program, sent the case to the court of appeals today, after it was instituted, answered and tried in a lower court all in a matter of hours.

So important is the final decision to the State roads commission, its counsel said, that the appellate court's ruling will represent a verdict on the entire program—either causing it to collapse entirely or proceed without further legal barriers.

At issue is a taxpayer's suit filed by Clainton Wyatt, Baltimore attorney, who has questioned the constitutionality of the act of 1937 under which the commission has gone ahead with its bridge plans.

Hearing Set Wednesday

Wyatt's complaint, the State roads commission's answer, and trial befor Judge Eugene O'Dunne in superior court, were completed this morning. Even before Judge O'Dunne handed down a ruling dismissing the suit, arrangements had been made to rush the case to the appellate court.

Officials said the high court would hear it on Wednesday.

Wyatt contends the 1937 act was unconstitutional in that it provided for the roads commission's issuance of revenue bonds without providing for a special tax to pay the interest and to retire the principal of the bonds within 15 years.

Despite a provision of the statute specifying the interest and principal are to be paid solely from tolls on the bridges and are not to be an obligation of the State, Wyatt held such bonds would be a State debt.

September 30 Is Deadline

Commission officials said the validity of the bonds would have to be cleared before they could be sold and before the Public Works Administration, to which the commission has applied for Federal aid in the program, would take action on the request.

September 30 is the deadline for obtaining PWA funds, they pointed out, citing the necessity for speed in settling the case. Should the 1937 act be held unconstitutional, the commission will be left without a means of financing the construction.

The program includes bridges over the Potomac River, over the Susquehanna River, Baltimore Harbor, and the Chesapeake Bay.

'Little Old Lady' Of Roosevelt Talk Identified in Md.

Crisfield, Md., Sept. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Seena Landon trudged for miles to welcome President Roosevelt with a huge American flag, and as a result, she won mention in the Presidential speech.

In his Labor Day speech at Denton, the President said:

"Coming up from Crisfield this morning, there were three things that stand out in my mind. The first was on a country road away from any house, a little old lady standing there holding a big American flag. I said 'good morning' to her, and she smiled back."

Local residents wondered who the little old lady was, but no one seemed to know. But Mrs. Landon went shopping and mentioned it to the storekeeper. Today she explained:

"I did my best to honor the President as he passed by. I stood on my tiptoes and cheered and waved the flag up and down. President Roosevelt tipped his hat and smiled and said 'good morning' to me. It was a big thrill, believe me."

Court Affirms $10,000 Award For an 'Insult'

Supreme Bench Decides Kroger Firm Must Pay Because of Remark in Discharging Employe.

By the Associated Press.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 9 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals affirmed today what it termed the largest award in a suit based on the statute of insulting words ever reviewed by the tribunal.

In an opinion by Justice Campbell—one of 26 handed down by the court today at the conclusion of its Staunton term—the tribunal upheld the verdict of a Smythe County Circuit Court jury awarding $10,000 to D. R. Rosenbaum from the Kroger Grocery and Baking Co., by which he was employed formerly in its Marion store. Rosenbaum sued for $25,000.

V. H. Dillon, a meat inspector for the concern, the notice of motion alleged, told Rosenbaum in November, 1936, in the presence of other persons that he was discharged and that, "You got us for $100 last week."

The Supreme Court held that Rosenbaum's reputation for truth and honesty "prior to this contraversy" was adequately established and it "appears that the plaintiff has been unable to secure a similar position on account of having been dismissed."

Justice Henry W. Holt wrote a dissenting opinion and Justice John W. Eggleston concurred, holding the lower court erred in instructing the jury and that the verdict was excessive.

Young Democrats Of Va. Organize Speakers Bureau

Richmond, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Young Democrats of Virginia are organizing a special speakers' bureau, to be made up of specialists in various problems of State and local government confronting the Old Dominion.

Some 300 speakers, to be chosen from nominations by presidents of local clubs and members of the executive committee, will be organized for political service.

"Democracy Speaks" will be the official title of the bureau. Headquarters will be the permanent quarters of the Young Democratic Clubs here, under direction of John Currie, executive secretary.

School Contract Awarded in Page

Luray, Va., Sept. 9.—The Wood Construction Company of Roanoke yesterday was awarded the contract for building the consolidated school building in Springfield District, Page County. The bid of $37,864 was the lowest of ten opened.

Raymond V. Long, of Richmond, State architect, said before the company can start work, the award must be approved by WPA. This will take approximately ten days. Work must begin not later than September 29, and will require about eight months to complete.

The new building will be of brick, two story, and will contain ten rooms and an auditorium.

Primary Eclipses Md. Interest In Defenders' Day Celebration

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Sept. 9.—Powder-grimed men fired squat black cannon down into the Patapsco River toward a threatening line of 16 British frigates, whose longer range guns showered the tiny fort with shot and shell. A Washington lawyer walked the deck of a captive ship and watched through tht night with anxious eyes upon the fort.

The time was 124 years ago, the place was before Fort McHenry during the War of 1812, and the result was the defeat of the British and the birth of "The Star Spangled Banner," scribbled on an envelope by Attorney Francis Scott Key.

On Monday, Maryland will celebrate "Defenders' Day" in honor of the gallant stand at Fort McHenry which prevented the British fleet from passing and reinforcing 8,000 "invincibles" of Lord Wellington's army who had landed at North Point, 13 miles from Baltimore.

The celebration, in former years marked by pyrotechnics, parades and sham battles, will be eclipsed Monday by the primary election, climaxing the most spectacular campaign in Maryland history.

The President, who as Assistant Secretary of Navy was guest of honor at Baltimore's "Defenders' Day" celebration in 1913, will take no part in this year's observance although he will watch with interest the outcome of the primary.

Despite the primary, formal signs in banks and business houses announced they would be closed Monday because it is "Defenders' Day."

Pageant to Revive Memories Of Bitter County Seat Fight

'Port Tobacco Flames' to Dramatize Half-Century-Old Conflict Between La Plata and What Is Now 'Ghost Town;' Four-Day Fair Opening Sept. 15 Features Coronation; Leaf Festival.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

La Plata, Md., Sept. 9.—Memories of a bitter sectional conflict in Charles County more than half a century ago will be revived in a pageant to be presented at the county fair here next week.

Back in the 1890s Port Tobacco, now an almost abandoned village at the headwaters of Port Tobacco Creek, was a thriving community. It was the county seat, but its right to that was disputed by residents of La Plata.

After some memorable verbal battles between the two communities, the main part of the courthouse at Port Tobacco mysteriously burned down one night in 1892. There were charges of incendiarism but these were never proved.

Finally in 1895 the county seat was moved to La Plata. This year's pageant, to be presented in connection with the Court of the Magic Weed,' is written around this old ghost town. Entitled "Port Tobacco Flames," the pageant's finale will show a replica of the courthouse being consumed by flames.

The fair will open in the fair grounds near La Plata Thursday, September 15 and will continue until the following Sunday when the Charles County Horse Show will be held.

Opening day features will include a fashion show from 8 to 9:30 p. m. and a fireworks display from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m.

On September 16, the county's fifth annual tobacco festival will be presented with the coronation of Miss Louise Jameson, of Pomonkey, Md., as Queen Nicotina V. The crown will be presented by Lawrence E. Williams, first vice president of the Washington Board of Trade. Taking part in the ceremonies will be princesses from the counties of Anne Arundel, Prince Georges, Calvert and St. Marys. There also will be eight maids of honor.

About 150 persons are in the cast of the pageant "Port Tobacco Flames." Most of them are descendants of those who actually took part in the county seat conflict more than 50 years ago.

Tobacco Queen Receives Golden Crown at Va. Fete

South Boston, Va., Sept. 9 (AP).—Senorita Erma Castillo Najera, of Mexico, was crowned "Regina Tobacco IV" at the fourth national tobacco festival tonight with a splendor and pageantry befitting royalty.

Coronation climaxed a day of colorful activities for the queen and her court of 99 princesses and distinguished guests, including an elaborate parade of more than 40 floats, a pageant masque and a coronation ball, which brought the two-day festival to a close.

The dark-eyed Mexican girl, daughter of the Mexican Ambassador to the United States, had a golden crown placed upon her head by Oscar Littleton Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior and a native of Virginia.

Mr. Chapman, speaking briefly, emphasized importance of the tobacco industry and the national festival and stressed the feeling of good will between Mexico and United States.

V. F. W. Rally Set At Harrisonburg

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Sept. 9.—Otis N. Brown, of Charlotte, N. C., senior vice commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in the United States, will be the main speaker at an all-day rally of officers and members of the organization's Fourth District, to be held here Sunday. Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia, constitute the Fourth District.

M. G. Duffey, of Ocean View, Va., national councilman for the Fourth District, will preside at the meeting.

Other speakers of the morning session will include F. Millard Rice, national legislative officer of the V. F. W.; Capt. Joseph D. Chittenden, director of National Service Bureau, and Dan Campbell, chairman of the national employment committee.

Volunteer Firemen Sacrifice Deeds To Get PWA Aid

Frederick, Md., Sept. 9 (AP).—Two volunteer fire companies here have deeded their properties to the city to obtain a Public Works Administration fund of $30,000, City Attorney Edward J. Smith said today.

The PWA grants had been made to the city for improvements to the Junior and United Fire Company halls and construction of a new firehouse for the Citizens Truck Company. The money cannot be obtained unless deeds to the properties are held by the city. The title to the Citizens Company is held by the city, but the other two are privately operated.

Ttitle to the united property was transferred two weks ago and title to the Junior Company was transferred today, the city attorney said.

U. of Va. to Let Contracts for Hospital Wing

Work Is Expected to Start on $150,000 Addition Early in October; Gift of $82,000 Revealed.

By the United Press.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 9.—Contracts will be let late this month for a $150,000 addition to the University of Virginia hospital to provide private rooms, public wards, doctors' offices and other accommodations for neurology and psychiatry. It is expected that construction will be started about October 1.

A gift of $82,000 from Paul G. McIntire, of New York, an alumnus of the university, and a grant of $67,000 from the PWA, will make it possible to add two floors to what is now known as the preventorium wing, and to extend this entire wing by an addition of about 36 feet in length.

The two floors will provide more than 40 beds for use by mental patients. Of these 26 will be in wards, 12 in private rooms, and several others for use by patients needing special treatments.

In the extension to the present three floors of the wing provision will be made in the basement for occupational therapy rooms, on the first floor for a dining room, and on the second floor, occupied by the teachers' preventorium, for a parlor, a writing room and a waiting room.

The fourth floor, to be added above the preventorium, is to be devoted to offices and to accommodations for male patients.

The top, or fifth, floor is designed for women and children. At the front will be a solarium and playroom for children, with offices for a psychologist, a social worker and for nurses.

Sasscer Sees Effort To Saddle Baltimore Relief Debt to State

That's What Will Happen if City Candidate Is Elected Governor, Says Senate Head; O'Conor Pledges to Eliminate Politics From Quasi-Judicial Bodies; Jackson Again Attacks the Attorney Generalfl

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 9.—Senate President Lansdale G. Sasscer, one of four Democratic seekers for the governorship, told Annapolis voters tonight "now is the golden opportunity for the State as a whole to select its candidate, with the rival machines of Baltimore at each other's throats."

"This is the first opportunity for a quarter of a century, and if we fail this time and either of the city machines get control of the Statehouse, those of us here tonight will not live long enough to see that control broken up," Sasscer said in an address prepared for delivery at a rally here.

"If either of these machines win in this primary," Sasscer continued, "the $4,000,000 relief deficit now accumulated in Baltimore City will be spread upon the whole State. I say this because efforts were made unsuccessfully at the last two legislative sessions to pass the city's $1,800,000 relief deficit on to the taxpayers of the State as a whole.

"If, however, this consolidation of power is effected by the nomination of either of the city candidates, they will then have the power to pass this relief overdraft on to the rest of the State."

'Non-Political Boards'

At Frederick Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor pledged himself tonight to eliminate politics from the State's quasi-judicial boards and commissions if he is nominated and elected Governor.

The Democratic gubernatorial candidate told a Frederick audience "it is a regrettable fact that occasions have arisen" when appointments to such agencies as the State banking department, the public service commission and the State tax commission "have been made on the basis of political importance or prestige of the appointee."

"Such shall not be the determining factor if I am elected Governor," he asserted, "because I intend to keep these important commissions out of politics, as far as possible."

O'Conor made special reference to the office of bank commissioner and asserted he would, if elected, "safeguard the interests of the public by appointing the very best person I can find as bank commissioner of the State."

With reference to the State roads commission, he asserted:

"I shall not allow practices to develop where favorite contractors are permitted to divide up the public business. On the contrary, I intend that the commission be run as a modern and efficient business organization.

"As an illustration, I intend to put a stop to any practice of splitting up contracts into parcels of $975 each in order to get around the law which requires that contracts of $1,000 or more be advertised. This has occurred in recent years."

The attorney general added he intended to make it "abundantly clear" that the State insurance commissioner "must supervise the handling of insurance business so as to prevent persons holding high public office from using their influence to corral bonds and insurance business."

Jackson Renews Attack.

At Westminster Mayor Howard W. Jackson asserted tonight that O'Conor, his Balimtore city foe in the Democratic gubernatorial race, was making a "desperate attempt to divert public attention" from "his failure to answer a simple question about his so-called financial program."

The mayor, addressing a Westminster party rally, said in a prepared address he had asked O'Conor how the latter planned to reduce the State's budget by $75,000, and that the attorney general, instead of answering, "resorts to abuse."

"If he had a plan worked out to the point, as he claimed, that he could reduce expenses by that amount, he ought to be able to tell the public how he arrived at $750,000," the mayor contended.

Citing "personal attacks on me" which he said O'Conor had made, Jackson asserted the attorney general was seeking to get "political benefit" from "the unfortunate Ritchie campaign, when Gov. Ritchie's closest associates are supporting me and not Mr. O'Conor."

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

George Preston Marshall, down to his last quarterback, approaches with misgivings the Redskins' 1938 debut in the National Professional League. He said so yesterday as he called for a new cake of soap and attacked the week's wash.

POVICH.

"I believe in being very forthright," said Mr. Marshall. "The Redskins are not up to par. In fact, you might say that we are in foul shape. With Riley Smith in the hospital, with Sammy Baugh limping, with Ed Justice moaning about his sore shoulder, we are in a bad way."

Mr. Marshall denied that he was alibiing in advance for anything that might happen to his Redskins tomorrow in Philadelphia, where they will play the Eagles. "I know I may sound like a college coach on Friday night, but that is not to be helped. I simply do not want to create any false hopes for the Redskins in this opening game. It's simpler to tell the truth.

"I do not mean that we cannot beat the Eagles. We may do that. Ray Flaherty is bringing the club around fast and it's possible that they will start to click when they hit league competition. If anything more happens to Baugh we'll have Rink Bond in there to quarterback the team. Bond will put a stop to the mess we've been making of our signal-calling."

Mr. Marshall Explains

Mr. Marshall was asked how come that this fellow Rink Bond, who wasn't good enough for the Redskins three weeks ago and was released, has suddenly qualified as a smart-thinking quarterback.

"That is where you are wrong, young man," quoth Marshall. "You do not understand. We asked waivers on Bond three weeks ago, but we did not release him. Nobody claimed him. I mean, er,—well, perhaps I shouldn't have said nobody claimed him. It isn't a nice thing to say about a fellow. But it was lucky for us that they didn't.

"We asked waivers on him simply because it looked as if we were overstocked with quarterbacks, not because Bond didn't measure up. He quarter-backed the University of Washington team for three years hand-running and our scouts say that was the smartest-handled club on the Coast. We couldn't anticipate that Riley Smith would be in the hospital for three weeks, or that Sammy Baugh would get hurt. Now we need a quarterback and it's lucky we have Bond."

Mr. Marshall blew the whistle on himself, dried his hands, climbed out of his dungarees and resumed: "There's one thing, though, that annoys me no end. We are not, as some people seem to believe, a one-man ball team. To hear folks in other cities tell it, you'd think Sammy Baugh scores all our touchdowns, makes all the tackles, and after throwing his forward passes runs down the field and catches 'em. That is not so.

"We do have in Baugh the best football player in this league and who would probably make a pennant winner out of several other clubs in the league if he were with 'em, but we are not a one-man football team. Did you ever hear of our two ends, Wayne Milner and Charley Malone; and Turk Edwards, all-league tackle for six of the seven years he has been in the league; and Ernie Pinckert, the best blocking back football ever saw? Well, then."

Will Miss Riley Smith

George Preston suddenly bethought himself. "But it's all right with me if the idea that we are a one-man team is confined to the other clubs in the league. If they think that is all that they have to do to stop the Redskins, why that will be just fine. Because we can show them a few other guys who will win ball games for us.

"We'll be missing a great field-goal kicker in Riley Smith in our first two or three games, but did you ever see George Karamatic try to kick a field goal? No, you haven't. I'll answer that one for you. But the chances are that you'll see Karamatic doing that little thing if we need it.

"Riley Smith will kick more field goals than any other man in the league, but Karamatic will boot his share when Smith isn't in the line-up. And Karamatic won't trifle with those 20 and 30 yarders. He'll boot that thing over from 50 yards if necessary, although I hope it won't be necessary."

Mr. Marshall was beginning to warm up to his football team which only a half hour before had been worrying him considerably. He was now plainly enthusiastic about his Redskins and beginning to orate.

Don't Underestimate Turner

"And another thing. Do not underestimate that lad Jay Turner from G. W. U. If I know anything about the Redskins," said Mr. Marshall, who will go to Philadelphia tomorrow as friend, co-coach, good-will purveyor and owner of the Redskins, "Jay Turner will play a lot of football for us. Good hard football.

"I saw enough of Turner in Chicago and Dallas to satisfy me. I saw a kid who can't help but be a big help to us. I saw him throw harder and better blocks into defense men than I ever saw performed by a college boy. He represents new blood to the Redskins. The kind we need, the kind those other clubs are getting. If Turner doesn't justify the promise he's shown us, I'll be disappointed.

"You know, those three weeks we spent in Ballston did us no good. It was too hot. It took something out of our boys. Only in the past few days have they begun to show their old fire. The team that Flaherty puts on the field against the Eagles will be a pretty good ball team, pret-ty good, I'm thinking. You know, we ought to win that ball game."

Werber Hits Homer for A's, Unaware of Suspension

Ineligible Werber Star As A's Win

2-Run Homer Defeats Red Sox, 4-3; Telegrams on Suspension Arrive After Game; Boston Not to Protest.

Boston, Sept. 9 (AP).—A delay in the delivery of three telegrams concerning Bill Werber's three-day suspension today enabled the Athletics' fiery third baseman to play against the Red Sox and beat them, 4 to 3, with a two-run homer.

WERBER.

Werber has been sidelined for three days by President Bill Harridge for his part in yesterday's fisticuffing with Buddy Myer, of the Nats. Harridge's wires, however, were not received by Werber, Manager Connie Mack and Umpire George Moriarity until after the game.

Although Werber, whose bat accounted for half of the Athletics' winning four-run rally in the eighth, was officially ineligible, the Red Sox management said no protest would be made and that the game, as far as the Boston club was concerned, would stand as a Philadelphia victory.

The Athletics got to Jim Bagby in the eighth and scored all of their runs on two singles, Etten's double and Werber's homer into the left-field screen. The Red Sox collected their first run off Lee Ross in the third and added the remaining pair in the last of the eighth when Chapman brought in Vosmik and Foxx with a wto-bagger with two out.

U. S. Seniors Win Match

Beat Great Britain, Canada for International Team Honors.

Toronto, Sept. 9 (AP).—The United States captured the international rtiangular team match honors of the Seniors' Golf Association from Canada and Great Britain at the Toronto Golf Club today. Gaining a lead of 3 points in the six foursomes yesterday, the United States players swept the majority of the 12 singles in the final day's competition.

The Americans compiled 18½ points in the singles and 6 in the foursomes for a total of 27½. The Canadians picked up 10 points in the 12 singles matches and 6 yesterday for a 16 total. The British total was 10½, made up of 3 points in foursomes and 7½ in singles.

In the international team match between Canada and the United States for the Duke of Devonshire Trophy, the United States team won by 31 points to 14. This event, in which the same players participated, was scored on the Nassau system, a point for each nine and a point for the 18-hole round. Three players were added to each team for the event, making 15 a side.

Dodgers Beat Giants

Fat Freddy Adds to Terry's Woes by Hurling Mates to Victory.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 9.—Fat Freddy Fitzsimmons, who was "kicked downstairs" to Brooklyn by the Giants last year, came back to plague Billy Terry again today by hurling the Dodgers to a 7-to-1 victory over his old mates.

FITZSIMMONS.

Fitz, who went to the Dodgers along with a $20,000 bundle of cash in exchange for Tom Baker, allowed nine hits as he chalked up his second straight win over the Giants and his tenth victory of the season. The only run off him came on Johnny McCarthy's homer in the third.

His mates landed on Dick Coffman for 13 hits, finally belting him out with a four-run blast in the seventh. Rookie Horace Hockett, fresh up from Dayton, collected four of these blows, Dolph Camilli had three and drove in three runs.

Man of the Month

By Arch McDonald

Each day, Arch McDonald distributes 10 points among the Nats whose play was most helpful to the Washington Club. At the end of each month The Washington Post will award to the leading player a gift in token of the honor of being The Post-Wheaties "Man of the Month."

Dutch Leonard moves into the first division in the race for the Man of the Month honors following the distribution of points based on yesterday's play by the Nats. The points were awarded as follows:

To Leonard, five points, because he pitched a clever game in holding the Yankees to five hits despite his defeat, and because he contributed two singles to the Nats' attack.

To Zeke Bonura, four points, because he made three of the Nats' eight hits.

To Taft Wright, one point, because he opened the game for the Nats with a single and made two sparkling catches in the outfield.

Baugh Picks Redskins To Defeat Eagles

By "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh,

Forward Passing Champion, National Football League.

Within 36 hours we'll have a pretty fair line on the set-up this season in the National Professional Football League. Tomorrow eight clubs will swing into action in four games, and everybody will be much wiser.

SAMMY BAUGH.

Chicago Bears vs. Chicago Cardinals at Chicago.

Cleveland vs. Green Bay at Green Bay.

New York at Pittsburgh.

Redskins at Philadelphia.

New York to beat Pittsburgh.

Redskins to beat Philadelphia.

You'll notice I haven't put down any scores in my predictions. That's because I learned long ago that trying to pick a score in a football game is silly. Too many things can happen in a football game.

I'm picking the Bears to beat the Cardinals because I'm stringing along with the power. The Cardinals are supposed to be an improved football team with all their new talent, but we know that the Bears are a great club, even without Bronk Nagurski.

They have one of the smartest quarterbacks in the league in Masterson and one of the finest line plungers in Jack Manders. The Bears are bolstered this year, too, by Bert Johnson. I'll never understand how Brooklyn let Johnson get away last year. From what I saw of him, he was one of the top backs in the league.

If the Cardinals win, I think they'll win with passes. They have come up this year with Jack Robbins and Dwight Sloan, of Arkansas. I saw plenty of those two in the Southwest Conference and with Gaynell Tinsley, one of the great pass-catching ends of the league, going down the line for them, they will be dangerous. But I'm standing by my choice of the Bears.

The other game in the West brings together the Packers and Cleveland, and again I'm stringing with what I think is the power. The Packers will have that and experience on the young Cleveland team, and they'll have also Cecil Isbell, who we saw too much of at Chicago last week. And they'll have Clarke Hinkle to give that Cleveland line a headache.

Later in the season, perhaps, the Rams might beat Green Bay, but I doubt if they can do the job in the opening game. Cleveland will have a backfield that I think in time will rank with the best in the league. Johnny Drake and Ed Goddard made their mark last year, but Corby Davis and Jim McDonald are still untried in pro football, despite their advance notices.

The Pirates appear strictly up against it in meeting the New York Giants, because this will be the second game in three days for the Pittsburgh club, which opened its season last night against the Detroit Lions. Because of that game with the Lions, the Pirates may not be prepared for the Giants. Most all of their training season must have been directed for the opener.

The Giants already have two tough games under their belts and that will help. The Giants' backfield ought to be more of a threat this season with Nello Falaschi, of Santa Clara, in there helping Tuffy Leemans to bear the brunt of the attack. And in Ed Danowski they'll carry a powerful forward-passing threat.

Pittsburgh was coming strong at the end of last season, and with Whizzer White in there they loom as one of the serious threats in the league. White will have plenty of nice company in that backfield, with Bull Karcis, Bill Davidson and Tuffy Thompson available, but the chances are that they took a battering against the Lions. I'll still have to take the Giants.

That brings us down to the Redskins and the Philadelphia Eagles, and any kind of a winning score for the Redskins will suit me. The Eagles were plenty tough enough for us last year, beating us once and losing to us once by three points, and with Dick Riffle to help Dave Smukler on the attack they shape up as even tougher.

Besides, the Redskins aren't in the best of shape. That isn't any bear story, either. We'll go into that game without Riley Smith, and there are a half dozen other Redskins who won't be at their best. But I honestly think we figure to beat the Eagles. I'm hoping I've picked the right team in this one at least.

Old Princeton Star Dies at Denver

Denver, Sept. 9 (AP).—Homer D. Boughner, 89, who played for Princeton in the first intercollegiate football game ever held in this country, died last night of pneumonia. He had been active in good health until two weeks ago.

Boughner played a position then termed "Captain of the enemy's goal"—similar to the present day fullback—in the first grid encounter with Rutgers November 6, 1869.

After graduation from Princeton, he was associated with his father in a mercantile business at Oxford, W. Va. He came to Denver in 1908.

Indians Bow To Tigers

Hank Greenberg Slaps 47th Homer to Pace Detroit to Victory.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 9.—Hank Greenberg's forty-seventh home run paced Detroit's Tigers to an 11-5 victory over Cleveland today, keeping the Indians in a second-place tie with Boston's Red Sox.

GREENBERG.

Four Cleveland errors helped the Tigers and sped the retirement of Willis Hudlin. Ken Jungels replaced Hudlin, and immediately gave Greenberg a home-run pitch. Thereafter Jungles kept the situation—or what was left of it—under control.

It was Tommy Bridges' eleventh victory of the season against eight defeats.

Manager Oscar Vitt, of the Indians, inserted two rookies into the line-up in the seventh—Second Baseman Ray Mack (nee McKovsky), up from Fargo-Moorhead of the Northern League, and Third Baseman Louis Boudreau, up from Cedar Rapids of the Three-Eye loop.

Bump Hadley Is Tight; Griffs Fill Bases in 2d, Fail to Score; Lou Gehrig Plays in 2,100th Straight.

By Shirley Povich.

Dutch Leonard pitched one of his better ball games yesterday—a five-hit job against the New York Yankees—but he was strictly on his own and with the Nats scoring no runs whatsoever they lost the ball game, 2 to 0.

HADLEY.

1935 because he was not a very good pitcher, was a very good pitcher yesterday. Hadley gave up eight hits, but he was merely stirring up a succession of false hopes for the Nats and the 16,000 ladies' day fans.

The gentleman who appropriated the day's honors was Iron Horse Lou Gehrig, who celebrated his 2,100th consecutive game in a Yankee uniform with a private batting splurge that carried him above a .300 average for the first time this season.

Gehrig Annoys Leonard

Gehrig was annoying Leonard all afternoon, making four of the five Yankee hits. Tom Henrich swatted a single into rightfield in the first inning, and every Yankee hit thereafter was delivered exclusively by Mr. Gehrig, who singled in the second, fourth, seventh and ninth innings.

It was Gehrig who inserted the important hit in the seventh inning when the Yankees, irked by the 0-0 tie, went out and collected the only two runs of the ball game.

Leonard was no drawback to the Yankees in that seventh inning. He surrounded Gehrig's hit with two bases on balls and found himself knee deep in trouble what with bases full of Yankees and none out.

George Selkirk fetched the first run home with a towering fly to West, that was long enough not only to score Di Maggio from third but to advance Gehrig and Dickey who were also on base. Leonard filled the bases again by purposely walking Gordon, but Hadley brought DiMaggio home with a fly to Taft Wright.

Further trouble was averted in that inning when Gordon, overambitious, attempted to take second on Wright's throw to the plate despite the fact that Dickey was on that bag. The upshot was that Dickey was forced off and run down for the third out.

Until that seventh inning, Leonard was pitching three-hit ball and doing very nicely. He held Joe Di Maggio hitless for the first time in 18 games.

The Nats, as we were saying, succeeded only in raising a mess of false hopes along the way. In the first inning, after Wright had launched the inning with a single to right, Travis hit into a double play. And in the second, after Bonura had opened the inning with a hit, Leonard left three pals stranded with a puny grounder in front of the plate.

Their finest scoring chance was muffed in the fifth. The cheers that greeted Sammy West's double to right died in the throats of the fans a moment later when he was picked off second by Bill Dickey's snap throw for the first out of the inning.

In the sixth, after Bonura and Simmons singled, Bluege left 'em holding the bags with a short fly to Selkirk. The seventh produced only a single by Leonard with two out. Red Rolfe averted trouble for Hadley in the eighth by a diving play on Lewis' scorcher, and in the ninth, if a Nat reached base he got there by stealing first.

Untermyer Horses Win; 81 Women in Post's Tournament

Down in Front

By Richards Vidmer

I've seen my share of the sights in Florida and visited most of the haunts in Havana, but I never went to a jai alai game. They had to bring it to me.

VIDMER.

Mike Jacobs imported the old Spanish custom from the tropical lands and put it in the Hippodrome the other night, and after one glimpse of the game I was forced to the admission that he's got something there.

Not that I am willing, after one brief view of the sport to predict that it will sweep the country—or even the city—by storm, but the first night audience certainly showed every indication of approval and enthusiasm. However, the first night audience probably wasn't composed of many novice spectators like myself. They seemed to know what it was all about. At least they applauded vociferously and, if the truth must be told, hissed audibly on occasion.

Personally, I couldn't see the cause for the hisses. It seemed only natural that the players should miss the ball once in a while, and the wonder was that they were able to catch it in their wicker scoops (I think they are called cestas) at all. But the audience in evening dress and frail frocks had the look of frequent visitors to such play places as Miami and Havana and they probably knew what it was all about.

As a matter of fact, it isn't a difficult game to pick up. That is, from a spectator's point of view. It seemed utterly impossible to pick up as a competitor, however, and I think for the present at least I'll stick to golf and badminton and bridge and such forms of less violent exercise.

Better Than Some

Still, there's a fascination to watching the Spanish, Cuban, Mexican and South American experts play it, for it combines speed, stamina and timing to a high degree. And, as I said, it's quite simple for even a novice to understand the scoring.

It may not attract such crowds as it did on the opening night, for there were more than 1,000 prospective customers turned away from the doors of the Hippodrome and probably no one was more surprised than Uncle Mike Jacobs himself, unless it was the crowd which found that the house was sold out. But if enough people can be attracted to the games, which are to be played every night, a large enough group of jai alai fans should be developed in a few months to fill the Hipp frequently enough to support the sport and make the venture financially profitable.

Without attempting to pose as an expert after one view of the game, I can think of a lot of contests I'd rather stay away from. Girls' softball games, for one, and midget automobile races for another, and then of course there's wrestling. The only fault I had to find with the introductory matches was that they were too close. Almost too close to be true. However, maybe I'm getting unduly skeptical in my advancing years. Or maybe it's just a bad cold that makes me so petulant.

Anyway, I'm going back for more. The time probably will come when I can take my jai alai or leave it alone, but at least for the present I prefer to take it.

High Hopes

There was another wave of enthusiasm apparent in our town Thursday. It was caused by the fact that the Giants had won a ball game and the league leading Pirates had lost one. This combination seemed to revive an optimistic hope that there still might be a nickel World's Series this fall. However, without wishing to appear pessimistic, I'm afraid these hi-- hopes are rather hollow.

"Well, look," commanded a wild-eyed Giant fan, pointing an excited finger at the club standings before the teams went to bat yesterday afternoon. "Look, we're only five games behind! That isn't too much to make up. And three of the games are with the Pirates. If the Giants take all three, they'll need to gain only two.

There was no denying the mathematical correctness of that statement, still somehow I could not work up an equal amount of enthusiasm.

"We have 23 games to play," the Giant fan continued, "and most of them are against the second division clubs—six with Boston, five with Brooklyn and two each with the Cardinals and the Phils. That leaves only two against the Cubs and three against the Reds besides the three with the Pirates. On the other hand the Pirates will be playing 13 games against the main contenders. They have seven with the Reds alone. That's going to be tough going, especially as they play only three of their remaining 25 games at home."

This argument did make it appear as though the road ahead were much smoother for the Giants than for the Pirates. After all, maybe the fellow wasn't completely crazy after all. Still——

Warrenton $200 Stake To Cinelli

By the Associated Press.

Warrenton, Va., Sept. 9.—Entries of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Untermyer, Greenwich, Conn., won six classes in the opening events of the thirty-ninth annual Warrenton Horse Show today.

Giants Blank Orioles in 2 Games

By the Associated Press.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 9.—Jersey City's Giants picked on the cellar dwelling Baltimore Orioles tonight, scoring a double shutout victory, 1 to 0 and 4 to 0.

Young Johnny Hubbell, brother of the New York Giants' Carl, bested Ben Cantwell in the opener, allowing the Orioles but three hits to chalk up his seventh victory of the season against four defeats. Cantwell, who went the distance for the Orioles, was touched for eight hits and walked three, one of his passes forcing in the winning run in the ninth inning.

The second game, the veteran Rollie Stiles proved too much for the Baltimore crew, limiting the birds to four hits to chalk up his fourteenth triumph of the season. It was also Stiles' fifth shutout victory of the campaign.

Budge, Bromwich, Marble Easy Forest Hills Winners

Champion Fails to Draw Deep Breath, Losing Only One Game; Australian Youth Coasts; Gil Hunt, Capital Boy, Wins in Five Sets; Wood Advances.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 9, (U.P.)—The four top-ranking stars, who performed before a crowd of 8,000 today in the men's and women's national singles tennis championships, set such glittering examples to the rest of the field that the entry was reduced to 32 survivors in each division without a single major disaster, only one minor accident and a few hair-breadth escapes.

The top-rankers were Don Budge and John Bromwich, who stand at No. 1 on the U. S. and foreign men's seeded lists; Alice Marble of Los Angeles, No. 2 on the domestic women's list, and Jadwiga (Ja-Ja) Jedrzejowska of Poland, No. 1 in the strong group of feminine invaders.

Among them this high-powered quartet lost seven games in ten sets. Budge beat 17-year-old Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles, 6—0, 6—0, 6—1. Bromwich eliminated Rangy Gus Ganzemuller of Seacliff, Mass., 6—1, 6—0, 6—4; Miss Marble, champion in 1936 and No. 1 in national ranking, beat Mrs. Catherine Sample of Miami, Fla., 6—1, 6—0, and "Ja-Ja" runner-up a year ago to Anita Lizana of Chile, dusted off Elizabeth Blackman of Detroit, 6—0, 6—3.

Budge, playing his opening match after drawing a first-round bye, didn't draw a deep breath and didn't come into the forecourt more than half a dozen times in whipping the ears off Van Horn, a promising West Coast junior, who had been expected to make a better showing. Welby never got over the idea he was playing the Australian, French and Wimbledon, champion and defender of the United States crown.

Ganzenmuller, Mrs. Sample and Miss Blackman also were sadly outclassed. Ganzenmuller didn't even give Bromwich a mild workout; Mrs. Sample showed flurries, but no more, against Miss Marble, and Miss Blackman was completely bewildered by the booming forehand placements that came bouncing all around and at her from Ja-Ja's racquet.

The hard-fought matches almost all were fought out on field courts, before a few hundred spectators at the most. It was one of those gatherings which saw Sidney Wood, the blond New York court craftsman, whose comeback earned him a No. 4 seeding, return from the brink of elimination to edge out the veteran J. Gilbert Hall, 9—7, 4—6, 1—6, 6—4, 6—4. On an adjoining court Charles Edgar Hare, big English southpaw, seeded eighth, came out on top in the day's marathon with the Australian Davis Cup spare, Leonard Schwartz, at 6—4, 7—5, 10—12, 5—7, 10—8.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Summaries of today's matches in the men's and women's national singles tennis championships:

William Gillespie, Atlanta, Ga., defeated William Robertson, San Marino, Calif., 6—2, 6—3, 6—0, 2—6, 6—3.

Alexandria Plans Title Softball

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Sept. 9.—A post-season playoff series between champions of two local softball leagues will be held here the latter part of this month with the city independent title at stake, according to plans being mapped out by officials of the two circuits. Herbert Knight is president of the 12-team Alexandria Softball League, while Jimmy Lyles heads the 6-team Independent League.

Participants in the title series can't be determined, however, until intra-league playoffs are conducted in both loops. Columbia Firemen won the first half championship in the Alexandria loop, and must meet the second-half winners unless they repeat, while Dr. Pepper and the Del Ray A. C. will meet next week in a three-game series for the Independent crown. The Peppermen finished out the regular schedule in first place, but must meet the second-place Del Rayans for clear claim to the title.

Alexandria Celtics will oppose the strong Warsaw A. C. for the fourth time tomorrow afternoon, when they invade Warsaw for one of two contests carded for this week-end. On Sunday the local semipros will perform at home, against a strong D. C. or Maryland nine.

The Celts have come away on the long end of the score in all three previous games with the Warsaw outfit, winning by scores of 2-1, 5-2 and 5-0. They are facing tougher sledding in the fourth tilt, however, as the Tidewater nine has just signed "Rosie" Waugh, William & Mary College sensation of last season, and he will hurl against the locals tomorrow.

Jimmy Titcomb, husky left-hander, who has won his only start for the Celtics since returning from a successful season in the Florida State League, will hurl for the Alexandrians.

George Washington High School athletic officials have arranged to have all home games played at night during the coming season, Head Coach Albert Doran said today. The first floodlight tilt will be staged the evening of September 23, when the Presidents engage Fredericksburg High School.

Frank (Jeff) Williams has been elected president of the Knights of Columbus bowling league, which will begin play when the local Health Center Alleys open the latter part of this month. Six teams will take part in the season's activities.

In addition to the intra-league matches, the Knights are planning to engage in a series of inter-city tilts with Knights of Columbus teams from Baltimore, Richmond and Washington.

Tony Dupre Arrives Here; Warms Up

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Tony Dupre, midget mauler from Manchester whose 10-round argument with Joey Archibald Monday night at Griffith Stadium threatens to pull the largest audience of the outdoor season through the turnstiles, arrived in town early yesterday morning in time for breakfast and a workout.

DUPRE.

Later in the day his manager, Al LeFevbre, set foot on District soil and the pair promptly concurred in the opinion that Mr. Archibald is going to be mussed up considerably, and probably flattened, if he dares show his smiling countenance at ringside Monday.

There seems to be a slight misunderstanding about Tony's itinerary, for on Thursday Machmaker Goldie Ahearn passed out word that he had stopped over in New York en route to Washington, and all but annihiliated Lou Feldman in a four-round workout. Yesterday LeFevbre complained of Tony's rash act of motoring all night from Manchester while LeFevbre traveled in the comparative luxury of a Pullman.

Dupre, at any rate, appeared ready for Archibald and as many of his relatives as he cares to bring along. He tore into the big bag savagely, tattooed the light bag for two more, and even boxed two with a pink-skinned trainer tagged "Happy" Harlan. But it was impossible to gather much evidence on Tony's condition from the workout because of Harlan's inability to keep his feet.

Everytime Dupre waved his left Harlan developed an acute case of dizziness and toppled to the canvas. Even when Tony patted him behind the ear with a light right he insisted on shaking his head like a St. Bernard coming out of water. Each time, however, he made a remarkably rapid recovery and managed to complete the two rounds. Harlan almost miscued once, starting to shake his head and sag toward the canvas when he suddenly discovered that Dupre was merely pulling up his trunks.

Dupre will workout again this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will just loosen up tomorrow. No word has been received from Archibald since Thursday when his last message was to "get that bum ready and have a cab waiting for me, because I want to make the 10:45 train for Jersey City.

Meanwhile the supporting card has been completed and reads as follows: Bucky Taylor vs. Govan Rhodes, six rounds; Joe Perry vs. Bill Temes, six rounds; Toby Scroggins vs. Brooks Bowen, four rounds; and Johnny Sullivan vs. Eddie Saugsted, six rounds.

Rexon's Viking Wins

Melita, Man., Sept. 8 (A.P.).—The Manitoba field dog championship today was won by Rexon's Viking, owned by A. L. Huber, of San Antonio, Tex., as the fifty-second annual trials were completed. Lester's Enjoy Wahoo, owned by Dr. B. S. Lester, of Birmingham, Ala., placed second. Both dogs are pointers.

Betty Meckley Tops Field Seeking Marion Brown's Title

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

The sixth annual Washington Post Match Play Tournament, initial event on the fall schedule of the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association, will get underway Monday over the Manor Country Club course with a field of 81 seeking the title relinquished by Marion Brown. Pairings and starting times were released yesterday by Mrs. Robert A. Lacey, tournament chairman of the association.

The field will play in twosomes, with one exception, starting from the first and tenth tees at 9 a. m. The 32 low net scores on Monday will qualify for the championship flight that swings into match play on Tuesday and continues through the finals next Saturday, September 17.

The low gross scorer in the qualifying rounds will receive a prize donated by The Post, while the winner will receive a huge trophy for permanent possession, in addition to her name on The Washington Post trophy, that will be placed at the new champion's club for a year.

Meckley Tops Field

The field is topped by the entry of the Middle Atlantic champion and last year's medalist, Mrs. Betty Meckley, of Indian Spring. Mrs. Meckley will play with Mrs. Jack Scott, the former Colorado State champion.

Mrs. Bishop Hill and Mrs. Landra Platt, Chevy Chase, who were heavy point scorers in the first team matches, will pair, while another prominent duo is Mrs. L. G. Pray, Manor, and Mrs. Walter Stokes, Indian Spring, both with fine local tournament records.

Mrs. Leo Walper, winner of the consolation last year at Columbia; Mrs. E. M. Amick, '37 finalist from Columbia; Mrs. George Hussey, semi-finalist from Army and Navy, and three club champions, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. A. A. McEntee, Kenwood, and Mrs. J. O. Rhyne, Congressional, are also entered.

A new champion will be crowned as Miss Brown defending champion, and the four former winners, Mrs. Roland MacKenzie, Louise Claytor, Elizabeth Houghton and Gloria Rodgers will not play.

Due to the tournament's conflict with the National, Mrs. Myron Davy and Helen Dettweiler, Maryland State champion, will be unable to play, in addition to Marion Brown.

Handicap Limit

The handicap limit in the event is 18, and in the match-play rounds seven-eighth of the difference will be awarded. Losers in the first day of match play will drop into the consolation bracket.

Prominent entries included Mrs. Roy C. Miller, vice president of the Women's D. C. Association; Mrs. N. J. Waldron, team chairman; Mrs. Florence Godfrey, Beaver Dam; Mrs. F. R. Keefer, donor of the Keefer Cup, from Chevy Chase; Mrs. C. P. Medley, handicap chairman; Mrs. Charlotte Stern, Indian Spring; Mrs. Gene Larkin, wife of the Woodmont professional; Mrs. H. P. Brown, Manor, mother of the 1937 champion, and the last two-some off the tenth tee, Miss Jerry Weible, Army and Navy, and blond Barbara Simmons, of the host club.

Bernice Baker and Ann Reh, of Indian Spring, and Mrs. Mary Hamilton, Argyle, and Mrs. Moses, Army and Navy, will open the tournament, playing off the first and tenth tees, respectively. The only three-some in the event is composed of Mrs. F. X. Gygas, Army and Navy; Mrs. J. W. Ludewig, also of the service club, and Mrs. J. W. Beller, Chevy Chase.

Pairings and starting times:

Former Eli Grid Star Gets Virginia Post

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—John N. Kilcullen, former Yale all-around star athlete, will join the football coaching staff of the University of Virginia here next Wednesday when the Cavaliers return from their training camp at the Norfolk Naval Base.

Morton Pritchett, director of athletics, announced the addition of Kilcullen, who will serve under Head Coach Frank Murray and also work with Art Guepe, New Virginia backfield coach, and Edward R. (Butch) Slaughter, veteran line coach.

Lewis-Adamick Bout Site Is Changed

Philadelphia, Sept. 9, (A.P.).—The ten-round bout scheduled between John Henry Lewis and Jimmy Adamick at the Municipal Stadium next Monday night, has been transferred to Convention Hall on Thursday night.

Herman Taylor, promoter of the bout, said that the prospects of cold weather caused him to make the change.

Pepsi-Cola in Action

Seeking revenge for an 11-5 defeat last week, the Young Democrats of Southern Maryland will invade the Beltsville field to battle the Pepsi-Cola nine at 3 o'clock.

Second Richest Steeplechase Offers Prize of $3,000 to Winner.

By the Associated Press.

Fair Hill, Md., Sept. 9.—Trainers of 18 of the country's finest steeplechase horses stabled their charges today and looked over the jumps barring the 3-mile course of the Foxcatcher Grand National Cup race tomorrow.

The race, second richest stiplechase in the country, wil have prize of $3,000 for the horse which leads over the 19 stiff jumps. Richest of the brush barriers is 6 feet 8 inches the average height is 6 6feet. Further, some are situated at turns, or with take-offs from down hill, so that horses have difficulty approaching them at speed.

The winner of the classic, inaugurated in 1934, is automatically eligible for the Grand National in England. In addition to the purse, he receives a $200 piece of plate. So difficult is the course that a prize is provided for every horse to finish. The total values of the race ($6,700) is next to the $10,000 Grand National at Belmont Park in value.

Two of the entries, Saluda and Rioter, will show Thomas Hitchcock's green silks for the first time at a hunt meeting outside South Carolina.

Other entries are Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's National Anthem; Ostend and Seafarin' Dan, with a record of spring hunt races; Argonaut, Flying Hermes, Ad Lib, Our Manager, Melleray Pass, Big Ma Blackcock, Birmingham, Bell Man, Baffler, El Dorodor, Well Stepped and Eastern Shore.

Rivals Duel From Start To Finish

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Timonium Fair Grounds, Md., Sept. 9.—A nose was all that separated Cats Cradle, owned by Capt. Ewart Johnston, of Virginia, and Mrs. T. H. Andrews' Castabout, favorite, when they hit the pay-off line in the Worthington Farms Purse, four-and-one-half furlong feature, with the first named getting the verdict.

It was a thrilling race from start to finish. They ran heads apart with first Cats Cradle and then Castabout in the lead. In the battle through the homestretch Apprentice D. West kept his whip flying on Cats Cradle's flanks, while Leon Garrett elected to hand ride Castabout. The whipping enabled Cats Cradle to hang on long enough to nail the purse and pay $10.10. W. H. Royle's Lady Buck was third.

Gimpey Takes Opener

The smallest crowd of the meeting, less than 4,000, saw E. E. Carver's Gimpey take the day's 4½-furlong opener. The gelding came from behind the fast early pace of W. Ellis Johnson's Howellville to win by a half length. He paid $6.40.

John Bosley's Edgemont became the first double steeplechase winner of the meeting, when he raced two miles over 16 fences in 3:55 4-5, the fastest of the meeting, to land the Stoneleigh Steeplechase. In addition to paying $6.40, he enabled those fans coupling him with Gimpey in the daily double to collect $18.30.

Vanned over from Havre de Grace, H. D. Mosteller's James Pal made a joke of the six and one-half furlongs in the third. The 3-year-old bay gelded son of Jamestown and Justa Pal took command at the "off bell" to win by 12 lengths. He paid $4.00.

Reigh Tetrarch Wins

After finishing second in his last two outings, Mrs. T. H. Andrews' Reigh Tetrarch, favorite, found a field he could whip in six and one-half furlongs of the fourth. He waited behind the pace for five-eighths, moved to the front to win by a length. He paid $5.40.

Mrs. E. Matthews' Beacon Queen stunned the fans by winning the 6½ furlongs of the sixth. She came from well back of the early pace to win her first race in eight starts. She paid $25.80.

Little Drift Wins But Is Disqualified

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP).—Little Drift, extreme outsider in a field of five, raced across the finish line first today in the Whiskbroom Purse at Hawthorne, but drifted too far from racing etiquette en route and Easy Sailing was declared the winner. Xenomay was second and Imperial Scout third.

Little Drift was disqualified for bearing down in the stretch and interfering with Easy Sailing, which was carried wide by Little Drift after making its bid for the lead. Jockey Robert Conley, because of his efforts to keep Little Drift straight, was not set down.

Easy Sailing, ridden by L. Sislere, paid $9. The mile was run over a muddy track in 1:43 1-5.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Sept. 9 (AP).—(U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Activity was very restricted in the Boston wool market today. The little trading going on consisted mostly of small purchases to piece out stocks of wool on hand to cover old orders. New business in goods requiring extensive buying of raw wool was lacking. The limited requirements for wool were being filled mostly by odd lots that could be bought at prices under the general level of quotations. Holders of similar amounts of grease choice domestic wools were not inclined to make any concessions in asking prices on the bulk of their supplies.

Cotton Drops Below 8 Cents

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—Cotton developed renewed easiness today under liquidation and southern selling and closed at net losses of 11 to 14 points. December eased from 8.10 to finish at a low of 7.99.

The market opened 1 to 4 points lower owing to disappointing Liverpool cables and continued nervousness over developments in Europe. Easiness of the stock market attracted selling and October liquidation increased. All deliveries went below 8 cents for the first time on the curent movement and into new low ground. Although a little more trade covering appeared at this basis, buying otherwise was restricted. Prices were easily influenced by small orders.

Southern Plans to Buy Four Diesel Trains

The Southern Railroad said yesterday that if the Interstate Commerce Commission approves the sale of securities to finance the cost, it will buy four steel Diesel-electric passenger trains. Another road of the Southern system, it added, tentatively had decided to buy two additional trains.

Each train would consist of an 80-foot steel Diesel-electric combined mail, baggage and power car and a 63-foot 10-inch steel passenger coach, air conditioned. The engines would be supplied by Fairbanks-Morse & Co. and the passenger coaches by the St. Louis Car Co.

War-Scared Gold Flood 2-Year Peak

By the Associated Press.

The flood of gold from Europe reached a two-year high of $87,769,152 in the week ended September 2. The Commerce Department said yesterday that this week's imports were the largest since October 9, 1936, and about $30,000,000 larger than any week this year.

The bulk of the gold came from England, which shipped $68,683,500 to the United States. Other shipments included $3,212,732 from Belgium, $4,720,412 from France, $3,840,000 from Sweden and $5,873,946 from Japan.

Experts explained that the huge shipments of gold to this country were due to the stampede of wealthy foreigners to send funds to this country for safekeeping. The consequent rush to buy dollars in the foreign exchange market required large transfers of gold to pay for the dollars.

Treasury Silent

The Treasury, however, took no steps to offset the credit inflationary potentiality of large gold imports as it did all of last year. Secretary Morgenthau said yesterday that no action was then contemplated.

Until the gold sterilization program was abandoned in April, the Treasury neutralized the growth of foreign bank deposits resulting from gold movements by borrowing extra money to pay for the metal. The Treasury's gold hoard of $13,237,078,374 already is more than half of the world supply.

$100,000,000 Bills Offered by Treasury

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that tenders are invited for Treasury bills to the amount of $100,000,000, or thereabouts. They will be 91-day bills and will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders.

Tenders will be received at the Federal Reserve banks or branches up to 2 p. m. on Monday. Tenders will not be received at the Treasury Department.

New York, Sept. 9.—The dread possibility of a major war in Europe hung as a pall over financial markets in all centers of the world today. Stocks in Wall Street were depressed sharply during a short period of the day's trading and they could not develop any convincing recovery later. The United States Government bond list was soft and cotton broke 11 to 14 points to new lows for the current movement, carrying active positions to below the 8-cent level. In the foreign exchange market the dollar continued to gain against foreign currencies as funds were transferred into gold or dollars.

The day's most notable reflection of the increased tension abroad, as far as markets were concerned, was in grain trading, where wheat scored maximum upturns of 2 cents a bushel in the most spirited rise of recent weeks. Regarded as one of the essential munitions of war, the customary procedure is for it to advance in price on threats of war irrespective of the behavior of other markets. But recently this commodity showed more of an inclination to follow securities. Such was not the case yesterday. While stocks and bonds were sinking, wheat reflected the world-wide fear of a conflict. In Liverpool the downward trend of seven days was reversed and in Chicago futures closed up 1⅛ to 1¾ cents.

Nervousness in the foreign exchange market was more noticeable than recently, both here and in London. Sterling broke a full cent to a new low since April 27, 1935 of $4.81 15-16. In the London open gold market $5,800,000 of the metal was purchased for shipment here and an additional $400,000 was bought in Holland.

Selling Spurs Trading

In the stock market there was a sharp wave of selling in the second hour at which time the volume of business increased. Thereafter the list was dull and irregular and losses among speculative leaders of 1 to more than 3 points were maintained to the close. The composite average recorded a net decline of 0.86 point, while the volume for the day was 702,990 shares. Motors, rails, steels, metals and manufacturing issues were prominent on the downside.

The motor division and its accessories were most noticeable on the tape, the four most active stocks being General Motors, Chrysler, United States Rubber and Electric Autolite, each of which sustained a loss of more than a point. A decrease in automobile production for the current week was reported, but this was due to the holiday Monday rather than to an interruption in operations. Ward's reported that four major companies have 1939 cars on final assembly lines.

United States Steel and Bethlehem were off 1¼ and 1⅛ points, respectively, while in the building division, Johns Manville dropped 1¼, while American Radiator and National Gypsum were down fractions. Montgomery Ward was the most active of the store issues, closing off 1¼. Rails were unsettled with the balance of the list and in addition they are faced with the possibility of labor trouble connected with their notice to the unions of a 15 per cent wage reduction.

Standard of New Jersey and Texas were off more than a point, while losses of other leaders included Smelting, 2; Anaconda, 1⅛; duPont, 2¾; Harvester, 1½; Loew's, 1⅛; Sears Roebuck, 1½, and Westinghouse, 3½.

Treasury Bonds Lower

Fresh declines developed today in United States Treasury securities, and corporate bonds also moved lower in the listed market. The reports from central Europe kept buyers in a cautious frame of mind, and even small offerings sufficed to unsettle the price level. Treasury issues fell despite the rapid disposition of the $700,000,000 of new obligations. Foreign dollar bonds moved irregularly lower. Trading in all bonds totaled $5,230,000.

The long term Treasury issues receded 1/32 to 8/32 point in a dull market. Whatever buying interest appeared was directed rather to purchases of "rights" to the new bonds and notes than to outstanding issues. Guaranteed obligations of the farm and home corporations were soft. Small fractional losses were common among best rated utility, and industrial bonds. The well regarded rails showed greater weakness, losses running to more than a point in some instances.

Speculative railroad bonds resumed their slow downward drift, and among the cheaper issues levels are approaching the lows of the year. Among the better priced interest paying rails the recessions ranged from fractions to more than a point. Local traction bonds proved a weak spot, while holding company securities were neglected. Brooklyn Gas bonds gained on the report that a merger with Consolidated Edison may prove feasible. Communications bonds and other groups were dull.

Czech bonds fell moderately on a few transactions, with aloofness the rule in this market save for the sinking fund operations. Italian bonds regained their stability, but not much of the loss recorded the previous day. German bonds remained unaffected, owing to their low prices. Australians were off a point or more, but Canadians were not much affected. Latin-American default bonds were quiet and mostly lower.

Lehigh Coal Names White President

New Head Will Retire as Partner in New York Stock Exchange Firm of Jackson & Curtis.

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—The board of managers of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co. at a meeting held here yesterday elected Robert V. White, of New York City, as president of the company. He will succeed Samuel D. Warriner, who has been acting as president pro tem, since the resignation of Joseph H. Nuelle, who resigned as president, effective May 15, to become president of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad.

In assuming his new position, Mr. White will retire as a partner of Jackson & Curtis, investment banking house and members of the New York Stock Exchange. He is also expected to relinquish his post as chairman of the stock list committee of the New York Stock Exchange and as a governor of the exchange, where he is now serving his third term. He was one of the few governors re-elected when the reorganization of the exchange took place. Mr. White has been a member of the board of managers and of the executive committee of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co. since last March.

Company Holdings

The chief holdings of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co. are its ownership of the Lehigh & Susquehanna Railroad, extending from Phillipsburg, N. J., to Scranton, Pa., which is leased practically in perpetuity to the Central Railroad Co. of New Jersey and constitutes a large portion of that railroad's main line. The company also owns the stock of the Lehigh & New England Railroad, extending from Nesquehoning, Pa., to Campbell Hall, N. Y.; owns anthracite coal lands in the Lehigh and Schuylkill regions as well as two water companies in that territory and controls retail coal yards in New York City and New England. Among its other principal stockholdings are 700,000 shares of National Power & Light Co.

Mr. White is a director and member of the executive committee of the Kansas City Southern Railway Co. and American Potash & Chemical Co. Among his other directorships are Tri-Continental Corporation, Selected Industries, Inc., Capital Administration Co., Broad Street Investing Co. and Aztec Land & Cattle Co.

Before entering the investment banking business, Mr. White practiced law for several years with the firm of Cravath, Henderson & deGersdorff. He is a graduate of the Harvard Law School. While at Harvard he played halfback on Percy Haughton's football team which in 1908 scored a 4-to-0 victory over the Yale team captained by Ted Coy.

Mont. Ward Sales $1,000,000 a Day

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP).—Montgomery Ward & Co., today reported a substantial increase in sales during August. Volume totaled $32,848,752, an increase of 10.6 per cent, compared with August, last year. It was the first month this year that sales have exceeded those of last year. In July, 1938, sales totaled $29,075,336.

For the first seven months of the fiscal year sales totaled $223,442,490, a decrease of 4.31 per cent compared with the corresponding 1937 period.

New Financing

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—New financing offered publicly this week totaled $44,300,106, compared with $27,333,878 the preceding week and $8,223,000 in the 1937, a compilation by Poor's Publishing Co. showed today. Accounting for most of the total was $30,000,000 in Youngstown Sheet & Tube debentures.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP).—Although wholesale pork quotations continued to advance, reflecting improved consumer buying with cooler weather and the close of the vacation season, the hog market displayed no further recovery power today. Hogs sold about steady in a quiet week-end trade. Few steers with quality were on sale, but those available sold at an unchanged market. A few near-choice kinds got up to around 11.50, but nothing prime quotable above 13.00 was on hand. Vealers were firm. Fat lambs were weak to 15 cents lower.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture).—HOGS—Receipts, 8,000 including 3,500 direct; slow, about steady with Thursday's average; top, 9.30; good and choice 200-270 lbs., 9.14@9.30; 280-310 lbs., 8.80@9.10; 170-190 lbs., 8.85@9.15; 140-160 lbs., 8.00@8.75; good light packing sows, 7.50@7.90; medium-weights and heavies, 6.65@7.40.

CATTLE—Receipts, 1,500; calves, 500; steers scarce with quality mostly medium; sprinkling good and near-choice kinds selling, 9.50 up to 11.00 and better; best here around 11.50; common killers at 7.00 down to 8.00, and plain stockers at 6.50 down to 5.75 and below; very dull lower for week, but all good and choice steers and yearlings measurably higher than week ago and same true of fed heifers and cows; cow market today steady; cutters turning at 5.25 down to 4.00; choice heifers absent; plain grassy kinds down to 5.50; medium to good short-fed heifers, 8.50@9.25; bulls firm to shade higher at 4.75 down; few specialties, 6.90; vealers firm at 10.50@11.50.

SHEEP—Receipts, 16,000 including 5,000 direct; late Thursday spring lambs strong to 25 higher; Westerns, 8.25@8.65; natives, 8.50@8.75; top, 8.65; today's trade on spring lambs slow, weak to 15 lower; bulk Westerns, 8.60 down; top natives, 8.75; bulk natives around 8.50; medium to good yearlings, 6.00; sheep steady.

Gen. Electric Votes 20 Cents

New York, Sept 8 (AP).—Directors of the General Electric Co. declared today a quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share on the common stock, the same as was paid in July. It brought the payments this year to 70 cents a share. A year ago a dividend of 40 cents was ordered. The payment is due October 25 to stockholders of record September 23.

Celotex Stock Dividend

The Celotex Corporation, producer of structural insulation and acoustical materials, has declared a dividend of one share of common stock for each share of common stock outstanding, payable November 4 to stockholders of record October 24. The last dividend paid on the common was 40 cents on October 24, 1937. The principal reason given for the common stock dividend is to obtain a broader distribution of the stock to place the company in a more advantageous positions to raise funds at a later date for expansion purposes.

L. C. Smith & Corona

L. C. Smith & Corona Typewriters, Inc., today declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common, payable October 1 to stockholders of record September 20. The same amount was paid in July.

Koppers Co.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 9 (AP).—Directors of Koppers Co. today declared a dividend of 75 cents on the $6 preferred stock, payable October 1 to stockholders of record September 10. Previously the company paid regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 each.

Am. Tel. & Tel. Income

New York, Sept. 9 (AP). — The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. reported today net operating income for July totaled $715,147, compared with $1,259,799 in the comparable 1937 month. Gross income for the month declined to $8,123,666 from $8,512,283 last year.

Short Interest Lowest Since 1934

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange announced today the total short interest as of the close of business August 31 amounted to 729,470 shares, the smallest reported since December 31, 1934, when the figure was 714,234 shares. A month earlier total short interest was 833,663 shares, indicating traders covered short commitments to the extent of 104,183 shares in the month.

The compilation in individual stocks showed there was a short interest in United States Steel as of August 31, of 44,025 shares against 56,538 at the end of July and that in Chrysler amounted to 52,496 shares, compared with 62,864 in the preceding period. The two stocks are among the most active on the exchange.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 9.—There was a general marking down of stock prices today as traders closed out commitments over the week-end. British securities and foreign bonds were weak, and oils declined on continental selling. Textile issues were depressed by adverse news concerning the cotton industry and industrials were lower. Support was also lacking in tobacco, mining and rubber shares and transatlantic securities finished off a point or more.

Paris.—The bourse closed with an easier tone and rentes were down 15 to 120 centimes on the day. Suez Canal declined more than 200 francs. Royal Dutch lost 110 and Bank of France issue slipped off 90 francs.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures closed firm, 1¼d to 1¾d net higher. The tense European political situation, smaller Australian weekly shipments and a better milling demand were factors on the advance. Cotton futures eased under Bombay selling and hedging, and final quotations were down 1 to 2 points. The decreased American crop estimate was considered too small to relieve the unfavorable statistical situation.

Wheat Jumps Two Cents in Brisk Upturn

Heavy Export Buying in Canada Together With War Rumors, Basis of Rise.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 9. (AP).—In the most spirited upturn witnessed in many weeks, Chicago wheat prices scored 2 cents maximum gain today, and closed at nearly the day's top.

Lively export purchasing in Canada, estimated as totaling more than a million bushels served as a decided stimulus, together with renewal of alarming European war talk. Sudden steep jumps of Liverpool quotations gave emphasis to reports that the political crisis abroad had intensified.

The Liverpool market abruptly reversed its downward course of the last seven successive days, and although due ⅝@1¼ cents lower showed at times 1¾ cents overnight net advance which trade cables said was for the most part prompted by augmented ominous aspects of the European political outlook.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅛@1¾ higher compared with yesterday's finish, September 61¾@61⅞, December 63@63⅛; corn 1¼@1½ up, September 52⅛@52¼, December 50@50⅛; oats ¼@⅝ advanced; rye showing 1⅛@1½ cents bulge, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents lower.

Bank Deposits Are Nearing New Records

Gold Desterilization and Government's Deficit Financing Indicate Gains Will Continue.

New York, Sept. 9.—Bank deposits as of September 30 will probably be close to record highs, according to the Standard Statistics Co. today. Maintenance of these high figures for some time ahead is practically assured by continuation of the gold desterilization program and deficit financing on the part of the Government, coupled with the prospect that there will be no important withdrawal of gold from this country.

Security holdings of banks have been trending moderately upward throughout the year, and the average volume for the third quarter will be somewhat higher than the average for either the second quarter or the first quarter.

Earnings of banks for the third quarter are expected to approximate the low level indicated for the second quarter of 1938, as investments have been increased only slightly during the third quarter (despite a substantial increase in deposits) and the downward trend of loans was not reversed until the first week in August.

Bank Loans.

By the end of August, loans were back approximately to the total of June 30, which was about 7 per cent below that of March 31. Thus, considerable further improvement in the loan situation in the month of September will be necessary if the average loan volume for the third quarter is to be brought up to the level of the second quarter.

Continued improvement in business generally is expected to be accompanied by an increase in bank loans. How sharp this increase will be depends on many factors, including the character of the recovery and the degree of confidence which it inspires.

The lesson of the depression of the early 1930s will not be quickly forgotten, however, and the average banker may be rather slow to adopt whatever new ideas and new methods are made necessary by the New Deal. The longer term "instalment" or "serial" type of loan, for example, has not yet been generally accepted as desirable banking business, although some banks have entered the field on a large scale. In time, however, adjustments will be made, and as bank deposits are likely to continue at high levels for at least another year or two, the principal problem will probably be the safe increasing rather than any curtailment, of earning assets. In the meantime, institution of service charges, which have already become commonplace, is likely to make further progress.

...1 Futile Slide to Second

Tony Manero Takes Lead

By the Associated Press.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Dapper Tony Manero, erstwhile National Open titleholder, fired a par-shattering 68 to set the pace today in a sizzling opening round of the $4,000 Glens Falls Golf Open which saw regulation figures blasted nine times.

The Peabody, Mass., shotmaker's 4-under-par round gave him a 2-stroke lead over Three-time Winner Jimmy Hines, of Great Neck, Long Island, who had trouble with his putter; Canada's Bobby Alston, former Canadian P. G. A. champion, and lanky Joe Creavy, Lake George, N. Y., professional and eldest of the three golfing Creavy brothers.

Slammin' Sam Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., co-favorite with Hines to capture this tenth annual event, wound up with a 71 to tie with four others in fifth place after taking a 7 on the 470-yard sixteenth hole, where he thrice went out of bounds from the tee.

Bracketed with Snead, recent winner of the Chicago and Canadian Opens, were Jack Patroni, of Shawnee - on - Delaware, Pa., opening-round leader here last year; the smooth-stroking Frank Moore, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., Westchester Open king; Sal Dibuono, of Larchmont, N. Y., and Ed Oliver, of Wilmington, Del.

Seven linksmen were tied with 73s, five strokes behind the leading Manero, including Craig Wood, of Rumson, N. J.; Eddie Schultz, Troy, N. Y.; Gene Kunes, Itasca, Ill.; Stephen Warga, jr., Peekskill, N. Y.; Jimmy Farina, Schenectady, N. Y.; Charlie McAndrew, Manchester, N. H., and John Moyer, Paxinos, Pa.

The entire field will compete in a second 18-hole round tomorrow, with the 60 lowest scorers eligible for the final 36 holes on Sunday.

Williams Faces Kail

Co-medalists Orval Kail and F. L. Williams will meet in the first round of the Argyle Club championships, tomorrow. Tony Willmett, favorite, plays Ray Amsden while another initial round feature is the Linc Johnston-Ed Mifflin encounter.

Lou Harrison, defending champion, is no longer a member of the club, thus a new champion will be crowned.

Redskins Cut Squad to 30

Kahn, Campbell, Moore Sent to Hazleton in Eastern League.

By Jack Munhall.

Jay Turner, George Washington fullback, and Clem Stralka, Georgetown guard, joined several other Redskin rookies in a chorus of deep-seated sighs yesterday as the final cut of the squad passed without event to them.

But for Eddie Kahn, veteran guard, and Freshmen Leroy (Soup) Campbell and Bill Moore, Flaherty's latest move which reduces the roster to 30, or the league limit, was unfortunate. All three are to be sent to Hazelton, the "farm team" the Redskins have acquired in the Eastern League.

Kahn Named Coach.

Kahn, a heady player and a good offensive man last season alternating at regular guard positions with Les Olsson and Jim Karcher, will serve Hazelton as player-coach. One of his charges will be Johnny Spirida, first-year back whom the 'Skins pared some time ago. With Hazelton in the Eastern League are four other elevens — Binghamton, Wilkes-Barre, Scranton and Albany.

While misfortune was befalling three of their number yesterday, the other Redskins were hustled through a workout at Anacostia, new training camp base. With the champions' league debut against the pesky Philadelphia Eagles only two days removed, Flaherty especially stressed signals and the players spent the greater portion of their practice time in acquainting themselves with perfecting the important but innocuous-sounding numerals.

Juggles Backfield

At the close of the drill it was apparent that the Redskins "cripples"—Fullback Don Irwin, Halfback Ed Justice and Sammy Baugh—were little improved, though they have been under treatment since the squad arrived back from Dallas.

So Flaherty, with a bit of a grimace, was again forced to juggle his backfield which has not been intact for a game this season. First he announced that Baugh, and not Rink Bond, would start at quarterback. Max Krause will supplant Irwin at full, and George Hartmann and either Ernie Pinckert or Justice will be at halves. This is to be Hartmann's first test under big-league fire.

The Redskin office announces that today is the last day to obtain seasonal tickets to the home games and that ducats for the Eagles game in Philadelphia may be obtained at the Redskin office, 739 Ninth street northwest, until 11 a. m. today. A special train will carry fans direct to the stadium and return them here for $3.25.

Bob Burns Says—

I don't know of anything that pays dividends like preparedness. That's the reason professional men can charge the prices they do. They've had to take the time and money to prepare themselves for their careers.

Uncle Hod couldn't understand why the doctor had charged him ten dollars for treatin' his sprained back. The doctor says, "But don't forget that I had to paint it with iodine." Uncle Hod says, "Well, a professional painter only charged me $8.25 to paint my whole wood shed and he put on two coats!"

NOPE. CAN'T AFFORD IT CAN'T AFFORD TO HAVE THESE WALLS DONE OVER?
IT'S NOT THAT. DO THE WALLS OVER AND YOU'LL WANT TO HAVE THE FLOOR DONE OVER AND ONCE YOU GET THAT, YOU'LL WANT NEW CURTAINS AND A NEW RUG!
SO WE'LL BE ON THE SAFE SIDE AND LET THE CEILING ALONE

...THEN SHE HIRED THIS LITTLE GUY TO BOARD THIS CRAFT AT AN APPOINTED SPOT! HE AND HIS MEN WERE TO POSE AS SAILORS IN THE NAVY OF CHINA'S INVADER...
...WHILE SEEMING TO HOLD THE SHIP ON A TECHNICALITY THEY WERE TO DO AWAY WITH BURMA AND LITTLE NASTY—LEAVING DRUSILLA WITH NO BARRIERS TO MARRYING SMYTHE-HEATHERSTONE!—THEN, WHEN PA-PA RAISED CAIN WITH THE INVADING GOVERNMENT, HE WOULDN'T GET TO FIRST BASE...
...BUT THE PHONEY SAILORS TURNED WHEN I SPOKE TO THEM IN CHINESE—WHICH MADE THEIR LEADER CHANGE HIS PLANS!—THEIR DISGUISE BEING NO GOOD, HE JUST MADE A STRAIGHT PIRATE JOB OF IT SO HE COULD COLLECT—EVEN IF THE ORIGINAL SCHEME DID BOTCH!... CUTE?

Montgomery Police Trail Political Ad

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
Telephone SHepherd 4200.

Montgomery County police yesterday entered politics but not in support of any candidate. They were searching for a banner valued at $100 which had been stolen from Kensington.

The banner, 20 by 24 feet, had been displayed across the Connecticut Avenue Bridge over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad by Eugene J. C. Raney, campaign manager for J. Millard Tawes, candidate for the Democratic nomination for State comptroller. The sign urged support of Senator Tydings, Mayor Jackson and Tawes. Raney declared the banner had been erected across the highway with permission of the State roads commission.

The banner was put in place Thursday night and was cut down before dawn. Raney offered a reward of $50 for its recovery, county police said.

State Senator Stedman Prescott was indorsed by 28 members of the Rockville bar in a statement issued yesterday. The senator is candidate for the Democratic nomination for judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, which includes Montgomery and Frederick Counties.

The statement answered political attacks upon Senator Prescott, declaring that a statement which had been distributed "attacking his former political activities" has a tendency to "remove from the judicial contest the dignity to which it is entitled."

The attorneys praised both Senator Prescott and his opponent, William F. Prettyman, and said the campaign should be conducted in accordance with "our time-honored custom of not attacking either candidate, but that each should run on his own merits."

The statement was signed by Robert Peter, Roger J. Whiteford, J. Harry Welch, Granville Curry, John Oxley, Charles B. Jones, Jo V. Morgan, Harry E. Guinn, James W. Gill, Vivian B. Simpson, Emory H. Bogley, Charles M. Irelan, jr.; J. Guy Neel, Joseph P. Simpson, James H. Owen, Ralph G. Shure, James E. Christopher, Frederick Stohlman, Joseph H. Burkhart, Kenneth Lyddane, Ben G. Wilkinson, S. M. Sullivan, L. Q. C. Lamar, Albert E. Rault, Jerome F. Barnard, Claude W. Douglas, Thomas H. Patterson and Bowie F. Waters.

The United Democratic Organization will hold a rally tonight at 8 o'clock at the Potomac Elementary School. Among speakers will be F. Larmour Oyster; John E. Oxley, candidate for county commissioner; James W. Gill, candidate for member of the House of Delegates; Charles M. Irelan, jr., candidate for judge of the Orphans' Court, and James C. Christopher.

Montgomery County public schools will open Tuesday, Dr. Edwin W. Broome, superintendent of county schools, announced.

Convention Hears Address on 'Jehovah's War'

"Jehovah's War" was the topic of an address delivered to more than 300 members of the sect of Jehovah's Witnesses from Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia, who assembled at the Ritchie Coliseum, at College Park, yesterday.

The convention is one of 50 being held in various parts of the United States, which, patrons hope, will be attended by a total of 100,000 men and women of the faith.

Judge Rutherford, of London, will speak on "The Face of the Facts" by direct wire from Albert Hall, London, tomorrow at 8 p. m. over an international hookup.

$41,719 Requested To Pipe Sewage

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission yesterday decided to file a $41,719 application with the PWA for piping sewage from Little Falls Branch, in Montgomery County, to the District sewage system.

A previous application of $38,842 had been filed in July for piping the sewage half way to the District line from where the branch empties into the Potomac River, J. D. Bowman, secretary, said yesterday.

According to plans, the pipes would follow the Potomac to the District line at the Delecarlia Reservoir, where a hill would have to be tunneled to conect with the District system. A present the branch carries sewage from communities from the Potomac north to Chey Chase and Somerset.

Sells Farm For $12,500 Through 6-line Ad in The Post

It doesn't cost much to sell a farm when you reach the right prospects. The Maryland Realty Co., Washington, D. C., ran a six-line advertisement in the classified columns of The Post for two days. The ad cost only $1.56—and brought a customer who bought a 680-acre farm for $12,500. Selling farms is a nice business if you can get the customers. The Maryland Realty Co. finds it easy when they use Post Want Ads.

ARLINGTON, VA.—3228 12th st. South (1 block south of Columbia pike; new 5-room and bath bungalow; hot-water (oil) heat, hardwood floors, built-in tub and shower; $5,750; $500 down, $40 per month. OPEN DAILY.
A. H. BROOKS,
3016 Columbia Pike, Arlington. OXf. 0826

It all happened in two days. The ad appeared in The Post on a Saturday morning. A Post reader saw the ad, then saw the house and liked it. The following day the Post reader returned to the home again and made the down payment. Mr. Brooks, too, found that it pays to advertise in Post Want Ads.
